Schedules, lockers, and ID: A Tradition at Orientation

Welcome to the Wild, Wild West

Top left: Erin Jones, Erika Valdez, Liz Civiletti, Heather Wilson, and Stephanie Brown brighten up Mrs. Duran's day when they visited her on Wednesday, August 26th. They were all discussing their schedule changes for this year.

Middle top: While waiting in line to check out, Jenny Mattier, Jennifer Black, and Tina Fernandez compare schedules, hoping to get classes together. It's their final year of Orientation at W.H.S.

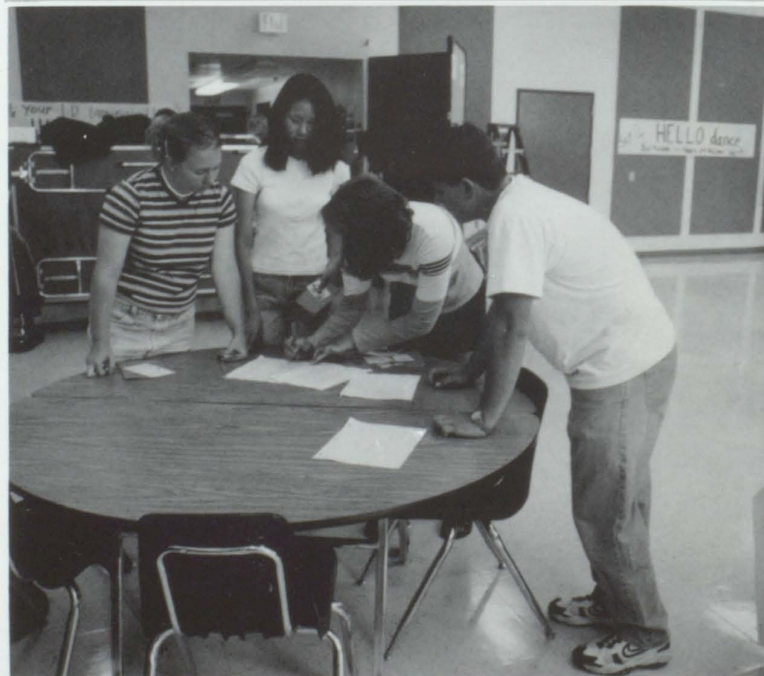

Top right: When asked to smile for the camera, Nanyamka Scott was ready at a moment's notice to show us her colgate smile. Meanwhile, Brian Duke and Kristie Audi are hard at work. Nanyamka, get back to work!

Orientation often means seeing your friends, picking up your new schedules, I.D.s, and your lockers. All this was a reminder of school starting out as students traded their bathing suits for backpacks. Summer was over and it was time to crack open the books. Seniors and juniors picked up their new schedules and I.D.s on Wednesday, August 26 while the sophomores picked them up on Thursday the 27th. That same night was set aside for the freshman to interact with the faculty.

Scott Martinez's little brother Andrew and Jenny Mattier's little sister Christine spent their free time helping out at the freshman orientation Thursday night. They were in charge of giving out the locker cards to the freshmen.

Far left: While Jenny Harrington "raises the roof," Uncle Sams--Matt Rogers and Dan Garza-- "want you." John Kennedy, Jennifer Rodriguez, Sherra Berchem, Jackie Corr, Shasta Emerick, Jessica Little, Amy Hesser, and Laura Snow giggled along with the rest of the group.

Left: The crowd anxiously awaited to see the upcoming activities the Student Council had planned for the rally. The students talked amongst themselves as they waited for the rally to start.

The first rally was an interesting experience for the freshmen as well as the returning students because of its Western theme. The rally started out with a "howdy y'all" from the Student Council. Students were astounded to see Mr. Martin, our principal "riding through the wind with a horse" as he welcomed everyone back. Next came the introduction of our 31 new teachers. Games were played during the rally which gave each class a chance to show their spirit. The rally gave freshmen and new students an idea of what Washington is all about.

Left: Mrs. Low, a new assistant principal, stood with Ms. Robson (home economics teacher) and Ms. Cano (world history teacher) awaiting the announcement of the new staff.

Middle left: Every single Student Council member gathered in front of the crowd and square-danced their hearts out. They all wore matching ASB T-shirts and cowboy hats which emphasized this year's Western theme. Country Music was played throughout the rally, provided by DJ Brian Heater and DJ Ron Yee.

Top: TEACHERS SINGING? At the first day rally, the tradition of singing the Alma Mater as a school was handed over to the teachers. A group of new teachers sang along with Lauren Danielson, one of the head spirit commissioners, as DJ Ron Yee and DJ Brian Heater stood watching.

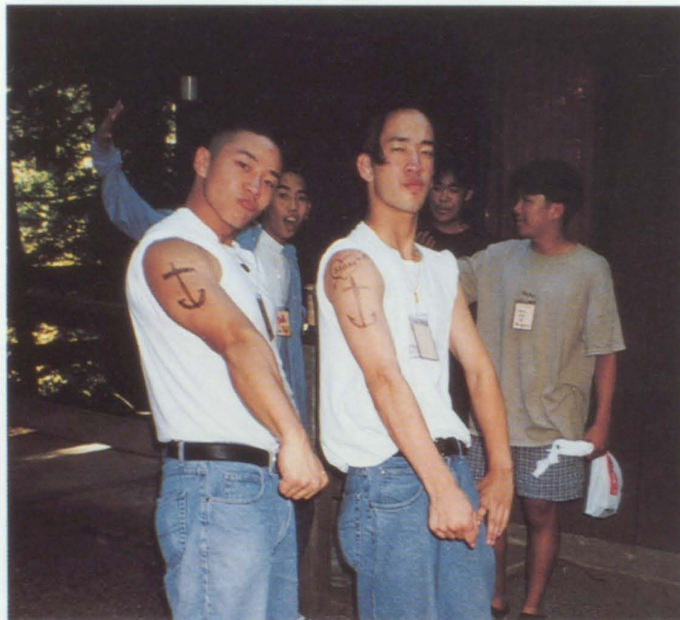

Top: HOP! HOP! HOP! The most exciting and crowd-cheering activity was the potato-sack race between the classes. The winner of the 4 classes won class spirit points as well as a prize. Kevin Neault, a junior, Sarah Rice, a sophomore, and Rachel Martinez, a senior, were determined to win the race. The freshmen class were not able to race due to lack of participation.

FUN IN THE SUN

Below: Jennifer Rodriguez (left) and Jackie Corr (right) spent part of their vacation touring the Magical Kingdom. On the way to the next ride, they stopped to get acquainted with the Beast.

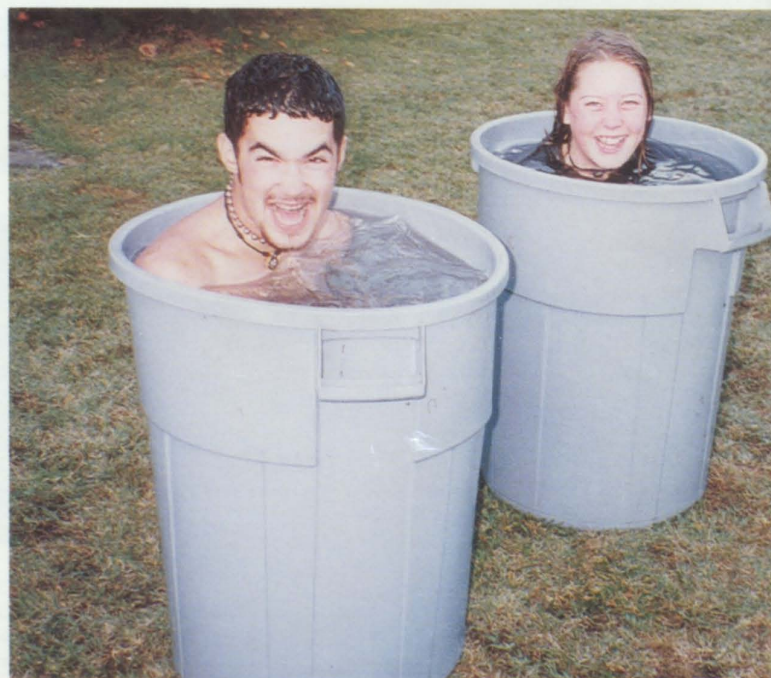

As the second bell rings to signal the ending of school and the beginning of summer, the variety of students from Washington are ready to take on adventures of seeing the outside world for what it really is. Whether the students are just going around the block to visit a friend or across the ocean to visit a whole other world, the summer activities are always intriguing.

During a Labor Day party, Melanie Reis (center) and friends were having a blast as they swam and had food fights all day. At the party there was a good band that played all day and night.

On one hot summer day, Aimee Dickson and her boyfriend Chris Sanchez cooled off by jumping in the crystal clear community baths in Aimee's back yard.

Far Left: Andria Garcia and Chrissy Lemmon take time out of their sun-tanning session to pose for this photo. They were at Donner Lake where they were camping for a week.

Right: After a hard days fishing, senior Paul Sedano brings home the big catch.

Below: Gina Amoroso, Trisha Farquhar, and Irina Polyak spent time at Lake Commanche sun bathing and scoping out guys at the lake.

Far Left: Freshman Bindi Patel and friends traveled to the many temples in London and India. Bindi spent a month in India and 5-6 days in London . During the last week she was able to stay in the many different temples.

Foreign exchange student from Brazil, Waine Guimaraes traveled with friends all over the United States. Here, Waine and a friend stand in front of the Statue of Liberty in New York.

Lauren Maurer, Erin Jones, Stephanie Brown, Heather Wilson, Ashley Sanchez and Monique Ybarra spent their summer perfecting their high kicks and toe-touches at cheerleading camp.

Seen here in front of the Washington Monument, Waine Guimaraes spent several days in Washington D.C. to see the many sights that the United States' capitol has to offer.

Let's Groove

Do the bump! Tonya Glanz (or is that Patty Duke?) and Monica Chavez had pads of paper ready to jot down the new freshmen's numbers at the first dance of the year.

Three men and a lady - Trevor DeBenning, Frank Martinez, and Chad Balanza were enjoying the company of senior Jessica Little as they "come an' ride the train" in their formal attire at Winter Ball.

John Ramirez and Priscilla Rodrigues kept each other warm as they enjoyed a slow dance in their cutely matched outfits at the Sadie Hawkins dance.

Pink Ladies Forever! Lindsay Sampson and Kimberly Duprey went stag as they watched couples dance to "Blue Moon" at the 50's themed Hello dance.

Mike Khristo wanted to stand out from the repetitive tuxedo look, so he sported a tie and blue sunglasses. His girlfriend Leilani was obviously impressed.

"How do I love thee? Let me count the ways!" Laura Lineback and her guest Marcel stepped away from the sweaty dance floor to smell the roses.

Brenna Garcia knew she was gettin' her groove on at the Winter Ball. She lifted her forest green floor length gown off the floor to give her feet a little dancing room.

The Gang's all Here!

Tonite!!

"Let's sit this one out! Jennifer Miller and Kyle Smith took a breather at the Sadie Hawkins dance, the last all school dance held in February '99.

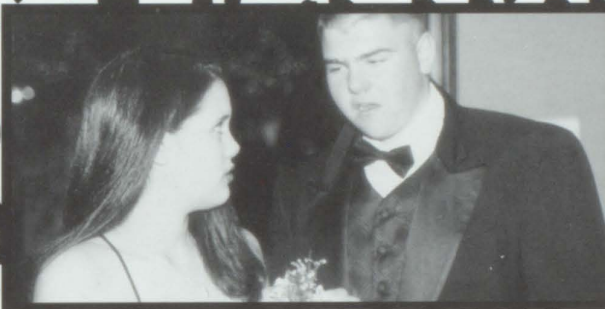

Melanie Reis and her boyfriend Michael Rodrigues enjoyed their first formal dance together as a couple, even though they had been together for five months. Before the dance, Michael and Melanie ate at Chevy's and then met the ever-so-popular "balloon man" who made Melanie a lovely balloon corsage to match her dress.

Karen Bradford and Jacob Matto got comfortable. The white Christmas lights added to the romantic theme song of the night, "I'm your Angel."

"It takes two to tango!" Ashley Sanchez and Jeremy Hodges broke out from the crowd to demonstrate their superb dancing skills at the Hello dance in September.

"You're gonna put that where?" Danny "Spazz" Camello questioned Celeste Holmes' motives as she attempted to re-pin his lovely boutonniere in preparation for their pictures.

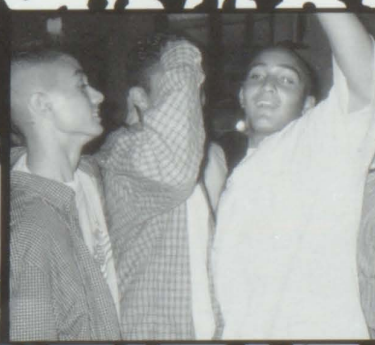

It's a double date! Kathy Loughran, Melissa Hemstreet, and their two guests took a seat to eat M&M's and chat. It was quite hard to even find a spot on the dance floor since there were over 400 people at Winter Ball this year.

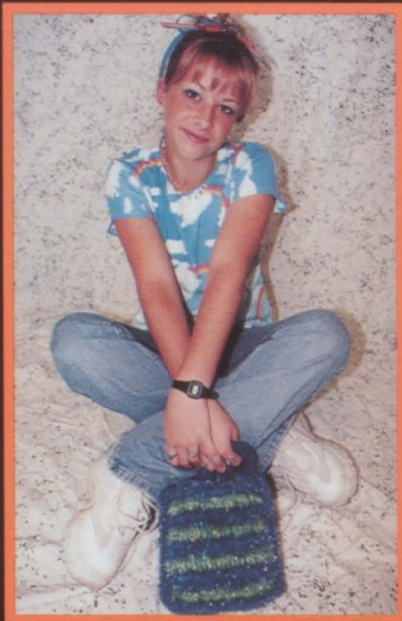

All in the Family - Jeff Koopen and girlfriend Amber East grouped up with Washington alumni Megan Walton and her boyfriend Matt Ghiringhelli, who look like they should really be brother and sister.

Want a kiss? Amber Freitas and Derek Johnson knew they were hot at the Sadies dance in their matching green Yankees' hats.

Strike a pose

Sarra Reid never leaves home without her accessories that make her look as cute as possible. She always looks colorful and she could brighten up your day!

Victoria Santos and Robert Santos looked ready to walk the cat walk. Animal prints and cardigans were the fads for the new school year.

Katy Tedford displaying her 'cords' and her fuzzy, green sweater attracts attention. She finishes her look with a ruby red hairdo and portrays a playful personality.

Whoever said, "You are what you eat," forgot to incorporate, "You are what you wear." Fashion is art—a masterpiece created solely from the mixture of paint found in a closet, better known as clothes. Fashion speaks for itself and sometimes louder than words.

For many students here, what they wear is who they are. From an I-just-got-up-look-, to outfit from the decades, to sophisticated and modern looks, different fashion can be seen through the campus. It's a Vogue magazine around here at school.

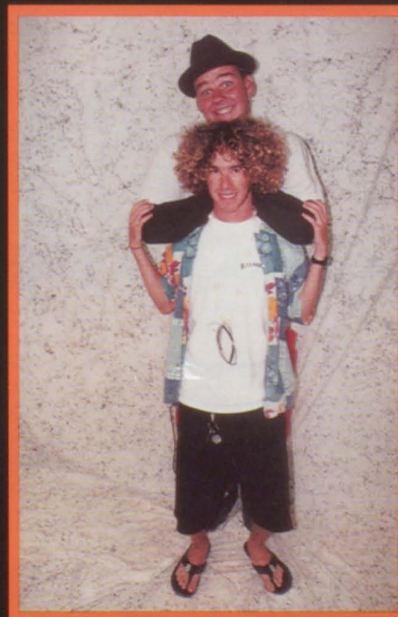

Lauren Danielson shows us her comfy side, but she still maintains a sophisticated style. She looks feminine in everything she wears.

Zach Chin is worry free in his fuzzy orange pants.

Valerie Miller tells us that "It don't mean a thing, if you ain't got that swing." She goes for the 50's look which suits her very well.

Steve Stacy and Greg Harris tells us to "Feel the Fro."

Charmin' Royalty

Left: Dorothy Tsang, a junior, stands there patiently as Davina Hooker papers her on top and Jennifer Burns takes care of the bottom. Dorothy was very brave to volunteer to be a princess.

Bottom: Allison Whaley looks like she wants to escape from Mike Reuter and Holly Warren. These freshmen tried really hard to cover Allison with as much toilet paper as possible.

Left: Tommy Ramos, a sophomore, gives us a thumbs up while being toilet papered by Melissa Noche and Mary Green. He doesn't seem to mind that he's the only Prince up there.

Above: Here were the four contestants of Toilet Paper Princess and a Prince. It was time for the judging to take place and the juniors were able to pull it off.

Once the clock strikes 11:20, where do you usually go for lunch? While some people go off campus many stay on to witness the lunchtime activities put on by the Spirit Commissioners. For example, the commissioners decided to do something different, so they thought of toilet papering princesses and princes. The object of this activity was to see which class could toilet paper their princess or prince the best. At first it was really difficult to get volunteers but eventually the spirit commissioners were able to persuade them to come up. The crown went to the junior class who tried really hard to make sure their princess was the best of all.

The purpose of multicultural week is to expose students to different types of lifestyles associated with various cultures and ethnic groups. During the week long event, we celebrated with a fashion show which showed different styles of clothing from around the world, a food faire in which students made ethnic dishes to be sold to those interested in sampling the different types of foods, and an assembly with Mexican dancers and Taiko drummers. Due to the huge support and enthusiasm by all of the students, the whole week was a success.

Celebrating Diversity

Multicultural week

Top Left: Nasir Hashimi looked stylish in his authentic Afghan clothing as he walked down the center aisle of the multicultural fashion show.

Top Right: H.I.P.E., Harmony in Perpetual Evolution, put on an amazing show for us at the Multicultural Food Faire. The Filipino Club who hosted the group was honored they came to perform, especially since the performers were from other schools. These talented Asian singers provided great entertainment.

Left: Duyen Nguyen looked statuesque in her authentic Vietnamese attire. Perhaps there is a modeling career in the making.

Below left: Victoria Birbeck and Rachel Martinez chowed down on French food. Their smiles showed that the food was certainly worth buying.

Below right: "Hmm. . . the choice of various tasty morsels from so many different cultures can be difficult to select. I love our Multicultural Food Faire! Mmm. . . I'm a multiculturalist at heart," exclaimed English teacher and Yearbook advisor, Mrs. Howerton.

Kimmi Lowe and Jenny Cheung strutted their stuff on the runway in their beautiful silk Chinese dresses which are often worn to weddings and other special occasions.

The amazing sounds of the Mexican dancers awed the crowd during the Multicultural Assembly. The dancers' love for their culture was apparent throughout their dancing, and the beautiful costumes added zest to the lively performance.

A WALK THROUGH TIME

The Wonder Years

Do you remember that first time you met your best friend? Whether it was when you passed the glue to them in kindergarten, or just when you were monkeying around on the bars during recess, the friendship blossomed throughout the years. Who would have known that they would be the person whom you would spill your secrets? From elementary to junior high and to high school, you developed a bond between the two of you that was unbreakable. You've shared some tears, fears, and happiness, and along the way you've learned the meaning of true friendship.

Then...Clarisse Mesa (4 years old) playfully puts her arm around Cassandra Mesa (2 years old). They both show the bond sisters have between each other.

Then...A picture of the basketball team from Corpus Christi in 1992 reveals how long Johnny Seoane, Zachary Anderson, Keith Bohanan, Randy Scott and Victor McGautha have been friends. Not only did their friendship grow on the court, but off the court as well.

Now...Caught hanging out together during lunch in front of room 51, Zachary Anderson, Keith Bohanan, Victor McGautha, and Johnny Seoane are still friends to this day.

Now...Cassandra and Clarisse Mesa are all grown up. Taken before the Homecoming Game, they both stand to take a pose that's all too familiar to them.

Now... Things haven't change at all between Erin Fields and Jennifer Miller. Their friendship is still just as strong as it was from the day they met.

Then... From slumber parties to soccer games, Erin and Jennifer were inseparable. The bond they have is something that will last a lifetime.

Then and Now... "We knew that it would be a friendship that would last forever when we were the only two playing in the sandbox," replied both Kristie Audiat and Patty Boyce. Their friendship lasted from the day they met in the sandbox to sixth grade promotion (left), to their high school years.

Now and Then... A summer vacation at Pismo Beach (left) couldn't let Ashley Sanchez, Dana Duge, Monica Chavez, and Tonya Glanz stop them from hanging out together. They have quadruple the fun and quadruple the laughs. These dynamic four have been hanging out since the last week of their 7th grade (above) when they would dress alike and head over to their favorite hangout, Super Savers.

The Flaring Freshmen

Top Left: Hank appears to be the ladies' pup as all of the 02' girls gather around in amazement.

Top Right: Cari Ham plays the notorious Jamie Bond, who is looking to kick some missionite-butt, but can't seem to spot anyone.

Hanna and Hank give each other some support. Beating Mission isn't going to be as easy as they thought.

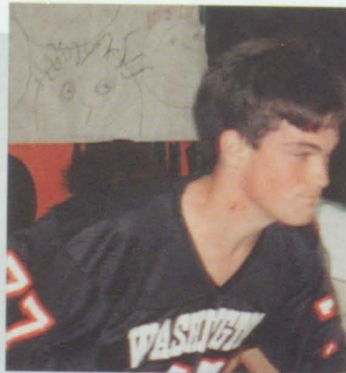

Hank is checking out the competition by staking out at a mission football practice.

Dre Heredia, Britta Thym, and Wendy Talley show the support for their fellow classmates.

Hanna has to find Hank so they can help each other look for some spirit.

Matt Foster is giving it his all so that the Huskies come out on top.

Brian Hadfield tries to block Matt Foster so as not to give in too easily.

Audrey Huang helps to get the crowd riled up for the "big game".

CLASS OF 2002

To our left is a beautiful piece of artwork brought to us by our hardworking freshmen class. With the amount of time the freshmen had this year, they still succeeded in presenting us with a completely entertaining skit.

Left: Stephanie Mallie woke up and decided to try something a tad bit different with her hair this morning

In the beginning of the week, our dear freshmen appeared overwhelmed by the madness that consumed our school's hallways. Who wouldn't be a little surprised to see stampedes of army-clad seniors and groups of juniors dressed in outrageous 80's attire, parading through the halls in mass hysteria. Each class tried to outdo the other, with wild signs, blaring horns, soda can shakers, and (who could ignore) the loud speakers. By mid week the freshmen started to come around. By then they seemed to have caught on to the idea of it all. They started out spirit week with Tie Day, next came Hick Day, on the day of their skit performance they dressed in their formals, and their last dress-up day (to themselves) was Punk Rocker Day. Last but not least they came together in Orange and Black to unite with the staff and the rest of their schoolmates. We are glad that our freshmen brought it together so well, before it had all passed them by.

Austin Powers (Brad Fuellenbach) lets Dr. Evil (Jared Snelson) know how "jive" he is for stealing Washington's spirit.

These enthusiastic sophomores are having a blast dancing at the Psychedelic Pussycat Swingers Club.

Lexie Rohrman and Shannon Mattingly are getting excited as the audience begins pouring into the gym to experience a "Shagadelic" skit.

Austin Powers (Brad Fuellenbach), International Man Of Mystery, says, "Groovy Baby!" as he pimp walks across the stage.

Dr. Evil (Jared Snelson) tries to give Austin (Brad Fuellenbach) a karate kick, but fails as he falls to the ground.

Austin Powers (Brad Fuellenbach) and Mrs. Kensington (Christina Sweeney) prepare for Dr. Evil's (Jared Snelson) attack as a spy (Arnold Stovall) runs off with the news.

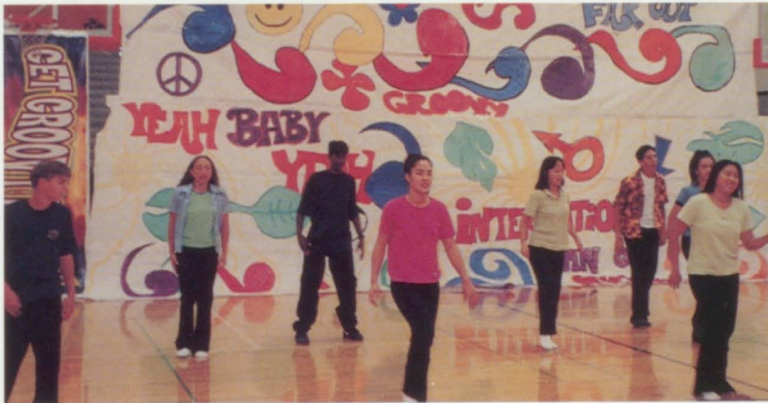

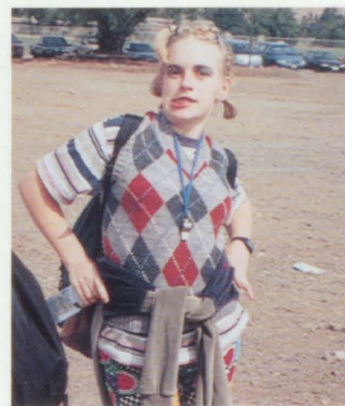

Left: Shannon Mattingly, Renee Little, Lauren English, Erica Flora, and Maria Santos havin' a swingin' good time in the fab 60's.

Far Left: Hey Kristi Sinnot! Did you get dressed in the dark this morning?!!?

The class of 2001 had a truly great run this year. All the sophomores came to school Monday bearing their favorite team jerseys on Sports Day. Tuesday was their skit day, and the rest of the Sophomores had a little trouble getting dressed in the morning on mismatch day. Traveling back to the swingin' sixties to perform "Austin Powers" proved how truly groovy the class of 2001 are. On Wednesday, great class participation was shown on Hawaiiin day as the Sophomores took a little trip to the beach. Finally, to end the week, great class participation was shown on Pajama Day as students came to school with blankets in hand. On October 9, 7:30 P.M., it was announced the Sophomores placed third. WAY TO GO '01!!!

"We're totally footloose!"

Left: A group of juniors partied down with Hannah during the junior skit. Short, colorful skirts, spandex, and crimped hair brought back the memories of the 80's.

Right: COME ON, LET'S DANCE! The juniors's skit, "Footloose," involved many dancing scenes and that's exactly what the girls are doing. Doing "the pony" the girls wanted to show the audience their cool dance moves.

Left: Juniors, rushed to catch the balloons, just like the way they came together to show off their spirit throughout Spirit Week. The junior skit was a success due to the number of Right: ONE, TWO, THREE, RAISE THOSE LEGS! Junior girls came together to express their spirit with high-flying kicks during the skit.

Dress-up Days

80's Day

Juniors started Monday off wearing Spandex and legwarmers, fashion of the 80's. Desmond Cheung, Aaron Nuss, Jeff Fisher, and Eddie Culin talked amongst themselves, as Erin Jones, Stephanie Brown, and Jennifer McLain waited to practice the skit for the last time, before performing in front of the audience.

Toga Day

Going all the way back to Julius Caesar's time, the juniors wore togas, on Tuesday, showing their godly postures. Chad Balanza is seen squinting as the "heaven's light" shone on him.

Mafia Day

Going back to the 20's, Yvonne Lerand and Kevin Neault strutted their stuff on Mafia Day with black hats, suspenders, and a cool attitude.

50's Day

On Thursday, the juniors rallied around the school, dressed in poodle skirts, saddle shoes, and strolled down the hallways listening to "Blue Moon." Tonya Glanz and Nirmal Bassi stepped back in time for the full effect.

Left: After winning the tractor race, the Huskies celebrated as the Mission villain cried in defeat.

Far left: On Mafia Day, the "gangsters" rallied around the school showing their spirit as well as their "gangsterly" attitudes.

Bottom: Victoria Jones led the crowd to cheer "J-U-N-I-O-R-S" as they rallied with enthusiasm and excitement.

Top: As juniors waited for the skit to start, a wave of posters went up spelling "J-U-N-I-O-R-S."

Left: Even with rallying around the school, Lara Kellogg and Ashley Sanchez, took time to make a locker stop before heading off to class.

"He, He, Ho, Ho, We're the class of '00" was heard as you walked down the halls. The juniors enthusiastically rallied around school, hoping to out do the seniors. Juniors went back in time to experience the fashion of the many different eras. On Monday, juniors dressed in spandex and legwarmers for 80's Day, Tuesday was Toga Day, and everyone wore white togas, on Wednesday, they wore black suits and dresses for Mafia Day, Thursday, was a flashback of the 50's -- poodle skirts and saddle shoes, and lastly on Friday, the juniors joined the rest of the school in wearing orange and black. The juniors were the first to present their skit, "Footloose" and the enthusiasm of the juniors won themselves second place in the spirit week competition.

Class of 2000

Sound Off To The Seniors

Top right: "Hey Robin, don't hurt Batman." Johnny Seoane and Danny Brown did an excellent job portraying Batman and Robin. You can't say they didn't look good in those tights.

Top left: Revenge of the Nerds! Kristie Audiat, Patty Boyce, and Jen Hartigan are strapped and ready to attack another economics lesson.

Senior class unites as they make a barricade and plot an attack on all the underclassmen.

Annie Tegner, Jodi Curtis, Christy Burkhalter, and Jen Hartigan show their American pride as they salute the seniors.

Michel Khristo showed his school pride when he decorated his car with black, orange, and white for spirit week.

Army Day

Tim Snelson commands the seniors to drop down and do 20. Tim went all out on Army Day. He even painted his face which adds to the fun of spirit week. During lunch it gets really busy, but there is always time to Do the Dew, Mountain Dew.

70's Day

Frank Salvatore is "stayin' alive" in his white suit and dark rimmed glasses. He looks ready to bust a move with John Travolta. Frank was so impressed with the sophomore skit that he had to stand up and give a round of applause.

Nerd Day

"Jenny Harrington, did I just hear you snort? Sorry I don't have any cheese to give you." Jenny looks like a total nerd with her rainbow suspenders and taped glasses. "Hey Jenny have you looked in the mirror lately?"

Black and Orange Day

These seniors strike a pose for the camera during Ms. Marie's 4th period English class. Veronica Zebratski and Brandon Shelton remind us to keep the peace.

Don't they look cute. These nerds enjoy reading in groups so they can discuss their books with each other. Did you notice that Ms. Pavlecic was one of the nerds? The other nerds with her were Melissa Hemstreet, Aaron Auer, Joe Freeland, Andy Paris, and Greg Jonutz.

Left: This masked hip hop dancer did a wonderful job during the skit. The dancer turned out to be Tim Lee. He glided across the floor like he was floating on air.

These two nerds look a little lost. Tim Snelson and Brian Duke got so focused on their chess game during lunch that they didn't hear the bell ring. Even though they were rushing to their next class they still were nice enough to stop for a picture.

It seems to be that seniors want to dominate during spirit week, and why wouldn't they? They have had four years of experience with them and ideas that have been floating around their heads. They've seen it all and learned from every senior class that came, went, conquered. When the class is put to the challenge, the seniors tackle it and make sure they finish first. With spirit week being early this year, the pride from the class of 1999 was put to the test. Long hours of practice, scenery painting, and setup were examples of the dedication any senior was willing to give. The grueling hours of revising the script was worth it when Batman came alive before the audience on Thursday, October 8th.

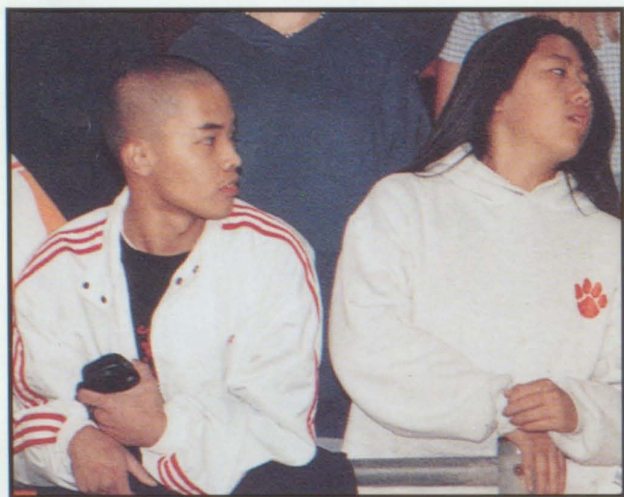

A NIGHT TO REMEMBER ...

Homecoming Game

Tail-gate parties, crowning of the Homecoming Queen and Mr. Husky, crowds cheering, and of course the football game against Mission San Jose HS were all a part of this year's Homecoming Celebration. On October 9, 1998, the Homecoming Game against Mission ended in a complete victory with the JV team's "big win" of 41-0, and varsity's win of 42-6. Danny Brown #12, a quarterback of the varsity team is shown in the midst of passing the ball while his teammates, Johnny Parra #22, Kevin Smith #61, and Joe Walker #77 tried to tackle the Mission's players. During halftime, the traditional crowning of the Homecoming Queen took place. This year's decision on Homecoming Queen was a difficult task for the students due to the fact that all the candidates were equally exceptional. This year's Homecoming Queen and courts are the following: Jewelyn Almazan, Diana Cangco (Homecoming Queen), Laura Santos, Clarisse Mesa, and Jennifer Kennedy.

Top: A group of seniors cheered as another touchdown was made by the varsity team. Many sported varsity jackets to show school spirit, others wore senior T-shirts to show class spirit. This year, the seniors won the spirit week competition for the most enthusiastically-involved class.

Left: Garin Pohl, Tim Lee, Johnny Seoane, Tim Snelson, Brian Duke, and Brian Heater lined up for the announcement of Mr. Husky.

GUESS WHO WE ARE?..... These 3 "duckies" were a big splash at the Ball. It was difficult to tell who was who under the color mask, but with some convincing, the "duckies" finally revealed their true identities: Stephanie Dillon in red mask, Shannon Mattingly in green mask, and Lauren English, in pink mask.

The crowd got their "grooves on" to the music at the Ball. Some people came with dates, others came with friends. No matter who you came with, you were sure to have a good time.

The Homecoming Celebration is not complete without the crowning of Mr. Husky. This year's Mr. Husky, Tim Snelson, was crowned during the Gotham City Masquerade Ball. Homecoming Queen, Diana Cangco, and Mr. Husky, Tim Snelson danced together for the first time as queen and king. Diana commented, "we were thinking 'why is everyone looking at us?'" It's no wonder they had everyone's attention, the royal couple looked terrific under the spotlight. This year's Masquerade Ball was put together by the class of 99. The theme of the dance went along with the senior skit, Batman. Many students came dressed up in their Halloween costumes and others came casually dressed. The Batman Masquerade Ball was a big turnout and students partied to the music provided by Ladda Sounds.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT

Gotham City Masquerade Ball

Here She Comes....

Top, Right: Jenny and John Kennedy prove that twins do everything together, but Jenny will be the only one wearing the tiara. Sorry John!

Top, Center: Diana Cangco is all smiles with her boyfriend Ryan Castaneda in one arm and a bouquet of flowers in the other.

With the Senior class voting in their Econ/ Government classes, ten lucky ladies were announced the Homecoming Queen nominees. Students can nominate you for any reason they feel is good enough to put your name on the blank line found on the election sheet, though most people are nominated for their accomplishments at school. These include clubs, sports, A.S.B., class officers, or anything else your class feels is exceptional about you. The ten nominees are then narrowed down to five when the whole school votes on who they feel is worthy of the title. The Seniors vote once again and the person receiving the most votes is crowned Homecoming Queen. The remaining four are crowned princesses. Homecoming queen is an honor to the person who deserves it.

Top, left: Jewelyn Almazan, escorted by Jon Nishwitz, looks down at her loving crowd before she descends down the royal staircase of the Eggers building.

Lauren Danielson holds on tight to Randy Scott who's anxious to sit down.

Laura Santos is obviously happy she picked such a gentleman as Matt Rogers for her escort.

Top Center: Patty Boyce smiles brightly as she escorts Tim Snelson down the main steps of the Eggers building.

Top Right: Johnny Seoane and Alexia Donges watch their step intently as they find their way to the center of the lower opening.

Being nominated for "Mr. Husky" is an honor, let alone being chosen for the title. All of the guys elected to help participate in this annual tradition were selected due to their school involvement. Whether it be through student government, sports, or spirit week participation, everyone picked was nominated for a reason. Because these guys make school a lot more interesting, being nominated is a way to show our appreciation for their hard work. Every nominee deserved the crown as much as the other, but in the end there was only one left standing... "Mr. Husky".

Right Center: Our boys lean over the upper railing to pose for a quick shot before they continue on with their demanding lives.

Joel Ledgewood appears to be going out on a limb, but seems to be proud to escort himself.

The guys are practicing for their future statues.

Oldies but Goodies

At the same age students get their licenses, most of them dash off to explore the parking lots of the dealerships.
Whether it's that hot sports car they've been dreaming of or their parent's car, they are anxious to have their own set of keys. Washington's parking lot is a home to all types of cars: foreign, domestic, or custom-built. Because every car has its own, unique history, none seems to stand out to the untrained eye. However, a trained eye can spot any classic car that cruises in. They notice these solid metal bad boys can smoke'em like the best. The time it takes to maintain these cars is very consuming, but don't let their age fool you!
They may be "oldies," but they are still "goodies."

under the hood which looks and sounds awesome as it goes down the street.

Right: A classic '66 Mustang is a chick magnet for Jeff Beck who stands next to the beautiful Erin Jones who owns the '67 Mustang.

Here's Justin DeBenning's slammed, yellow '68 Bug in front of his house. Even though it may be old, it still receives a lot of attention driving through the streets of Fremont.

Trevor DeBenning sitting on the roof of his dent-less (not to mention colorless) '66 Bug which is his pride and joy. He takes time out during the weekend to fix, repair, and restore his Bug in hopes of one day making it show quality.

Johnny Seoane's Chevelle Super Sport, that can take on most any other car out there, is by far one of the best looking cars on the road.

Lockers Speak Out !!

Dana Duge and Monica Chavez wait impatiently as Ashley Sanchez struggles to shove one more book in her over-flowing locker.

Katie Stocks and Brenna Garcia stop between periods to grab their essential class binders.

You know me, but I don't have a name. Sometimes you abuse me, sometimes you forget about me, but I'm always there for you. I am your locker. Many of you don't realize how much I help you, but without me you'd have a lot of problems, especially back problems! It's a little unfair how you students treat me after all I do to help you. I can't even count how many times I've been kicked or punched. Every once in awhile I get the unfortunate moldy sandwich, and I usually have to deal with that for at least two weeks. By the way, the next time you shove your books in, be careful! It hurts! I must say, though, that my years at Washington have been quite interesting. From go-go boots, to hip-huggers, to spandex, I've seen a lot of enthusiasm and spirit which I've always loved about Washington students. If I'm gonna have a biology book jammed into me, I'd be no happier than to have a Washington student do it. So, next time you slam someone up against a locker, think about it, and I'll still always be there to take a load off your shoulders.

Melissa Speer, Jimmy Hughes, and Sarah Greene make a quick pit-stop at their lockers before rushing to their next class.

This is a perfect example of an abused locker. Or is it being aired out from a forgotten sandwich?

Although Sherra Berchem's locker is ancient and rusting, she treats it with the upmost respect and shuts it gently as she leaves.

Are you working hard or hardly working?

Right: Aimee Dickson was helping a customer select a calendar at a kiosk at Newpark Mall. The kiosk belonged to Waldenbooks, which was where Aimee worked. Need a book for READ? Check Aimee out at Waldenbooks and she'll help you find one.

Below: Working can be fun! Frank Salvatore, Brett Cates, and Jared Sheldon worked together at Fremont Community Church. Their job was to set up classrooms and stack chairs after school was over. You may ask, they get paid for that?! These guys got a nice $8/hr pay. They listened to music while working and got free lunches on occasion.

Far right: You can call her the "Gapgirl" or Mili Shah. Mili's job was to fold clothes, greet and assist customers. Balancing school and a job was tough, but Mili enjoyed the challenge.

Above: Dress for Less was the motto that Nessyl Liwanag, a cashier at Ross lived by. Nessyl liked her job very much because she got to "work with people." Have you ever wondered where she got all her trendy outfits? Well, Ross is the place.

Far right: Davina Hooker, a cashier at Drug Emporium, was demonstrating service with a smile. Davina had been working at Drug Emporium for about 2 months. She was really enjoying her job because it was "very easy.....no restricted guidelines.....very flexible."

Above: Want to be buff? Want to be healthy? Then you should have gone to see Elijah No at the GNC store at the Newpark Mall. Elijah would help you select the right powder or vitamins to build muscles and give you more energy. Elijah was seen advertising products such as Creatine, Promax, and other vitamins.

Giving back to the community

Left: Chrissy Lemmon, Stephanie Oneill, and Corinne Vairora showed off their beautiful 20's attire while watching one of the many performances during the dance marathon. All the junior history classes came together on December 4, 1998 to dance for four hours to raise money for local charities. They all looked like they were having a blast dancing to all different types of music. The total they made this year was $6,900.00 which was distributed to the charities picked by the juniors.

Middle left: Nanyamka Scott, Jessica Moore, and Jeff Fisher danced the morning away raising money for local charities. The great part of it was that they received the money before Christmas. It was almost like a Christmas present for the charities. Dressing in 20's attire added to the fun of the activity.

Above: Romualdo Arayata and Karmen Li were seen here staffing at the Washington Hospital lobby. This was a great way to receive your community hours and also be able to help people at the same time.

Caught IN THE ACT

Left: You would not happen to have a copy of your monologue in that binder, right Jim Havey? Due to his funny and devilish performance, Jim won second place for his monologue, "A Warm Greeting."

Right: Remembering the 'Nam Days! John Libby greeted us with his performance of "Good Morning, Vietnam!" What's with the serious face? Seriousness had nothing to do with his humorous monologue.

Above: SMOOCHEEZ, SMOOCHEEZ.... Trevor DeBenning, Anthony Torres, and Tim McGinnis returned to their real identities after their performance of "To Wong Foo...." These guys seemed to share the same bond on-stage as well as off-stage.

Middle right: WHS ANGELS! The female cast of "Anything Goes," a popular musical, expressed their angelic side while singing "Heaven Hop."

Right: Brett, are you campaigning for something or what? Don't be fooled, these were drama students having fun as they eagerly awaited the results of the Ohlone Drama Festival.

Above: Ms. Porter and some of the drama students chatted while waiting for the final decision on the winners. Ms. Porter came to support her students' performances like any great teacher.

And the Oscar goes to.....

As many as 80 drama students participated in the Ohlone Festival on March 5 and 6. There were a variety of performances from monologues to musicals to videos to improvisations. Many schools from the Bay area participated, including many well-known schools like American, Irvington, and Newark Memorial. Many of the performances from Washington made it to the finals and won three first and four second place trophies. Juniors John Libby and Jim Havey were asked to perform their monologues in front of everyone. Where will these future actors and actresses go next? Well, one of these days when you watch the Oscars, keep an eye out for these talented performers.

.....we'll see you at the next Oscars.

Left: The whole cast of "Anything Goes" showed off their talent in front of several judges and a whole theatre of about 100 people. Due to some technical difficulties at one of the performances, the cast of "Anything Goes" had to perform a capella. With or without music, their performance was captivating and interesting.

Watch out for Jackie Lee! Here she confidently performed her monologue entitled "Teacher's Pet." Thanks for giving us tips on how to win our teacher's heart.

J. Marie Bowman's performance in "Identity Crisis" sure would have convinced anyone that she was suffering from a crisis. Parents beware! Prevent your children from hearing J. Marie's version of Peter Pan. Otherwise, they may never be the same again.

Above: Like the many awards shows you've seen on TV, there are always trophies given to the best performers. Here the trophies awaited the many future actors and actresses at the Ohlone Theatrical Festival.

Center: Don't the "ladies" of "To Wong Foo...." look just FABULOUS!? No wait, it was Tim McGinnis, Trevor DeBenning, and Anthony Torres in drag. These three guys showed off some of their feminine side by wearing dresses, wigs, and tights. Anthony, watch where you're pointing that thing!

Enlightening...

Academics

Counselor Carol Brahmst sits at her desk while she does mounds of paperwork for the students attending Washington. All of this work keeps her occupied and makes her work day go by a lot quicker.

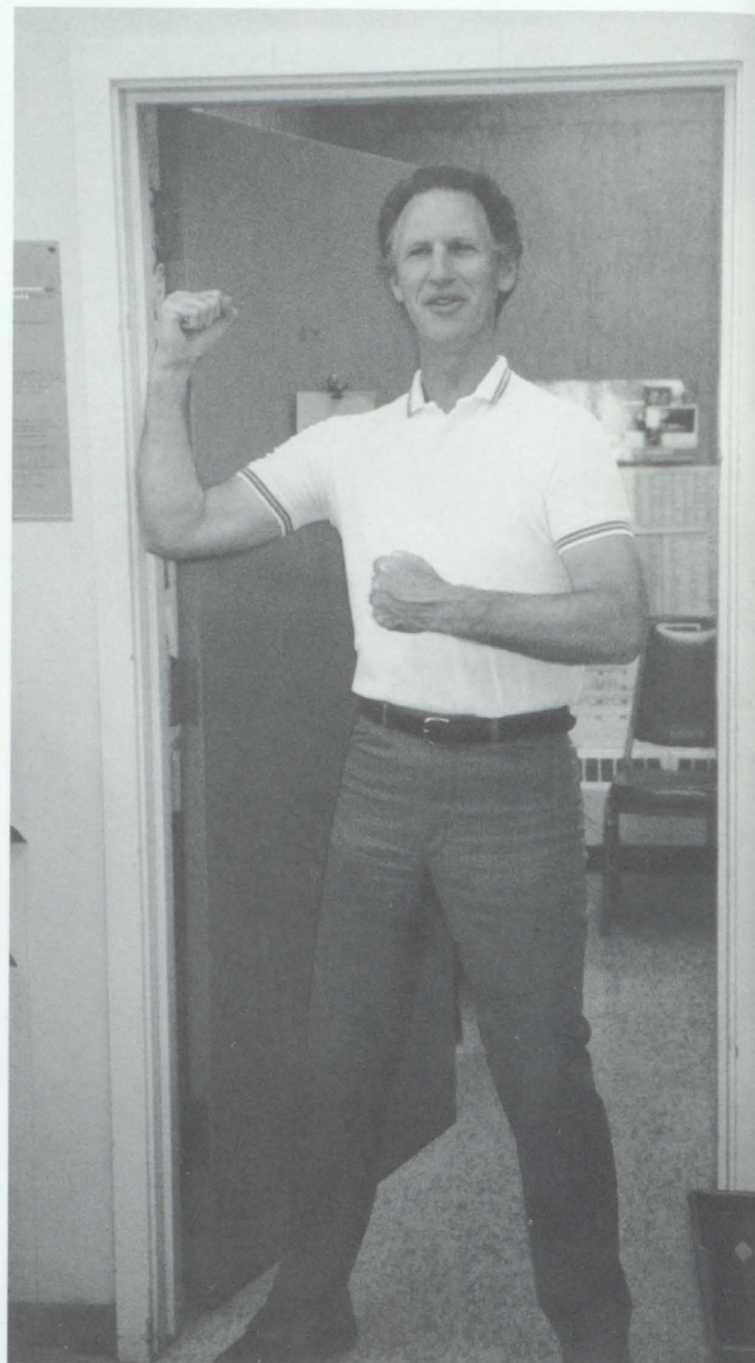

While standing in front of his office flexing, James Allen exclaims, "Here I come to save the day!" There's no doubt about it that Mr. Allen is a superhero when it comes to the counseling work he does at Washington High School. There is nothing that this man can't do!

While standing by the door of her office, the trademark smile of Kelly Zummo is given quickly as she advises a student of what classes they need to take in order to graduate.

Sitting at his desk in his office, Mr. Cary Tremewan awaits anxiously for students to come and ask him questions that need to be answered.

When the teachers need papers to be copied, Betty Iijima smiles and tells them that they will be ready ASAP. The teachers love her for her quick efficiency at getting the papers copied.

Vice Principal Judy Duran and Assistant Principals Patricia Low and Skip Cain monkey around in the trees as they join Principal Michael Martin during their lunch break.

Principal Michael Martin looks over his notes as he thinks of how wonderful these teacher evaluations will turn out. He jots down a couple of good pointers in Mr. Vargas' economics class as he sits in an unoccupied student desk.

"Where is three-way calling when you need it?" blurted Karen Fokken as she tries to answer two calls at the same time. She is always busy working on multiple tasks simultaneously considering she is the principal's secretary.

The attendance clerks are faced with each student's excuse for tardies and absences. They are responsible for monitoring students' attendance, and they seem happy to accommodate WHS students. Lt-Rt: Nancee Reck, Robin Barulich, Gail Minamoto, Judy Edgley, Phyllis Bohanan.

MORE Than You'd Expect

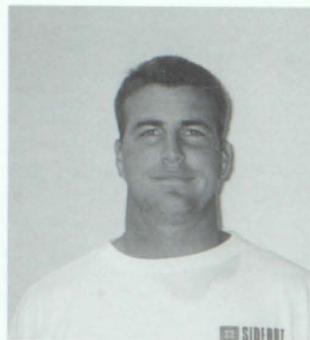

The office staff at Washington High School is filled with many highly skilled people. Without them, the school would be in total chaos and it wouldn't be able to function. Not only do they do the student attendance, but they also deal with the scheduling issues that come up, plus a whole lot more.

When it really comes down to it, school is a place for learning. We come to Washington to learn and experience routine rituals that are essential to our futures. As we attend our classes each day we add to our learning repertoire. School is more than just classes. School includes staying up late to cram for a test, and crushing all those cans for extra credit. We owe it all to our teachers. Without them we'd be lost forever. The faculty here at Washington is like no other. They do more than just teach the students. They care about the students and are always willing to help. They place their faith in our futures because they believe in what the Huskies can do. With their undying determination to do their best so that we can do ours, they make Washington sparkle.

- * There are approximately 29,000 books in the library. Some books published before 1900 are still in circulation.
- * 961 students have existing library records.
- * Anywhere from 50 to 100 books are checked out every week.
- * This year, a little over 500 books were overdue.

"Art is for everyone."

Imitating Life

"Every child is an artist.
The problem is how to remain an artist once he grows up."
-Picasso

Life imitates art and art imitates life is how the saying goes. Art is a way of life. From a dichromatic color scheme to dogs playing poker. Matisse to Chuck Close, canvas, and architecture, art says it all. An expression through canvas is not just an idea, it's a tangible masterpiece that you can actually see. But hardly anybody realizes that there are theories, guides, rules to art which can help to create your masterpiece. You experience these nuances through the the course of Art 1 and 2 and use what you have learned to express your own style in Art 3 and 4.

Manny Moreno and Jackie Corr should be doing something artsy and constructive but they've resorted to cheap laughs to entertain themselves.

Veronica Silva contemplates while sketching quietly away in her notebook.

Are these three (Simi Grewal, Gabe Stern, and Stacie Mah) real-life best friends or did they just want to be in the yearbook? Maybe a little of both.

Alright Mr. French, you can get down off your high horse now!

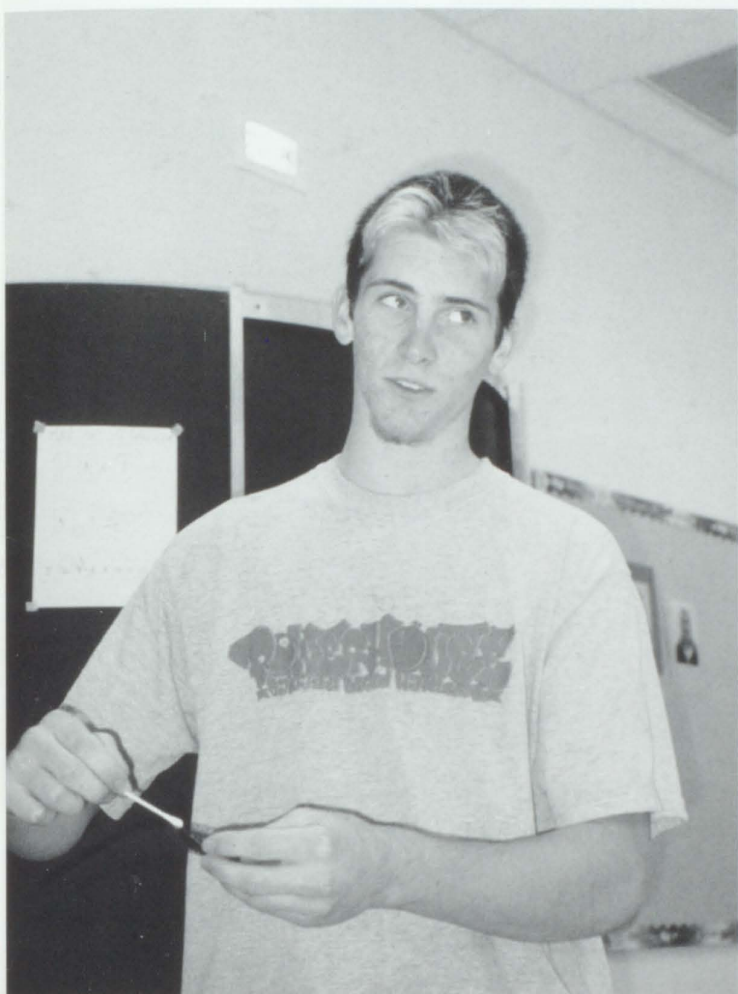

Ah.. a smile from the jubilant Jessie Winsted.

Is it just us, or does Ashley Sanchez look a little too happy to be using the art supplies? Whatever the case, she seems to be entertaining Kim Grable and Tommy Walton looks a tad surprised at the mischievousness.

Press the button, take a picture. But photography is an artform that is more challenging and more fun than you might realize.

First off, a good picture is hard to take: to expose a story in a single picture, to reflect the feelings that the subject invokes, takes, above all else, patience and a million different angles.

On that, everybody agrees. Once you score that perfect picture, the experience is very rewarding, finding that your self-esteem has raised a couple notches and an expression of contentment glides across your face.

Michelle Neal and Stacia Oto have grown accustomed to all the cameras lying around but they still love being in front, as well as behind, the camera. Here we also see Alexandro Amezcua as he tries to raise the roof.

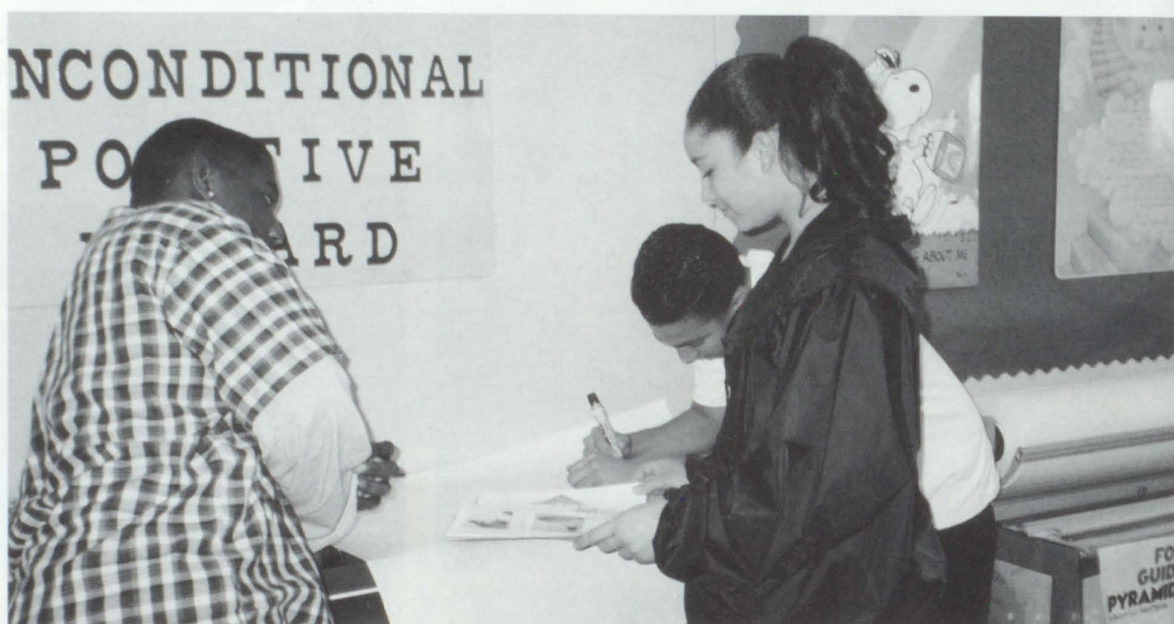

Point, click, and create. Breana Telles uses a photo computer to morph images together as Crosby Keiper sneaks a peek over her shoulder.

"Is your dummy breathing?" Cari Ham and Bonnie Selvig go through the steps of CPR and check to see if their victim is still alive. These two girls mean business when it comes to saving lives.

CPR is both fun and informative for freshman Albert Herrera. Since he forgot how to perform mouth-to-mouth, he laughs while thinking of how he's going to get out of this one.

"Am I doing this right?" exclaims freshman Tara Kirby as she pushes on her dummy's chest. Tara tries to remember what step comes after pushing on the victim's stomach. She remembers reading it in the book, but now she suddenly goes blank.

Roger Moppin, Vernetra Young, and Matt Rossi work on their health poster as a group. They are brainstorming how they want to draw their CPR poster. They know Mrs. Krebs is going to hang up the poster, so they want it to look superb!

Health, it does a body good.

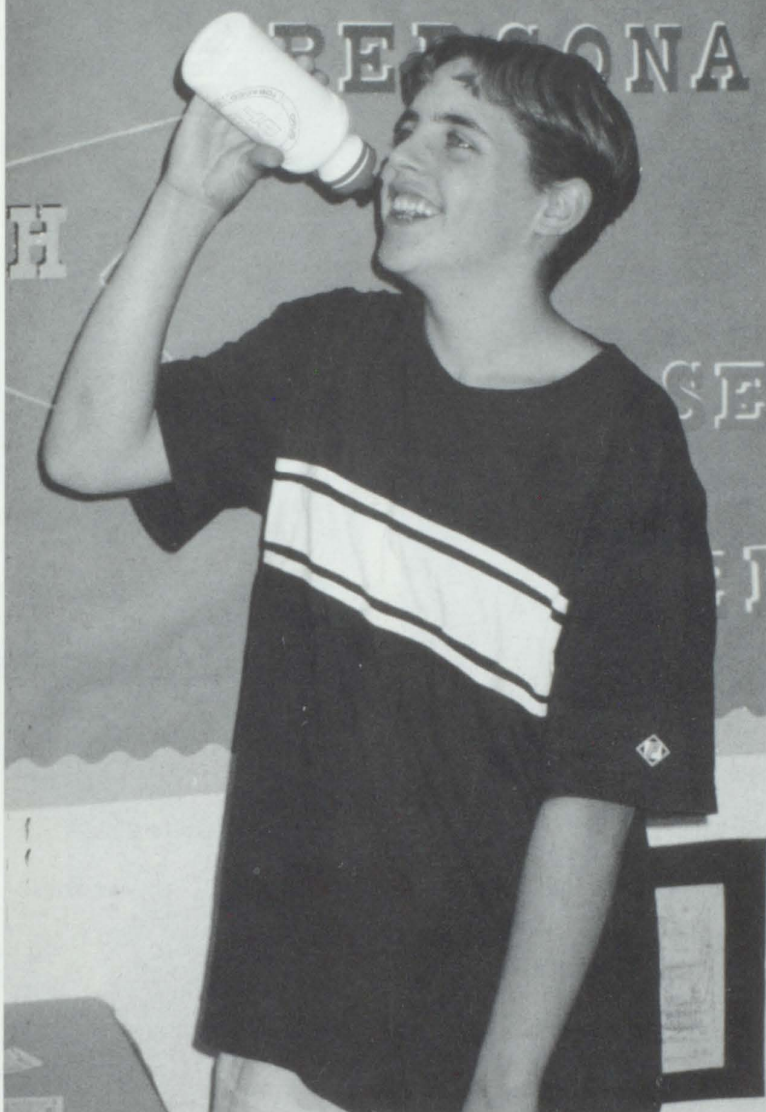

Health class is a required course for every student here at Washington High School. According to most of the freshmen, health class was the highlight of their long and frustrating year. They had lessons that contain a lot of hands-on activities. Many of the freshmen found those activities being their favorite part of the class. One of the all time favorite activities was performing CPR on the dummies. The enthusiastic freshmen were eager to learn more about CPR and were even more excited to apply those skills to the dummies.

Emotional Health was one of the units that the Health class studied this year. In this unit they learned how to deal with their emotions. Nutrition and Personal Health was another unit they did and the students were taught all the five food groups. In this unit they were informed about how to stay healthy and how to take care of your body. The Use and Misuse of Drugs was an important unit for the students because the teachers taught about the types of drugs, how to stay away and say no when they are around people using drugs, and they also taught about the side effects.

First Aid and Accident prevention was an informative unit for the students because they were taught what to do in case of an emergency and how to help a hurt victim. Posters were another hands on activity that the health students got to participate in a lot. The students liked doing the posters because they got to work in groups and then present their posters to the class. Many of the freshmen said that health was one of their favorite classes because of all the fun things you got to do in that class! Mrs. Schug and Mrs. Krebs also made the class fun for them.

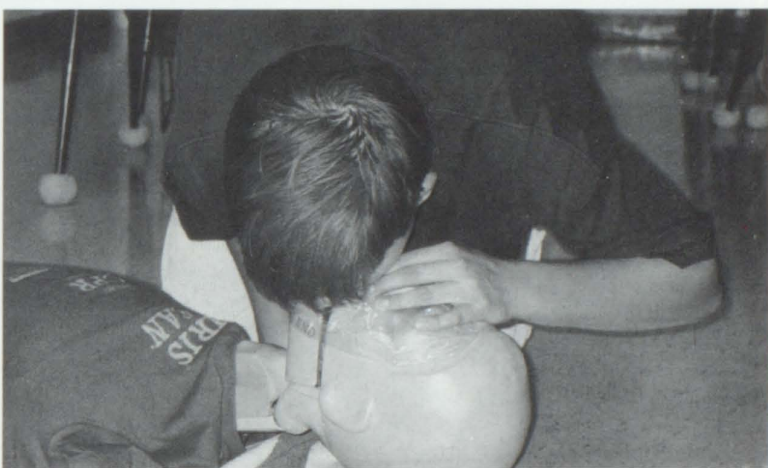

"Health was my favorite class this year! I learned so much in health that will be useful in life!" Freshman Daniel Reddings

NUTRITION AND PERSONAL

Freshman Daniel Reddings remembers Mrs. Krebs stressing that you should drink eight glasses of water a day. Daniel carries around his handy water bottle to show Mrs. Krebs that he's a healthy health student.

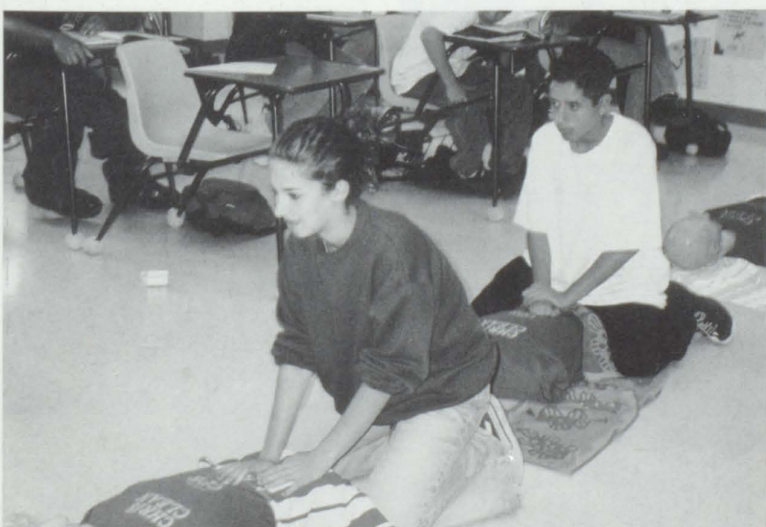

Cari Ham never knew that CPR would be this much fun. As she gives the dummy mouth-to-mouth she says to herself, "Wow, this is a lot easier than I thought it would be!" Cari never thought that she'd be a pro when it came to CPR.

As Conner Murchison tries out for his position on Baywatch, he blows into the mouth of the dummy. Conner is a pro at this, and Mrs. Schug compliments him and says she's really impressed!

"...6, 7, 8, 9, 10 breathe!" exclaims Lisa Brown as she tries desperately to get her victim breathing again. Lisa is doing a great job and she remembers that the next step that she has to do is to push on the victim's stomach.

Both Amy Valentine and Fernando Montejano kneel in front of their dummies as they try to start the CPR process. These freshmen are a little nervous, but Mrs. Schug assures them that they'll do fine.

Do You Hear What I Hear? (Band and Choir)

Middle right: David Perdue was caught during an intense moment as he concentrated on playing his instrument at the band's Winter concert.

Below: Johnny Bergloff was caught off guard by the flash of the camera while playing the violin. Arnold Stovall, however, was not distracted, as he continued to play his percussions.

Above: Jonathon Brown was waiting for his debut at the winter concert. Mr. Mitchell spent many hours preparing his students to perform at this event.

Above: Aaron Higgins got ready backstage along with the other band members. He was over-enthusiastic to show his saxophone skills.

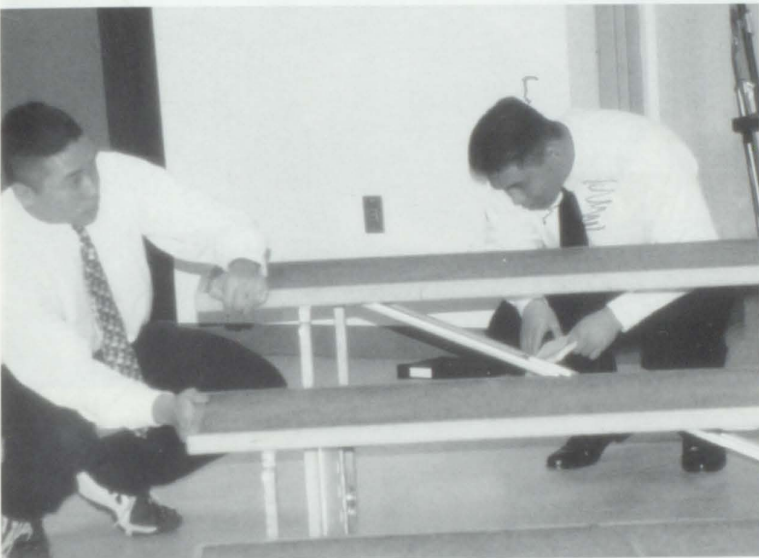

Above: Rebecca Garbedian amazed us all as she joined in with the other band students in playing the clarinet.

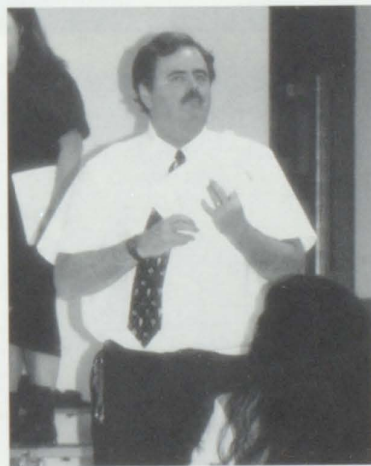

Above: Taken during the Winter Concert on December 17, 1998, the students in band performed their best in front of a huge audience. Most of the parents sat in awe of the hidden talents their children had. It was definitely a night of beautiful music.

The choir and band has had an impressive year. They practiced day in and day out on different tunes Mr. Mitchell had picked out for them. There has been a tremendous effort put out by both Mr. Mitchell and his students. Tim Lee, one of the advanced choir students, expressed his enjoyment of the choir class by saying, "I love choir!" Mr. Mitchell said that each year the students get better and better. The band and choir participated in four concerts this year along with parades and a performance at the homecoming game. The band also played at a number of Washington's football and basketball games.

Below: The Washington High School's advanced and beginning choir students met with other choir students from different high schools in Fremont. They practiced many songs in preparation for this event. The band was directed by Sally Dunlop who was accompanied by Lee Stevens.

Above: Clarisse Mesa, John Lough, Tim Lee, Diana Cangco, and Ron Yee spent some of their free time with each other at the all city band concert.

Left: Mr. Mitchell stood posed and ready to introduce his choir students to the audience. He has been teaching for twenty years, and spent sixteen of those twenty years at Washington.

Top photo, left: Sophomore Tiffany Martinez sang her loudest and thus kept the audience interested. This was her first year in advanced choir. Last year she was in beginning choir. Joining her were Aimee Dickson, Katrina Fingerle, Victoria Jones, Erin, and Cassandra.

Middle left: Elijah No and Ron Yee set up the stands for the concert in which they were about to perform. They came early just to help make things run smoothly for both the advanced choir and the beginning choir.

Left: The choir sang their hearts out to the song, "The Water is Wide," on December 17th at their Winter concert. This was one of the four concerts in which they participated.

Forget PepBoys and the dealerships! If you want it done right, trust Washington High School Auto!

Cars like it, Students love it!

Engines! Engines! Engines!

Cale Ledford leans over the open hood of a Buick Regal, attempting to find out if the battery's dead.

Sergio Sandoval puts oil into Del Clark's car and Garen Becker makes sure he's doing it right.

Greg Jonutz proudly displays his bug's engine after three periods of fixing a gaso-line leak.

Jay Kane, Cale Ledford, Stephen Holguin, and Garen Becker try to figure out what's going with the engine in Cale's truck with minimal success.

There's nothing like getting greasy and dirty during the school day. It's a great escape from all the other classes, auto students say, because it's what they like to do. While other kids are attempting to successfully mix chemicals and get their essays ready for English, these students are rebuilding engines, detailing cars, and rebuilding transmissions. Surely, it's one of the most loved classes on campus. It's also one that students take seriously. "Auto," one student said, "is like math in the sense that if you forget a step in the equation, you get the wrong answer. If you forget a step in rebuilding the engine, the car is not going to run right....if it runs at all." Mr. Slatkin makes sure that auto will keep its place as a great class here at Washington.

Check out the guys we found in auto.

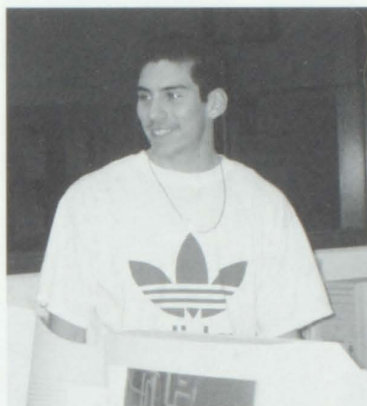

Mr. Slatkin along with Brian Smith, Sergio Sandoval, Garen Becker, Jay Kane, and Crosby Keiper were more than willing to get their picture taken before getting down to business for the day.

Pat Sullivan and Del Clark smile for the camera as Garen Becker leans down to ask their excuse for being late. It turns out that they had to jump start Melissa Horn's car before class. Better hurry, guys, Mr. Slatkin is not going to be impressed.

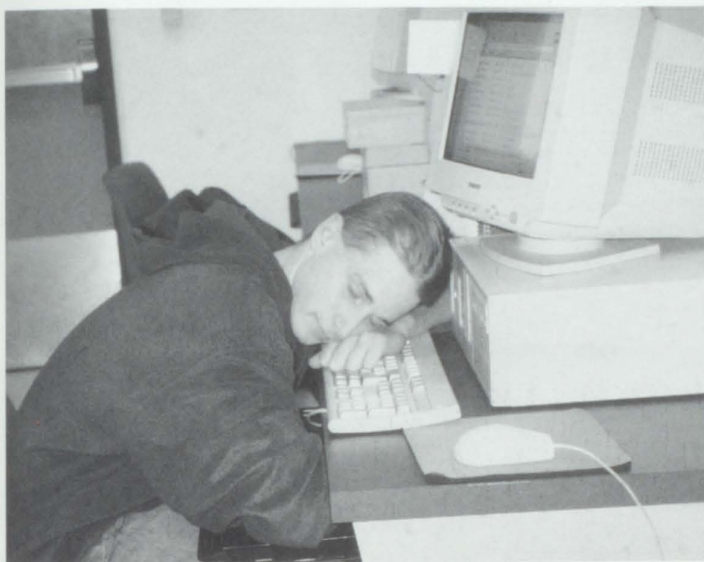

Business As Always

Some of the business classes are the computer classes where students can learn to type and learn how to interpret and operate a computer. In this they will certainly become succesful thanks to the teaching of Mrs. Hatland. She helps to develop each individual student's ability so that they can go as far as possible in the booming computer business.

"Hey, I'm done with the assignment!"
Alfredo "Jose" Madrigal stands around trying to get someone to change his screen saver for him.

Working together always works!
Below: Mrs. Hatland tells Kelly Morgan how to grade all the typing assignments as Kelly tries to get it done.
Below left: Will Wullenjohn tries to catch up on a little bit of sleep before getting back to his assignment.

You'd be amazed what's on the Internet.
After finishing her work, Angela Bingle serfs the net finding the web site full of funny jokes.

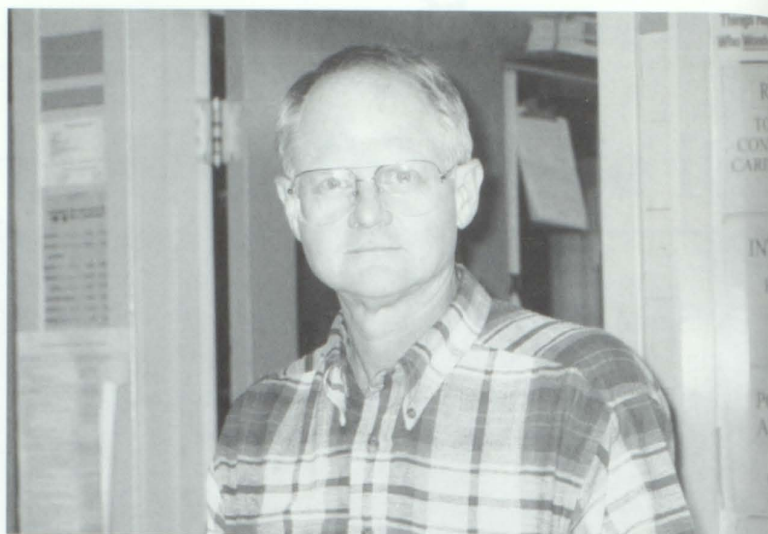

Two of a pair.
Tiffany Miller tries to explain the assignment to Will Wullenjohn as he looks on with interest.

Pumping Iron

Metals Class

Far Right: Mr. Soma, after a long day of teaching metals and woods, looks as though he just awakened from a nightmare of projects.

Right: Chris DeBelle sits and makes his blueprints before starting on a hard day's work. In the class you are taught to make blueprints before you start a project so that you can eliminate all of the flaws.

Every year Washington gives you a wide range of electives to choose from. Of those classes, two of the most interesting of them all was metals and woods class which are taught by Mr. Soma. This class prepares you for the future and may help you pick a career that you might want to pursue later on in life.

Above: Richard Sansoni, looking a little bored, is contemplating whether or not to actually start his work or to take a quick snooze.

Middle: Philip Lee, looking content, has just finished his metals project while Greg Rutherford wonders what Philip's project really is.

Brad Gallow works diligently as he tries to finish his masterpiece. He focuses intensely so that he doesn't slice his finger off.

Knock on Wood

Woods Class

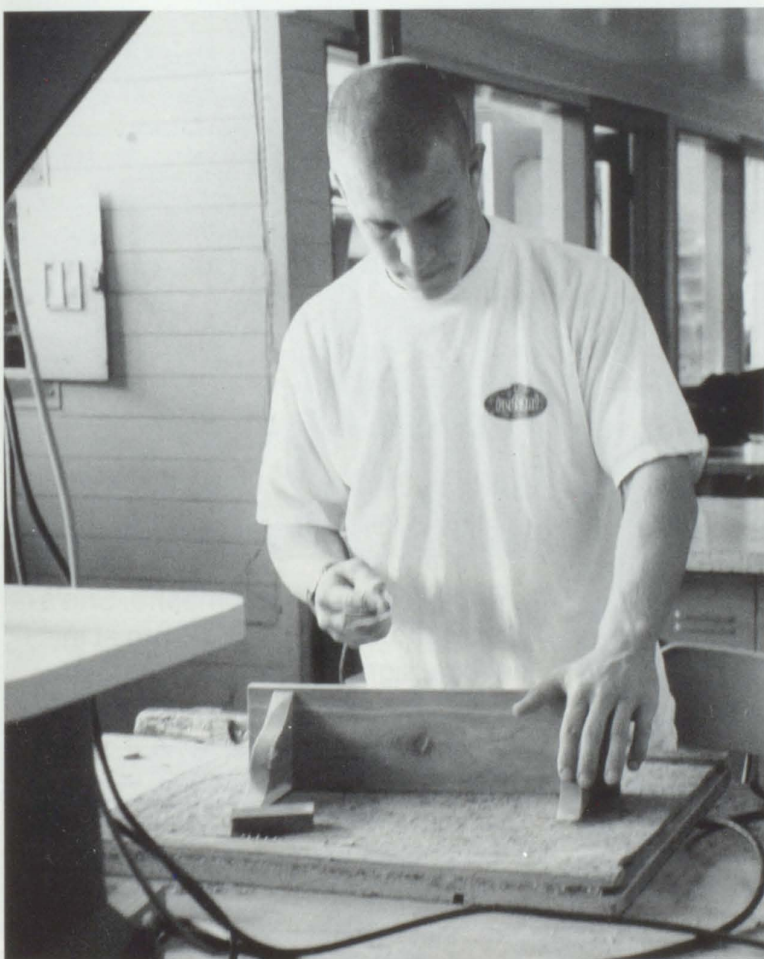

Left: James Abena uses a hand plane to smooth out his wood project which is a skateboard. He plans to ride this in his spare time.

Middle: While taking her time on her project, Jessica Bella sands her round piece of wood to perfection.

Below: It's just another day in wood shop where Ryan Grant is stoked to complete yet another wood project.

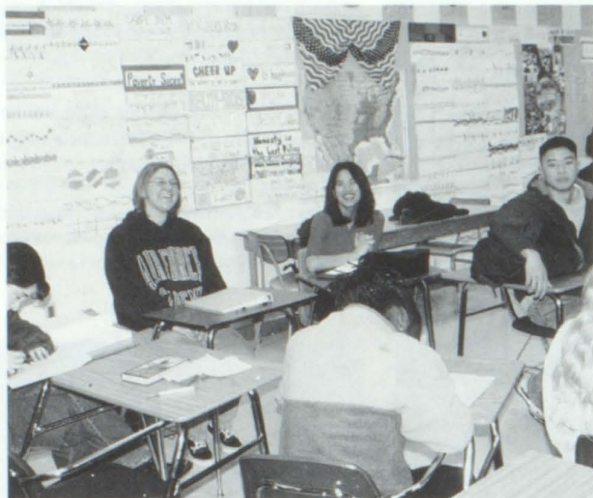

Rex Bajwa, Mark Martin, and Josh Garrett work as a team to complete their project. Mark Martin holds the nail and fears for his hands while Rex is about to slam it in.

Woof! Woof! Sergio Sandoval works diligently as he attempts to complete his dog bone.

Left: Senior Dan Garza is measuring his project to make sure that the sides are even so that he receives a good grade.

Julie Fuellenbach laughs at the site of her classmates trying to communicate to each other without the use of words. "They just look like a bunch of monkeys in a zoo begging for a banana!"

The class turns to see who's turn it is to get up and lead the next game. Senior Erin Harrison turns pale at the thought that she might have to do it.

Let's Talk About It...

Sociology is usually associated with scientific and medical terminology, but it is actually the study of human nature within society. Today's world may seem simple and bland, but is actually very complex and interesting. The class is always doing something new and innovative. Every week there are games, presentations, or posters to work on that involve actually getting out of your desk. One of their favorite activities is similar to charades. Groups are assigned and a presenter is chosen. The students then watch each group as they try to show a gesture such as saluting the flag or waving "Hello" and the class attempts to guess what they're doing.

The class is fairly new to W.H.S. With this only being its second year running, it has been doing very well. Many students enjoy the class and what it has to offer while others look forward to taking it in the future.

Sociology

Ever wonder "WHY?"

These students go above and beyond the call of duty.

Francis Tsui, a senior, points to an object in the classroom while the rest of her classmates ask questions about the object in order to find out what it is.

Boy Scouts honor! Zack Anderson, also a senior, tries to communicate to everyone without saying a word. Can you guess what he's struggling to say?

Sociology is the study of the origins, organizations, institutions, and development of human society. At least that's what old Webster's dictionary says. Many students may say Quick! somebody get a bucket! This comical junior, Reag Wood, flashes the international sign for choking. But don't worry, he's just part of the game. "We have serious moments, too."

Gina Congi, senior, shakes her hand as if meeting someone. She's an old pro at this game. "I love doing stuff that lets us get out of our desks and actually participate in the class," explained Gina Congi.

Psychology

Today's students, Tomorrow's shrinks!

"I really enjoy this class. It gives you a chance to learn about people and why they do the things they do. We're always doing fun projects and presentations. So far it's the class I look forward to the most every day."-Annie Tegner, senior.

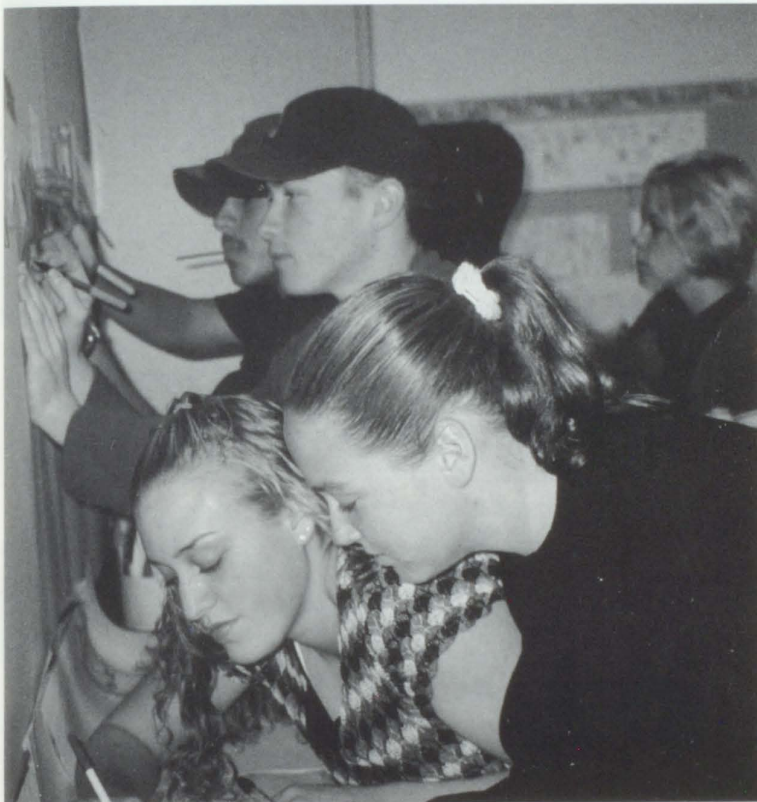

Erin Jones, junior- "When I first thought of taking psychology, I wasn't quite sure if it would be fun. But now I'm so glad that I did end up taking it. I recommend it to everyone. Even though we play games and stuff, there's also a serious moment every now and then.

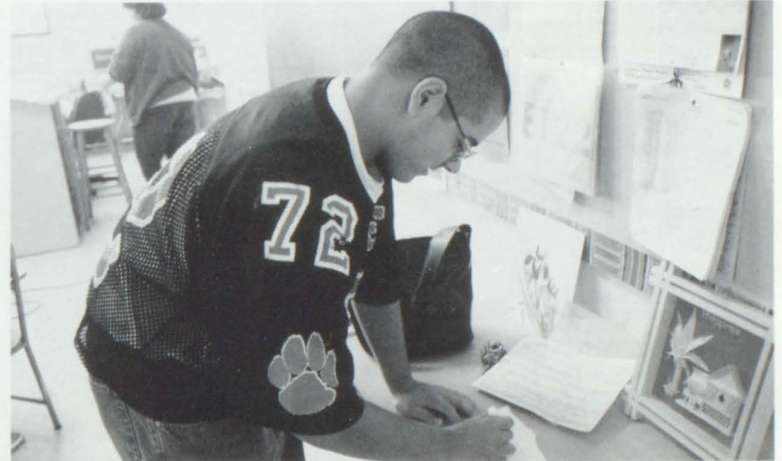

"The class is both informative and entertaining. Each day we have a new activity to do. I loved when we did our memory board. My personal favorite memory was when I took a vacation and flew for the first time."-Mary Walton, senior.

Christian Suchoski, junior- "Every day we do something new and interesting. I like doing the presentations the most and seeing how the class reacts to whatever I'm doing. Whether it's clowning around or being serious."

Seniors, Veronica Zebratski and Jessica Guerrero work together on their memory board. Neither one of them knows what to write down because there are so many memories that stand out. They're having a rough day, but it's already sixth period.

Procrastinators

Am I In trouble?

Alexis Valez, one of the many seniors in the sixth period class, gazes off and out the window to see her friends wave "Hello" as Mrs. Nelson informs her that she may continue with her presentation.

THIS AIN'T NO MONKEY BUSINESS

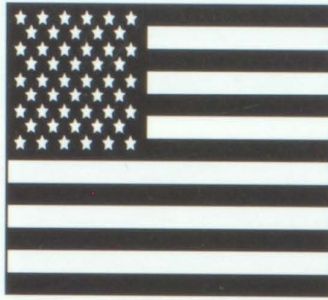

The mind boggling word-psychology- means many things. Old Webster's Dictionary explains in black and white that it is the study of human behavior. This year long class is fun, informative, and exciting. Student presentations are one of the highlights the class emphasizes. "I showed everyone how to make Gak. Observing the way they reacted when they touched the slime-like putty was the best part," explained Jason Adams, a senior who's very happy with the class. Some other activities go beyond the classroom, though, such as the memory board. It is a timeline made specifically for the students. Everyone writes down a special memory that means a lot to them personally. Some examples were moving into their first house, first kiss, road trip to Graceland like something out of a Chevy Chase movie gone terribly wrong, etc. Many feel that it's easier to work and pay attention more in class when they can relate to the given situation. That is where the memory board comes in. There are a variety of other activities that are involved in the class, but you'll have to take the class next year to find out what they are.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME; THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME.....

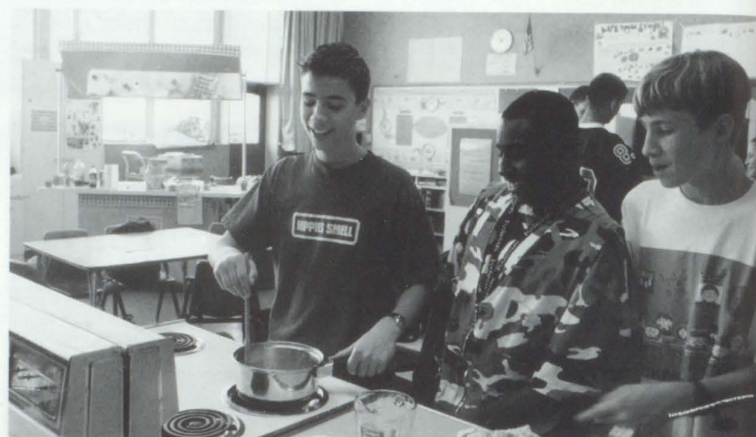

Going into the real world is hard and it takes some training and preparation. Some can say that it is the parents' job, but sometimes they can't do it alone. Therefore, someone else has to step in and help. That's when the importance of the lessons learned in Home Economics and Independent Living comes into play. For example you are taught how to sew, clean properly, and many other necessities to run a decent home. These necessities are also taught in Independent Living. This is a class that teaches you how to budget your money and prepare for realistic problems in life after your high school career. For example you learn how to write a proper resume and search for the perfect job of your dreams. So if you are ever feeling like you need some guidance in your life, remember that your school is here to guide and help you throughout life.

LET'S GET COOKING! Students Keith Scott, Tina Figuera, and Andy Paris are taking a break from the field to learn some cooking techniques.

HELP!!!!!! Andy Paris and Home Ec teacher Miss Robson collaborate on what ingredients to use. Even though you get a handout on what procedure to use, you still have to ask a teacher. Cooking can be tricky work.

STIR BABY STIR!!!!!! Something's smelling good in Miss Robson's 6th period class. Jason Hansen, Adrian Attaway and Matt Manchester are having a great time cooking some lemon meringue pie. I wonder how it tasted?

ME, MYSELF, AND I

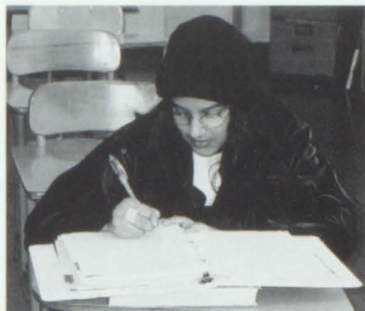

ALL TOGETHER NOW!!!! Students Jennifer Gibson and Dan Benard sit together in Independent Living and discuss their answers. Jennifer took the time to stop and comment about what she thought of the class. She reported that this class really shows you all of the necessities every growing adult needs to know.

I DON'T GET IT!?! Mrs. Schug is helping her students Jessica Estrada, Bill Manella, and Monica Pulido on a life skills worksheet. The point of this worksheet is to teach you how to realize your responsibilities in life. Jessica felt that this class was really a necessity. Mrs. Schug really likes the fact that she can teach her students what real life is all about.

ELD

LET'S LEARN!!!! Sasan Bakhtiari and Lowella Paulines are diligently working on a worksheet that brings them nearer to knowing English as well as their native language. They really are taking pride in completing it and understanding it.

Sheweta Kumari is trying to finish a worksheet that helps her to understand the language better. Learning any language is difficult, but from what we see, studying and hardwork is the only way to really understand. This works not only with a language but anything. Keep up the great work Sheweta.

English Language Development (ELD) is a new program here this year. Mrs. Fernandez, new to our faculty, has enhanced our curriculum with her specialty in teaching students who are not native speakers. Students are placed in this class because English is not their native tongue and they need assistance becoming fluent in English. They work as hard as any other class and do as much work if not more. They concentrate and really apply themselves. They really show that they are dedicated and want to know the language.

Mrs. Fernandez and student Abutin Andrey share a good laugh as Mrs. Fernandez shows Abutin where his mistake is. It's a good thing he has a good sense of humor about it.

Mrs. Fernandez stands in front of her class and instructs her students on what they should be doing. Mrs. Fernandez does a really great job, and she has the patience to help them accomplish their goal of learning English as well as any other native speaker. We really appreciate you Mrs. Fernandez.

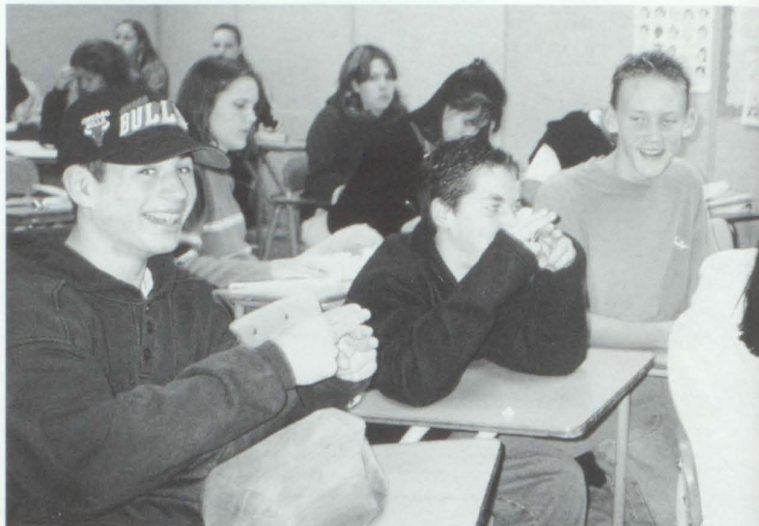

Rina Takeuchi is obviously concentrating really hard on finishing her worksheet. She didn't even notice that we were snapping her in action.

Sign of the Times

Jeremiah Pricer, Fernando Espinosa, and Nathan Baker practice signing their favorite song, "You can't touch this!" in the new ASL class.

Sarah Foster, Roxanne Piskel, and Amanda Lewis sit in their corner of the portable classroom as they diligently practice their presentation about "ABC" bubble gum.

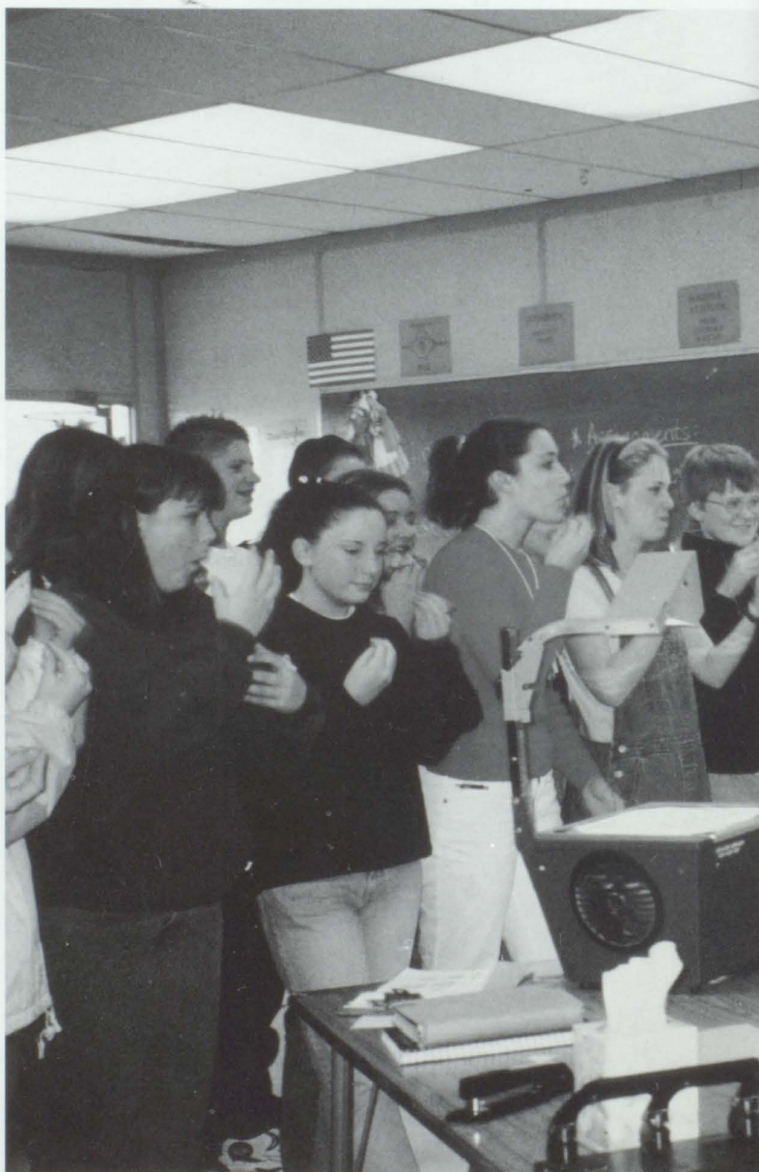

American Sign Language is making it's premiere at Washington this year because of popular demand. Many students felt it was time to move on from "muy Bien!" and "Bonjour!" Many campuses are offering fresh, new, modern courses, and W.H.S. is not one to live in the past. The deaf community is getting stronger and stronger in Fremont; and that's why many students felt this class would be useful and practical to take. There isn't an advanced course yet, but hopefully next year there will be so we can continue to learn this visual language. Sign language now, who knows what Washington students will be speaking in the future

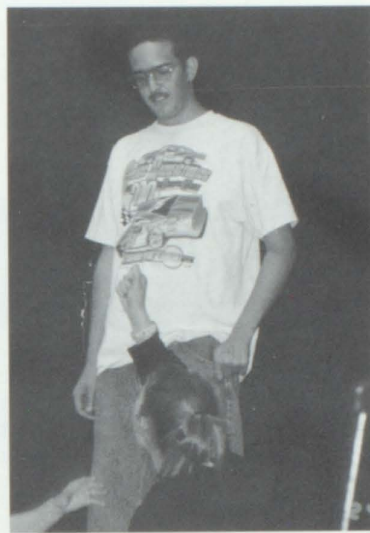

Above : Laura Lineback looks more like a basketball referee who calls out a traveling player than a student in an ASL class.

Middle: Can you figure out what sneaky Dana Duge, Stephanie Dillon, and Justin Jacobs were signing? It looks like they fingers were doing the walking, but they really were working hard to learn a new language.

Ms. Leighton's 2nd period class worked together in an exercise to help them "speak" sign language. They learned a basic skill that would be important to know how communicate for everyday life.

Lights, Camera, Action!

Opposite : During a drama class improv game, Carrie Enderby offers Joe Freitas a piece of candy, but he seems reluctant to take it!

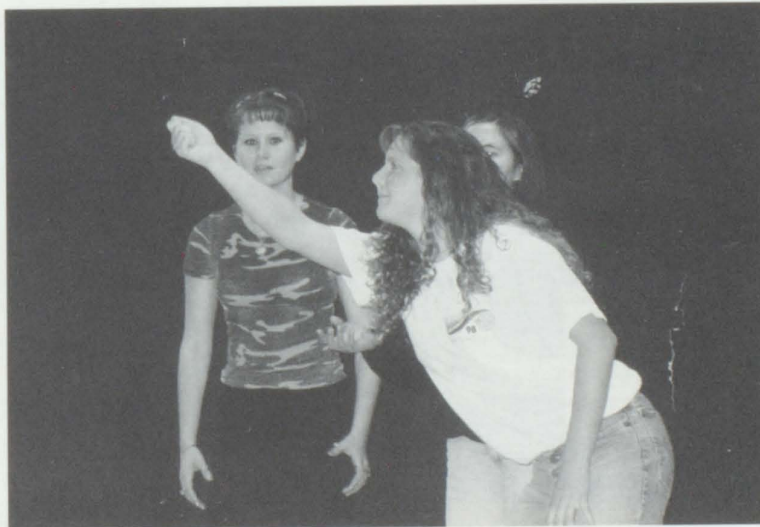

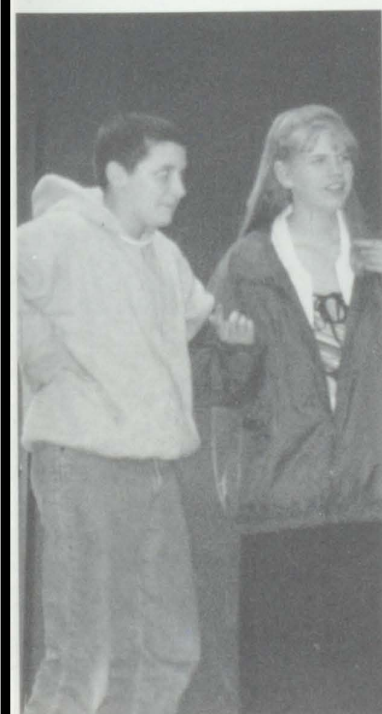

Below : An exercise done a lot to warm up in theater (as well as in Kristen Porter's drama class) is improvisation. In improv, the players are given a subject or suggestion at random, and from that the players create a scene off the top of their heads. Mary Green and Carrie Enderby attempt to start off a scene as Jessica Ibonie wonders, "What should I do next?"

"What's my motivation?"

You will most likely hear this when you walk into an advanced drama class at W.H.S. Of course, there are different levels of drama, I, II, III, and IV. Drama I and II are mostly based on getting over stage fright, learning the basics of improv, and performing scenes. In Drama III and IV, you get more in depth with scenes, learn about the acting industry, and even do some video producing and editing which is new for Drama IV this year. For those who want to do acting professionally, it's a great class to get in as much info as you can before playing the field. If you want to get out there and express yourself, it's a great way to boost your self-esteem.

P.S. Still no theatre!!

Middle : Amy Cabrera and Jamie Bellini attempt to rip Kelly Cavanaugh in two as Lexie Rohrman tries to counsel them to rethink their decision.

Above : Valentina Fey "hangs her clothes on the line carefully" as Heather Konkel prepares to steal them in the game of Forward / Reverse.

In the game of "Fresh Choice," Christina Grunert is offering to sell Fred Ibonie, but there seems to be no buyers which angers Fred.

The children and their parents anxiously awaited the arrival of Willy Wonka for their tour of the Chocolate Factory.

After the play, the cast on opening night got together excitedly to take a picture. Everyone looked happy because they had a smooth opening night.

These three Oompa-Loompas, Jaime Baslee, Meghan Boundy, and Melissa Speer formed a pyramid in their hilarious act. They really spiced up the play.

Matt Close, as Willy Wonka, knew that Tonya Glanz, as Violet, was in for a big surprise when she tried his flavorful bubble gum before it had reached its completion.

Matt Close, Jonathan Foltz, Carrie Enderby, Nathaniel Vincench, Nick Noard, and Joe Freitas were jolted every which way in the Chocolate Factory's elevator.

Brian Heater and Matt Close listened closely as Ryan Hamond, as Augustus, made sure that everyone knew just how hungry he was.

"I want an Oompa Loompa! Daddy get me one of those. I want to take one home!" said Veruca Salt played by Jaime Bellini.

Matt Close led the cast through the Chocolate River. As you see they were having a wild ride! That gleam in his eyes kept his visitors wondering.

Laura Lineback was the play's narrator. She was a natural born storyteller.

"I've Got The Golden Ticket!"

Drama productions have proved to be entertaining and they epitomize the determination that our talented young actors/actresses display.

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory was the fall production this year. The play was cast extremely well and was full of life and enthusiasm.

The play was a perfect projection of the story. Charlie and the Chocolate Factory is the story of a young boy who is pulled away from his everyday life and brought into the mysterious and wonderful world of Mr. Wonka's Chocolate Factory. Along his way Charlie is accompanied by many children who don't end up as lucky as Charlie in the long run.

Throughout the production the audience was brought through all of the fascinating rooms of the factory. Scenery, props, and the costumes were all custom-made and really helped to enhance the production.

"Life is a never-ending series of deadlines one right after the other. Working with yearbook fits me because I take deadlines seriously and stress drives me. I'm an achiever and so are the students in this class." - Mrs. Howerton

"They're extremely stressful! You have to get everything done on time. If you're a procrastinator you spend the whole day before the deadline trying to hurry and get things done." - Megan Pratt

"Deadlines are the weeds in my garden of rainbow roses. I like 'em, they make life more emotional. =) Umm...no, just kidding. They are very stressful and cause unhealthy aggression." - Sarah Reid

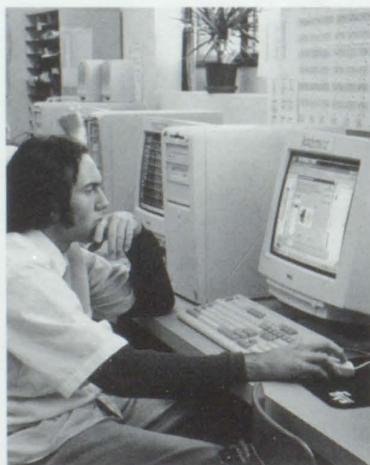

"I think they are good for everybody. Everyone needs a little stress in their life. We are full of pressure now, but it's worth it in the end." - Jeff Beck

Monica Chavez observes carefully as Tonya Glanz measures her cropper. Tonya is ready to crop the pictures for her next exciting layout. The pictures will then fit the page correctly.

Deciding on a piece of clip art, Richard Watson? With the new YearTech and Adobe PageMaker softwares installed in the Yearbook computers, Richard is now able to pick and choose the clip art and layout design that he pleases. My...what technology can do for us!

One down and 9,999,999 deadlines more to go! It's okay, the yearbook staff can handle anything when challenged with stress, pressure, and perfection. "We take pictures-1, we also crop it-2, we then make copies-3, and that is what we do! Oh...we take pictures-1..."

How did they do that? Haven't you ever wondered how the yearbook was put together? The yearbook editors started the year early in August attending a Bay Area Yearbook Seminar run by Jostens that was held at Stanford University. The rest of the staff were then taught photography hints, different layout designs, and tools for effective writing. We put in tremendous time and effort taking pictures, cropping, and editing our pages so that we make sure it meets the deadline. Don't think it's all work and no fun. Oh no! Not only are we talented at putting together a double page layout; we also celebrate our staff's birthdays with birthday cakes and balloons. As our staff puts long hours of dedicated effort into the yearbook, we find it to be well worth it. We have you to thank for many years of memories to come and many years of memories to remember.

Lucky Mrs. Wilson! She is just receiving the latest news over the phone. It seems to be quite serious by looking at the expression on her face. Goodness, I know this story will be front page in the next Hatchet.

Working hard on the job? Here's what Clarisse Mesa has to say: "Staying at school until 11:00 on paste-up nights is exhausting! (Thank goodness for One Hour Photo and TacoBell). Being an editor of The Hatchet has been a great experience!"

"Hmmm...what should I dig up for my next article?" Miranda Daniel, Marc Chiesa, Brian Heater, and Meghan Boundy ponder ideas for their next story. They seem very comfortable in their computer room, adjacent to Mrs. Wilson's room, E221.

Michael Walch is quick to think of ideas so he rushes over to his desk to jot them down. He is careful to put them safely in his folder so that he won't lose them.

What goes into the making of The Hatchet? Interviews. Watching games. Taking stats. Writing a good lead. Rewriting. Meeting deadlines. Long paste-up nights. And TA-DA! You receive the finished product every other Friday.

Yes, it's a lot of work, but The Hatchet is one of the many avenues in which to inform and recognize WHS students. Journalism also provides students the opportunity to have their opinions heard. After all, "The pen is mightier than the sword."

"aLL the NeWs thAt's fiT to PriNt"

Not only are Jewelyn Almazan and Jennifer McClain talented writers of The Hatchet, they sure are excited to read their own articles. Here they are enjoying a good laugh at what Jewelyn wrote about the powder puff cheerleaders.

Takin' a break, Alex Rohrig practices on his electric guitar and singing at the top of his lungs. Frank Salvatore catches the beat and sings along. This is what the boys do to relieve the tension from paste-up nights.

With all the great teachers that run the P.E. department, students are bound to keep P.E. long after it's required.

Survival of the Fitness

"Batter...batter...batter...swing! And it's a HOME RUN. Way to go, Trevor Thompson!" Next thing you know, he'll be our next Mark McGwire.

Before any weights were lifted, Coach Jones went over the instructions, using Mike Shima as an example for the class. Mike Shima nervously at the 2 big heavy weights. However, he was certain the weights were no big deal to him.

Heidi Gentry tried hard to push that bar upward, but everytime she tried she ended up in bursts of laughter. Joining her was her spotting assistant, Lacy Kuhlmann. Aren't we having too much fun here girls?

Leading the pack, David Saenz walked with pride. After having scored a point for his team, David was eager to score yet another one. Tag football can be such a blast.

Especially with Washington's love for sports, Physical Education is definitely one of the most popular and loved classes on campus. Although P.E. is only required for two years, students continue to enjoy taking additional years proceeding the requirements. Playing fleetball in the rain, or swimming first thing in the morning is all apart of the fun of taking P.E. The teachers make it even more of an enjoyable class with their motivation and effort to promote team effort. P.E. is rewarding and fun. It motivates the students to get up and exercise!

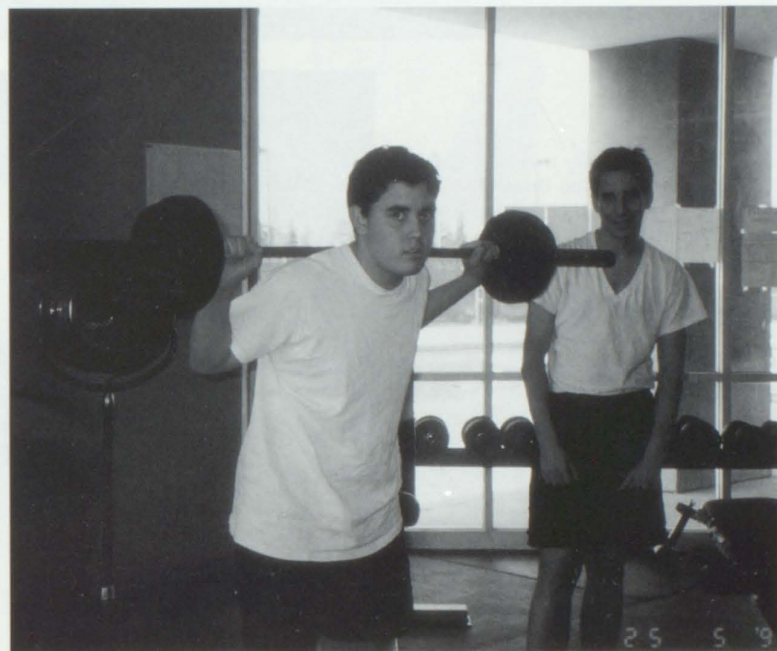

While Michele Celino was strapped and ready to lift, Lindsay Sampson got together and watched Tim Harris use his powerful biceps to lift a 25 lbs. weight. Teamwork is the key to having fun in P.E.

Two strikes and bases loaded. Ready at home plate, Chris Haywood was more eager than ever and was determined to get someone out.

Tilted back and in position, Nick Barba was ready to throw that football far down the field as possible. Nick has potential to be the next Steve Young.

As the spotter, Chris Clifton made sure that Joseph Cattaneo didn't fall over. But with a strong guy like Joseph, lifting a little weight was nothing but toying around. What a guy!

"Yeah! Yeah! . I finally caught the ball," was what Ray Epps was probably thinking when he was jumping up and down. Jared Snelson was patiently waiting for the ball while Chris Haywood stepped back and was ready to play some ball.

This school year was a challenging one for the math department. The department has fully implemented the school district's new math curriculum while integrating seven new teachers into the program. New teachers Mr. Brady, Ms. DeGroat,

Mr. Leong, Mr. Morris, Mr. Neiman, Mr. Sugden, and Ms. Ventura brought experience and some first-year teaching to the department.

Washington was recognized this year for its outstanding results in the CAML tests, while also receiving recognition for high scores in the Golden State Exams in the algebra, geometry, and high school math categories. In addition, teachers were looking forward to excellent scores on the state-wide tests. Good job students!

The Root of all Knowledge

Carrying on the Husky tradition, Phillip Eskew, Josh Gadd, and Brian DiMarino worked as hard in their math class as they did out on the field.

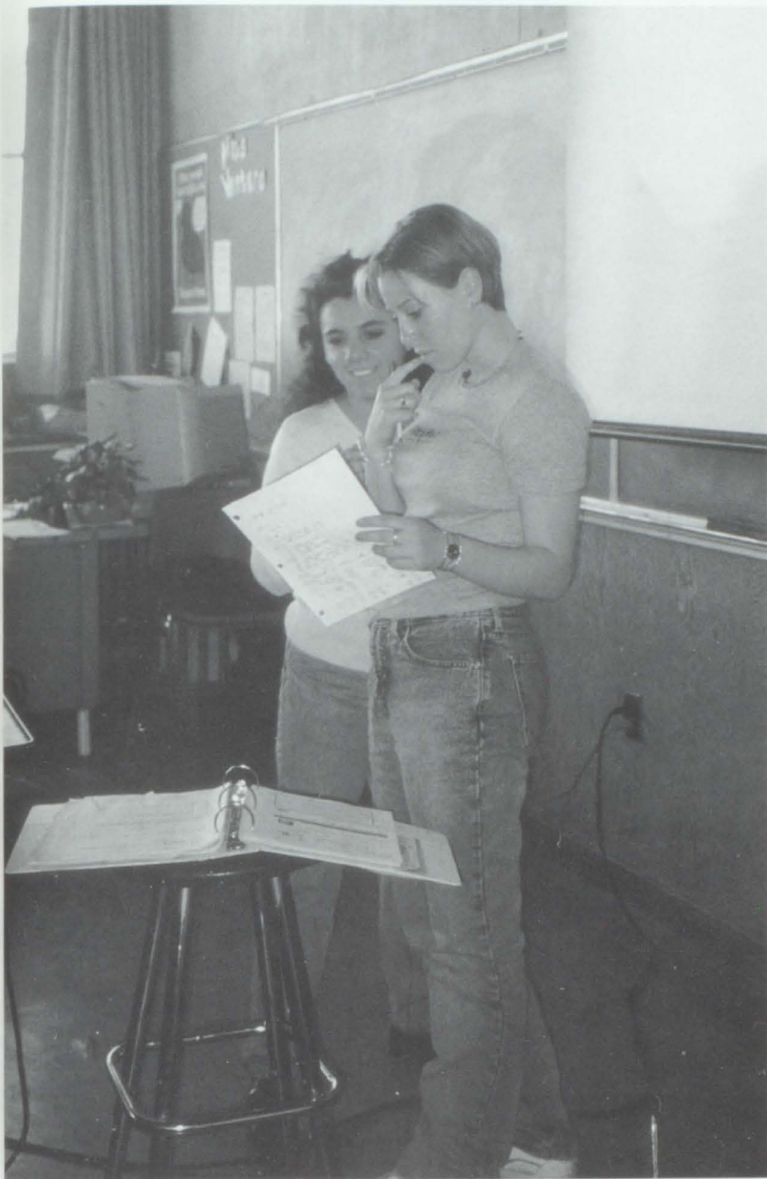

Asib Akimi paid attention to Mrs. Joseph in his Integrated 3 math class.

Senior Garrett Lawrence was concentrating on getting his math homework done in class.

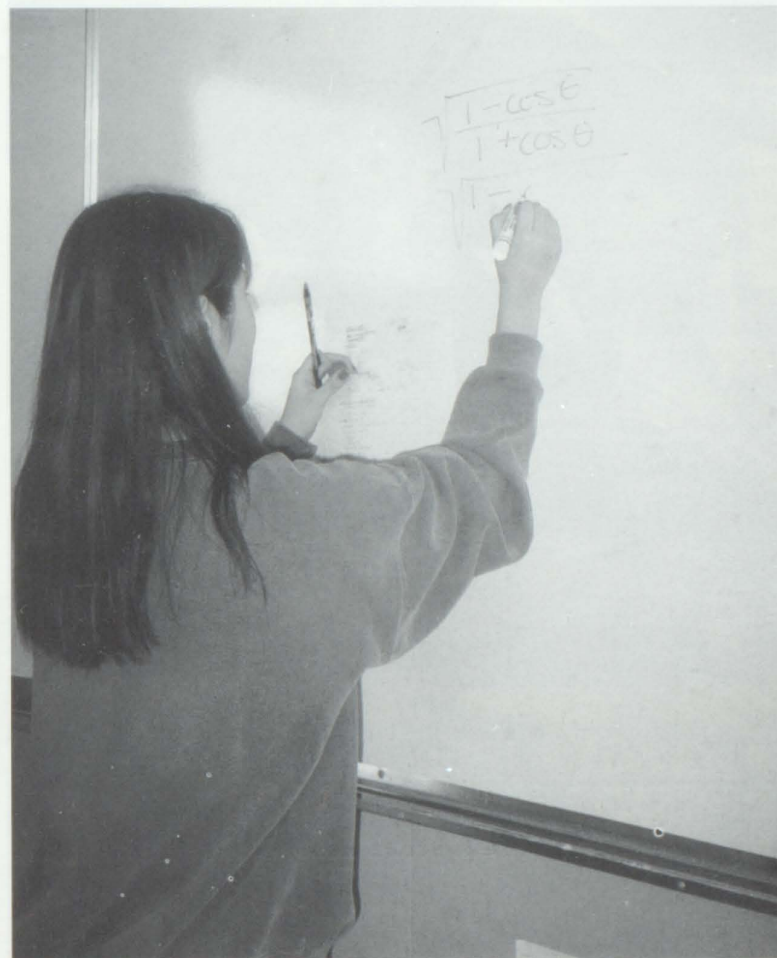

On a day when Mr. Hankin was away from class, Fabian Martinez and Orlando Cuarezma puzzled over the correct way to do their precalculus problems.

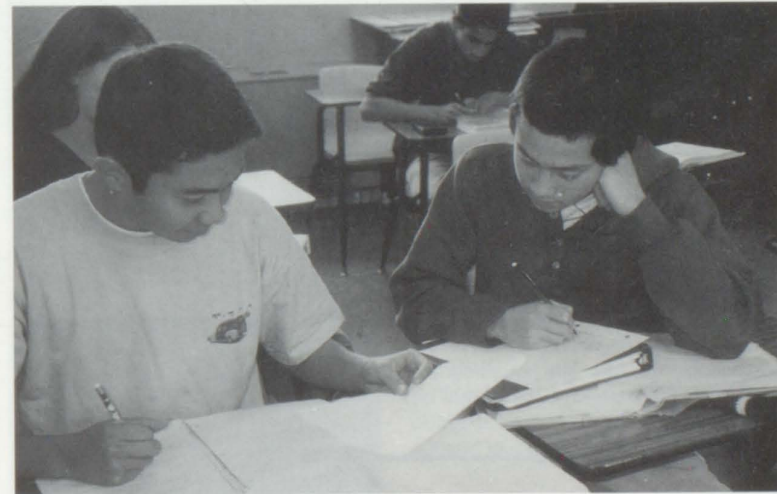

Freshman Stephanie Maille got some help from Ms. Ventura on her CPM 1 math problems.

Eunji Cho was confident in her precalculus abilities as she showed her class how to do a trigonometry problem.

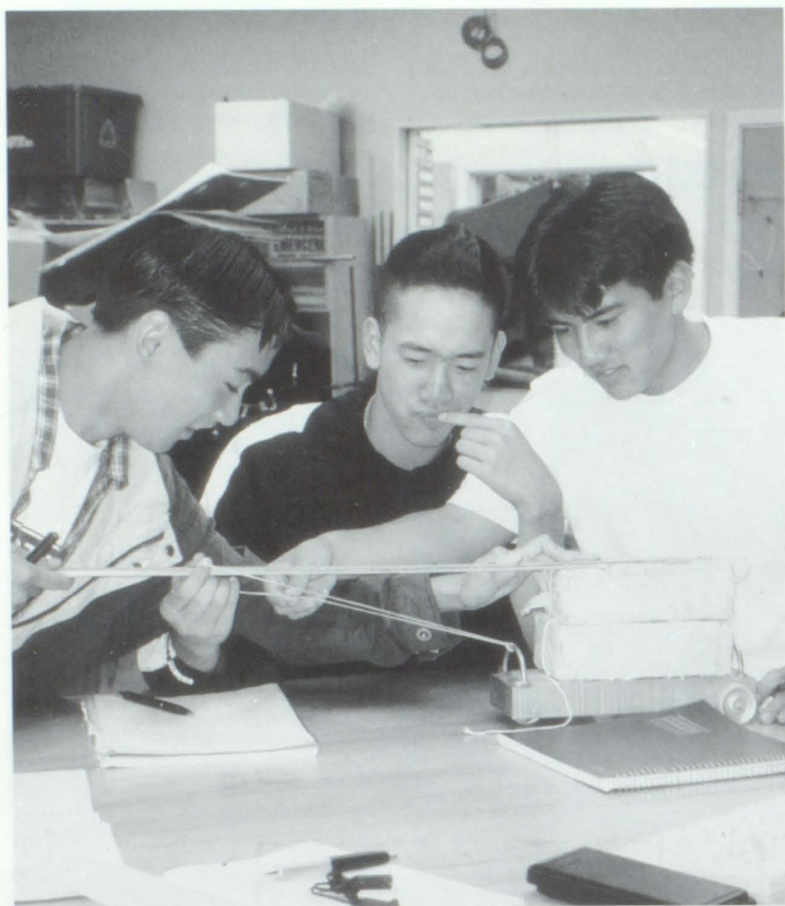

In their fifth period calculus class, Mary Walton and Jewelyn Almazon laughed as Jon Nishwitz raised his hand for the first time all year.

Caught in the act, Zach Chin and Will Uhlig shared answers to some precalculus homework.

"Hmm...32 cm wide, 2 bricks thick, and a 12 degree angle!" John Lough, Tim Lee, and Brent Mori tried to figure how their cart would win the race in Physics. Good luck guys!

Matt Rogers and Laura Santos were having a blast washing the test tube. As Matt recorded the results, Laura rinsed the tubes to start a new experiment. What a team!

"Anatomy...Biology... Chemistry...Zoology... Science and Technology..."

Don't you think it's so much fun when we do labs? Oh yeah, do you remember the frog dissections? How about the bone lab in Anatomy? Let's not forget the infamous worm dissection in Biology. Whatever the project or lab was, your science teacher made sure that you knew what you got your dirty little hands on. It is said that we learn better when we do hands-on labs rather than hear endless lectures.

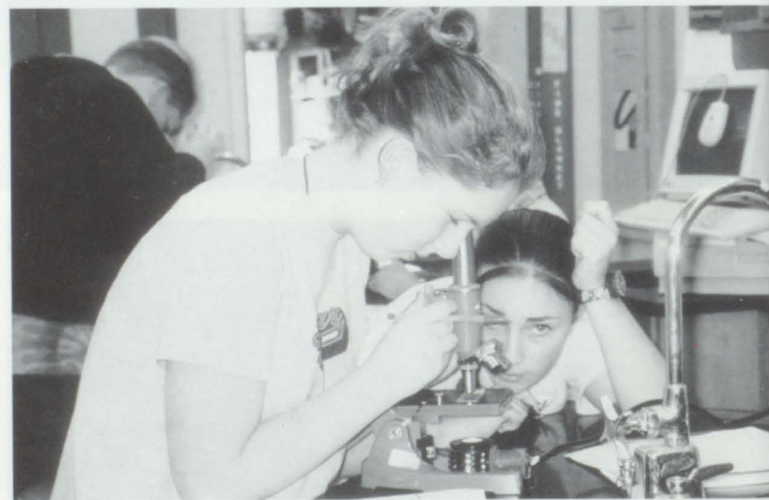

Now if you ever cross a frog or worm again, it will trigger your memory. You will think back on the time you dissected them in science. "Ohh...how fun!!!" =)

Mr. Zlatnik was trying to pick out the bone that fell in the sink. He was so brave to do such dirty work.

Look!! The colors changed right in front of your face. Wow, the things that you learn in Chemistry.

Malia Tidwell concentrated on her slide; she closed one eye and made adjustments on the microscope. Her lab partner Sarah Foster made sure Malia had everything under control.

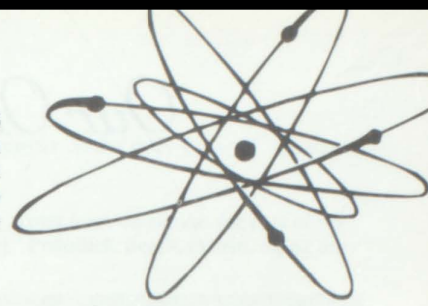

Carefully one drop after another, Kathy Loughran made sure that she didn't lose count, or else she would have to start all over again.

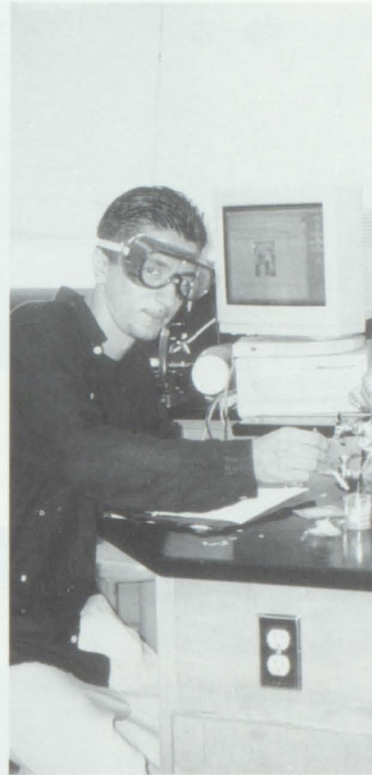

Molecules rule!!!

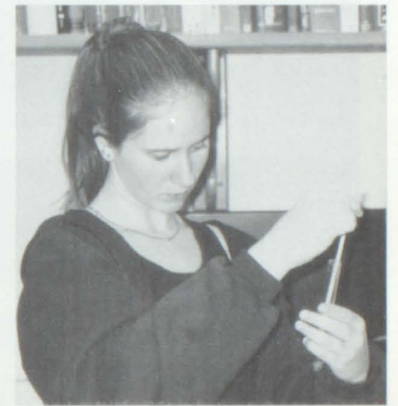

Oh boy, it's boiling time! After waiting 5 minutes for the results, Stacey Gordon was ready to pull out her test tube from the boiling water. However, her lab partner Kelli Godshall was about to place hers in for a separate result.

Safety first! Wali Mojaddidi made certain that he put on his safety goggles before he attempted to do anything in the laboratory. He knew he was dealing with some extreme chemicals, so he used precautions to protect himself.

Science is somewhat like cooking. You need utensils, ingredients, and directions on how to go about a particular lab. As you can see, Jessie Winsted was stirring to mix her ingredients right.

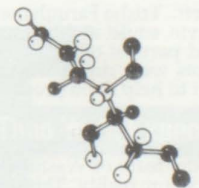

Gautam Singh was lost. He didn't remember which test tube was his. "Eenie, Meenie, miney, mo...catch a tiger by the toe..if it hollers let it go..eenie, meenie, miney, mo." He finally decided it was the one on the right.

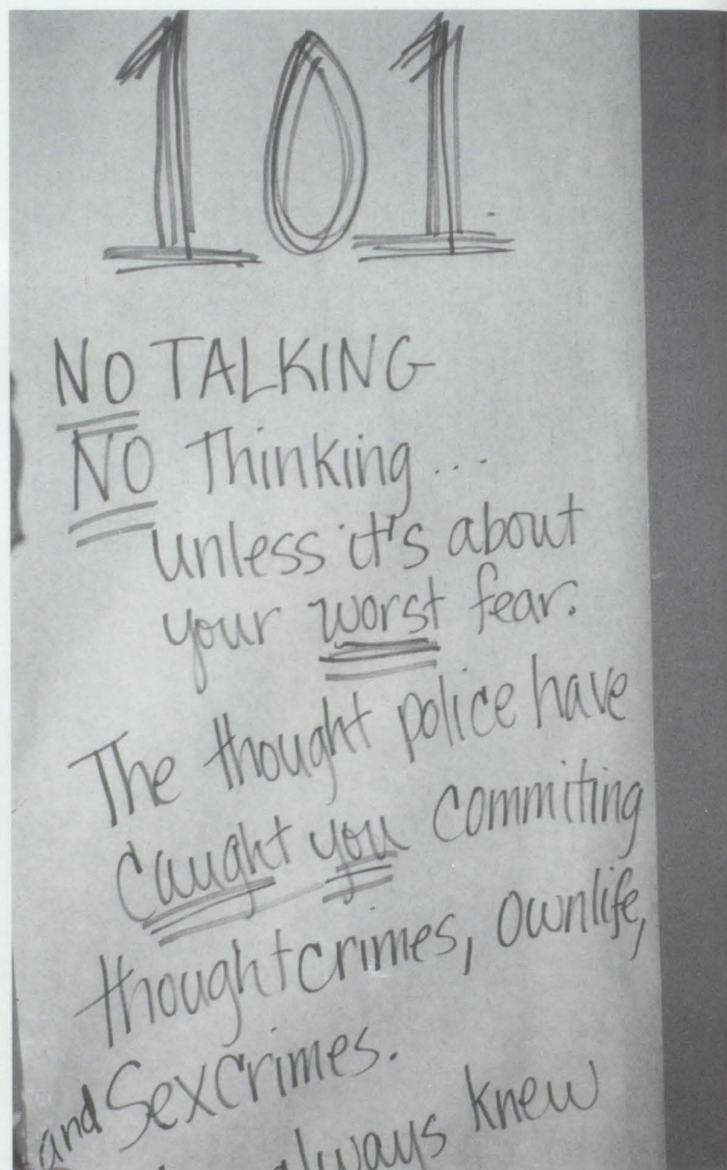

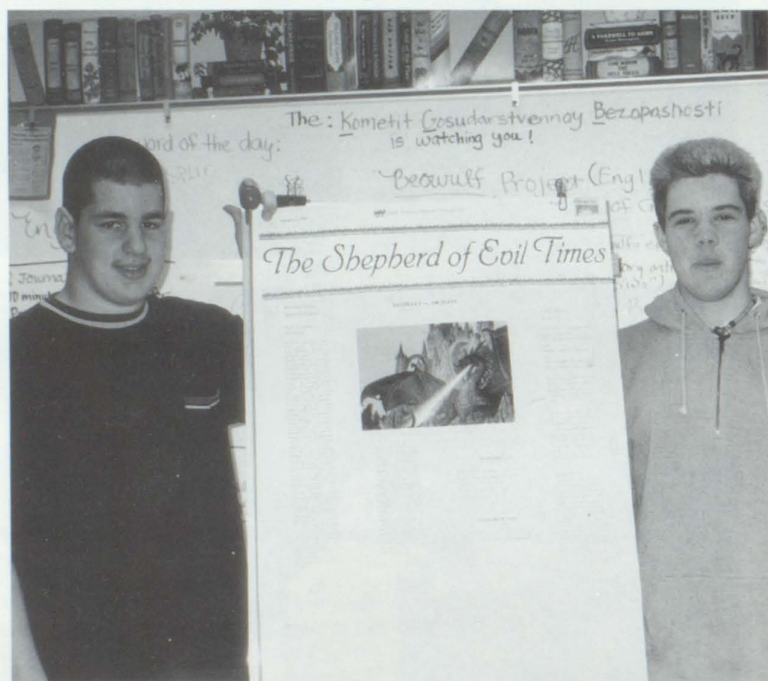

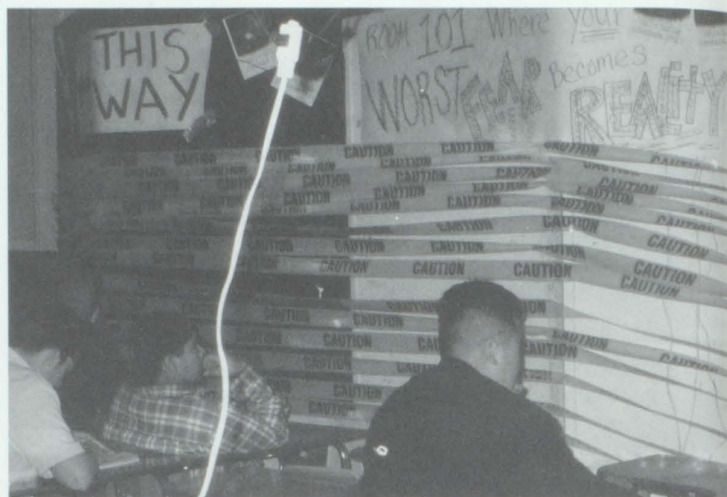

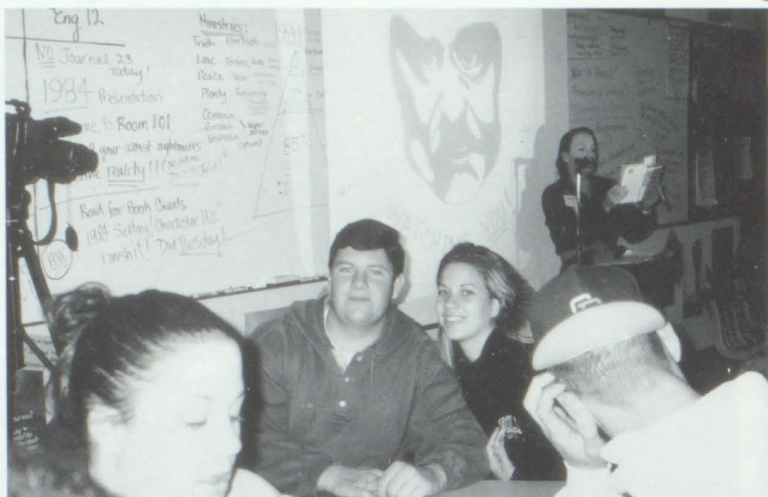

Mr. Kato tried to readjust the microscope for his student during a blood cell lab. In doing so, he was amused to find a creepy crawler in that particular slide.

"What is that? Oh my goodness, it's my skin up close!" Mayra Montejano was amazed at how her skin looked under high power of the microscope. What an awesome machine!

Our Origins, Our Culture, Our Language English

Some people think that English is just about writing essays and reading novels. The English classes here at Washington include a lot more. The English classes help us learn to prepare for college and the future ahead. In most of the English classes they turn boring assignments into fun group activities such as acting out plays, short stories, or presenting visual projects.

Top Left: Trisha Farquhar and Brian Langevin smile as Ms. Pavlecic reviewed parts of the book 1984. The students were doing a multi-media project to help them prepare for the test.

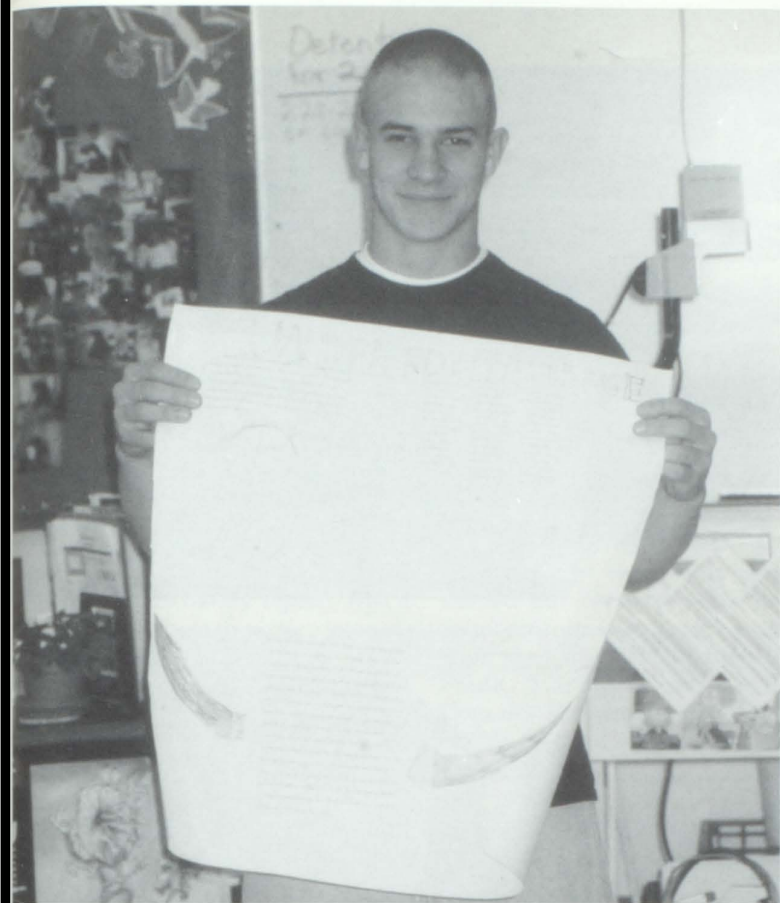

Top Right: This is the wall that separated the fears of Washington High Seniors from reality. This project was related to the book 1984.

Brian Amador and Jeff Larson gave us a look at their detailed poster which explained the scene of Beowulf vs. Dragon in the story Beowulf.

The rules of 1984 are explained to the students as they walked into Ms. Pavlecic's room and prepared to take part in the project. The students were not allowed to think for themselves and were forced to be ruled by an outside force. This project was designed by Ms. Pavlecic and Mrs. Howerton for their English 12 students.

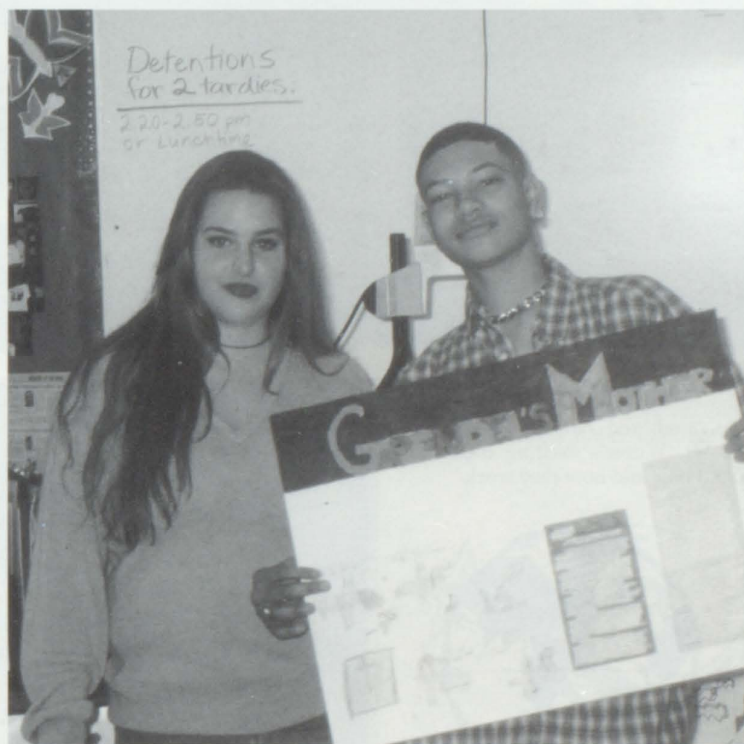

Left: Dan Garza proudly displayed his poster on the story Beowulf. As usual, he gave an awesome oral presentation.

Below: Here students had to draw their worst fears on canvas for part of the Pavlecic/Howerton class project on 1984. Prejudice, death, racism, aging are some examples. What do you fear?

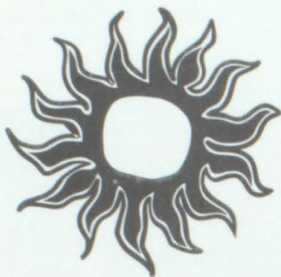

Allicyn Luchesi smiled proudly as she held up her Tewksbury Times newspaper from the story Miracle Worker so that everyone could admire her nice work.

Leslie Thurman and Derek Johnson presented their poster on Grendel's mother from the story of Beowulf. Derek looked happy because he felt that he was going to receive a good grade on his poster.

MORE Than You'd Expect

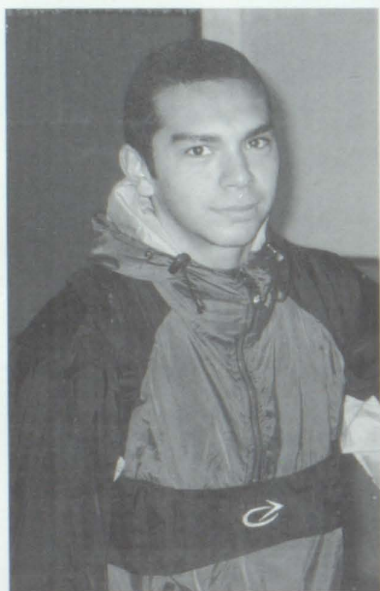

Right: Hello there! During her Economics class, Kelly Stevens was showing her great interest about the latest update on supply and demand.

Below: Here comes the Sun! Dao-Hang Sun that is. He was in deep thought about what Mr. MacLeod was reporting on the latest issues about the Stock Market.

Middle Right: Down Girls! Nick Maurer and Shaun Nassir took a brief moment out of their Economics assignment to flash us those studly smirks. If looks could kill...

Above: You're late! Fabian Martinez was caught red-handed. He was late for Mr. Witter's exciting dicussion about bills and how they work.

Above: Lacey Chittle concentrated intently on the lecture Ms. Morse was giving in December. Her interest in U.S. History resulted in outstanding grades.

Right: During her World History class, Cassandra Mesa grinned with delight at remembering that the Nile river is in Egypt, not Brazil.

Where the Past Comes Alive

History

World History is a class full of fun and adventure. Students in the class did country reports which allowed them to explore interesting places and cultures. Travis Newman worked diligently on an in-class assignment. Way to go Travis!

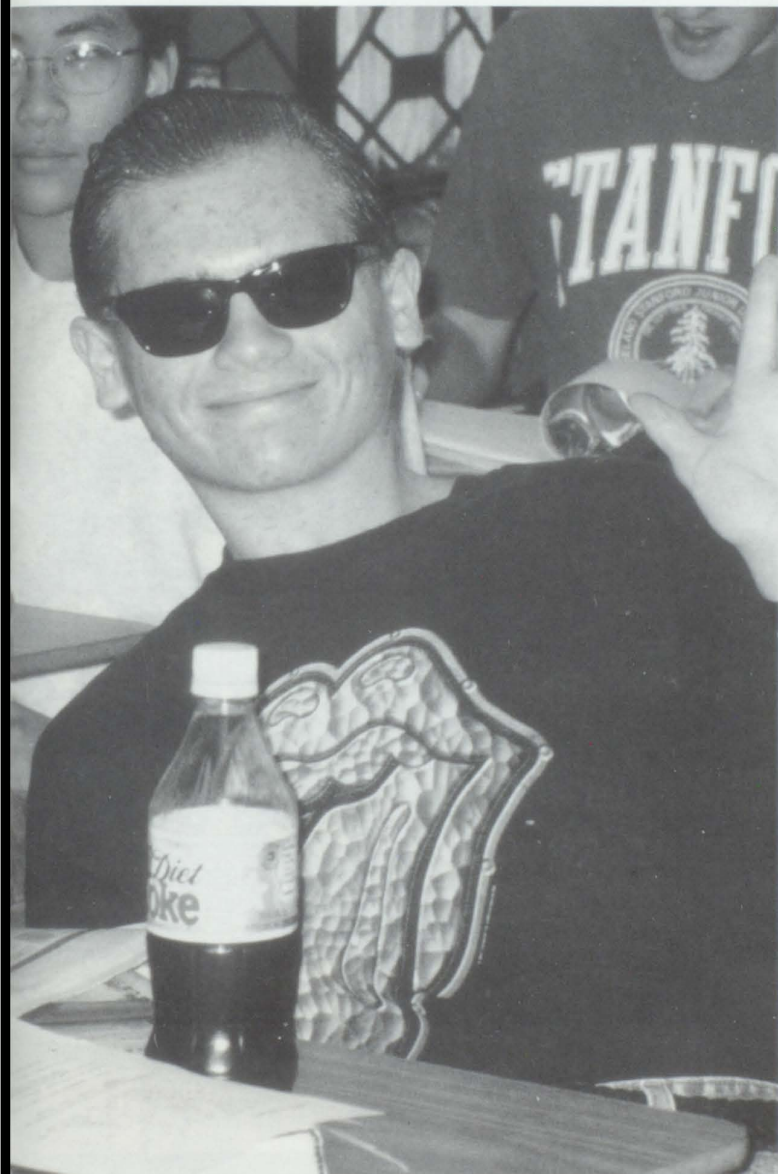

U.S. History broadens students' knowledge of the events that shaped our country. Students seemed to form strong bonds with their teachers. David Camello, Frank Martinez and Chris Gonzales showed their passion for Mr. Dawson, a teacher who is looked upon highly.

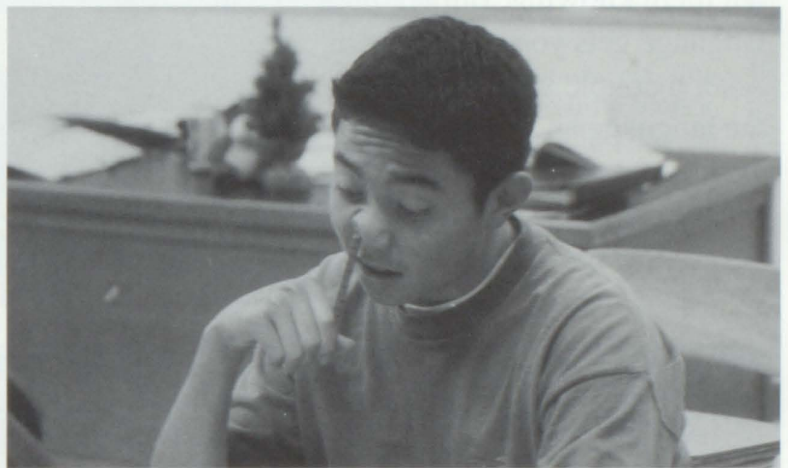

Economics allows Washington High seniors to learn how our money is used throughout the United States government. Students learned about stocks, wages, and taxes. Jessica Guerrero takes notes during a discussion about interest rates.

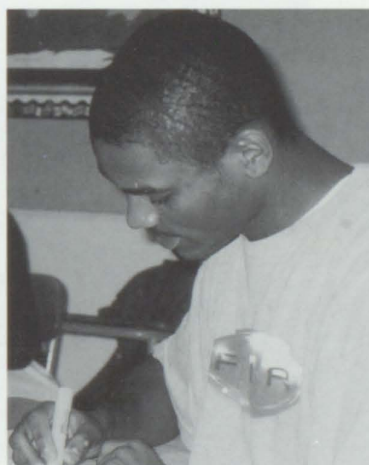

The Government class at Washington High gives seniors a taste of what the people within our government do. Students took part in a mock trial in which they debated on issues concerning our government. Romualdo Arayata thought of ways to support his opinion on euthanasia.

Above: Greg Betchart has got the right stuff baby! Sun glasses and Diet Coke made his U.S. History class even more interesting.

Above: William Uhlig was concentrating intently on his U.S. History assignment. He was taking a rather hard-nosed approach Above: Mike Haywood was doing a jump shot for government class. He was putting finishing touches on his government project.

Speaking In Tongues

Language barriers are the last thing we need in America. With all the differences in the world congregated in one country, who has time or the energy for a communication breakdown?

Aside from being a requirement for graduation, second language has some potential usefulness. Some reasons are obvious: speaking with people of another language or insulting people without them knowing. But learning a second language gets you motivated to travel. After a couple years of learning about the language and culture, you have no excuse not to travel to Mexico, or France, or Germany (except for time, airfare, passport, and the weather).

"Look!" exclaimed Christina Ronquillo. She held up her Spanish 1 book displaying it proudly. Tre Switkowski looked over and checked out what the lesson was for that day. "Mira, amigo. Mira!"

Freshmen Bradley Schexnider, didn't waste a minute on his Spanish 1 homework. He was what they called "mucho pronto," meaning very fast.

Brian DiMarino, a sophomore, was serious about taking notes in his Spanish 2 class with Senor King. Armed with his Spanish glossary, Brian was ready to tackle any words Senor King threw out.

Accounting can be fun!

Brent Mori, Monica Patrone, and James Suh displayed their accounting workbook that instructor, Mrs. Blei, assigned homework in every night.

Meghan Krauss and Nicole Thomas posed for a quick one in the Nursing class offered for students who were looking for a career as a nurse. "It's really great to get a chance to sample what it might be like to be an active nurse," commented senior Meghan Krauss.

Christina Chandler played doctor to Kristie Audiat in their Sports Therapy course. When asked why they were taking the class, Christina replied, "I'm not sure what to do with my life so I thought I'd try my options out and take Sports Therapy and see if I like it."

Seniors Lyndsey Turner, Rachel Wallis, and Suzanne Reinlib were cheesing it up in their Computer Graphics class sixth period. "It's one of the funnest and easiest classes I've ever taken," says Lyndsey.

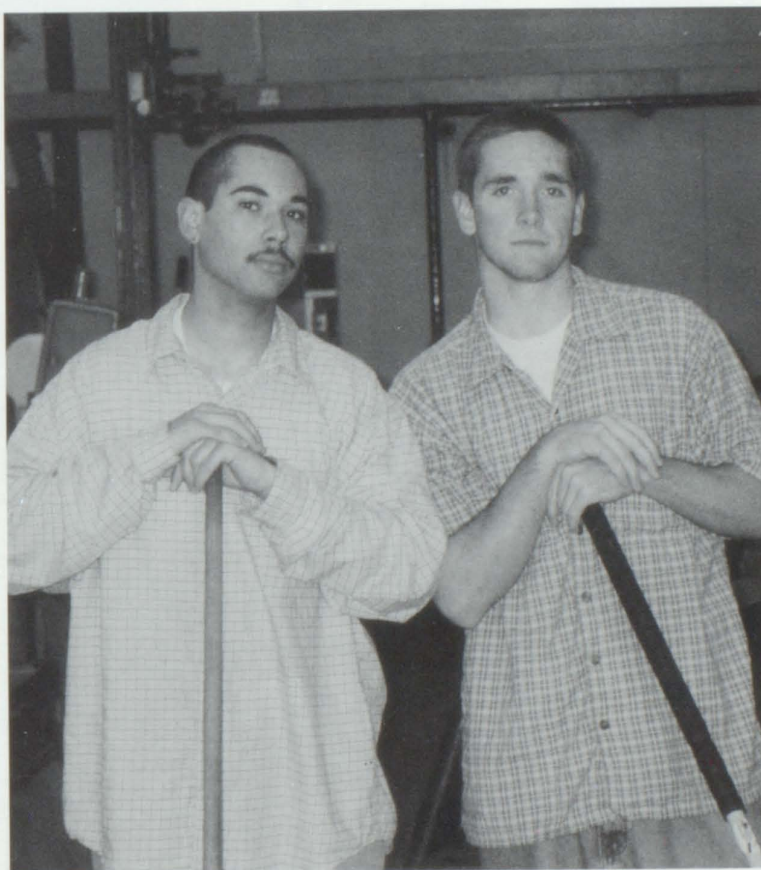

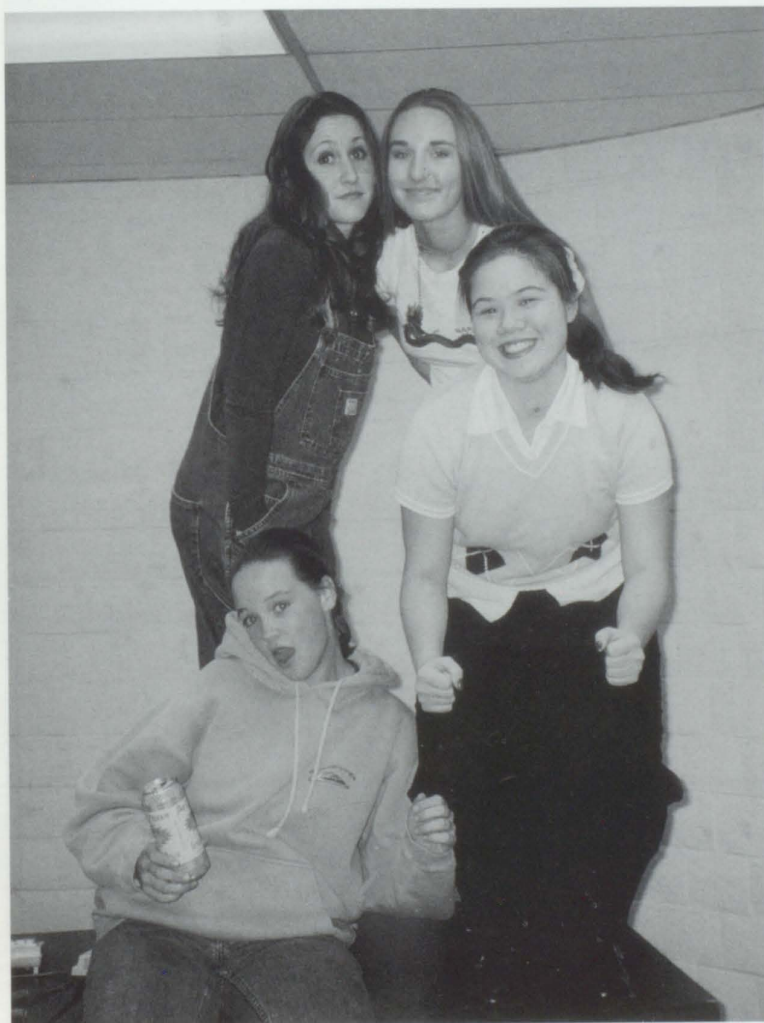

Jeromy Martinez and Brent Rose scrubbed down Jeromy's classic Chevrolet in their auto-body and paint class. "I love being able to work on the car with all of this equipment. It's a lot cheaper than getting it done by professionals in a shop," claimed Jeromy.

Wanna be a Vet?

Senior Patricia Boyce tried to get the class "cat" to smile too, but she was a bit too frisky for any special tricks that day.

"Time to hit the Books!"

The old ball and chain!! Studying plays a part in every student's life. Most of us think we're too smart to study or we're just plain lazy, but by the time you enter high school it becomes a necessity. Since studying is in such popular demand(ha,ha), sometimes the problem of where and when to do it occurs. WHS students have definitely stepped out of study hall and discovered more "happenin'" places, like the main library, each other's houses, Barnes and Noble, and local coffee joints like Bay Street Coffee and Starbucks. Nowadays, there are a lot of alternatives to studying besides books and paper. There are group discussions, the Internet, calculators, and a wide variety of literature to aid you (Cliffs Notes, foreign language dictionaries). There are so many options, we almost like to study...ALMOST.

Slava Drobot took advantage of our school's library with its Internet access. You can pretty much find anything on the Web to aid your studies. Look's like Slava had a head start on the future!

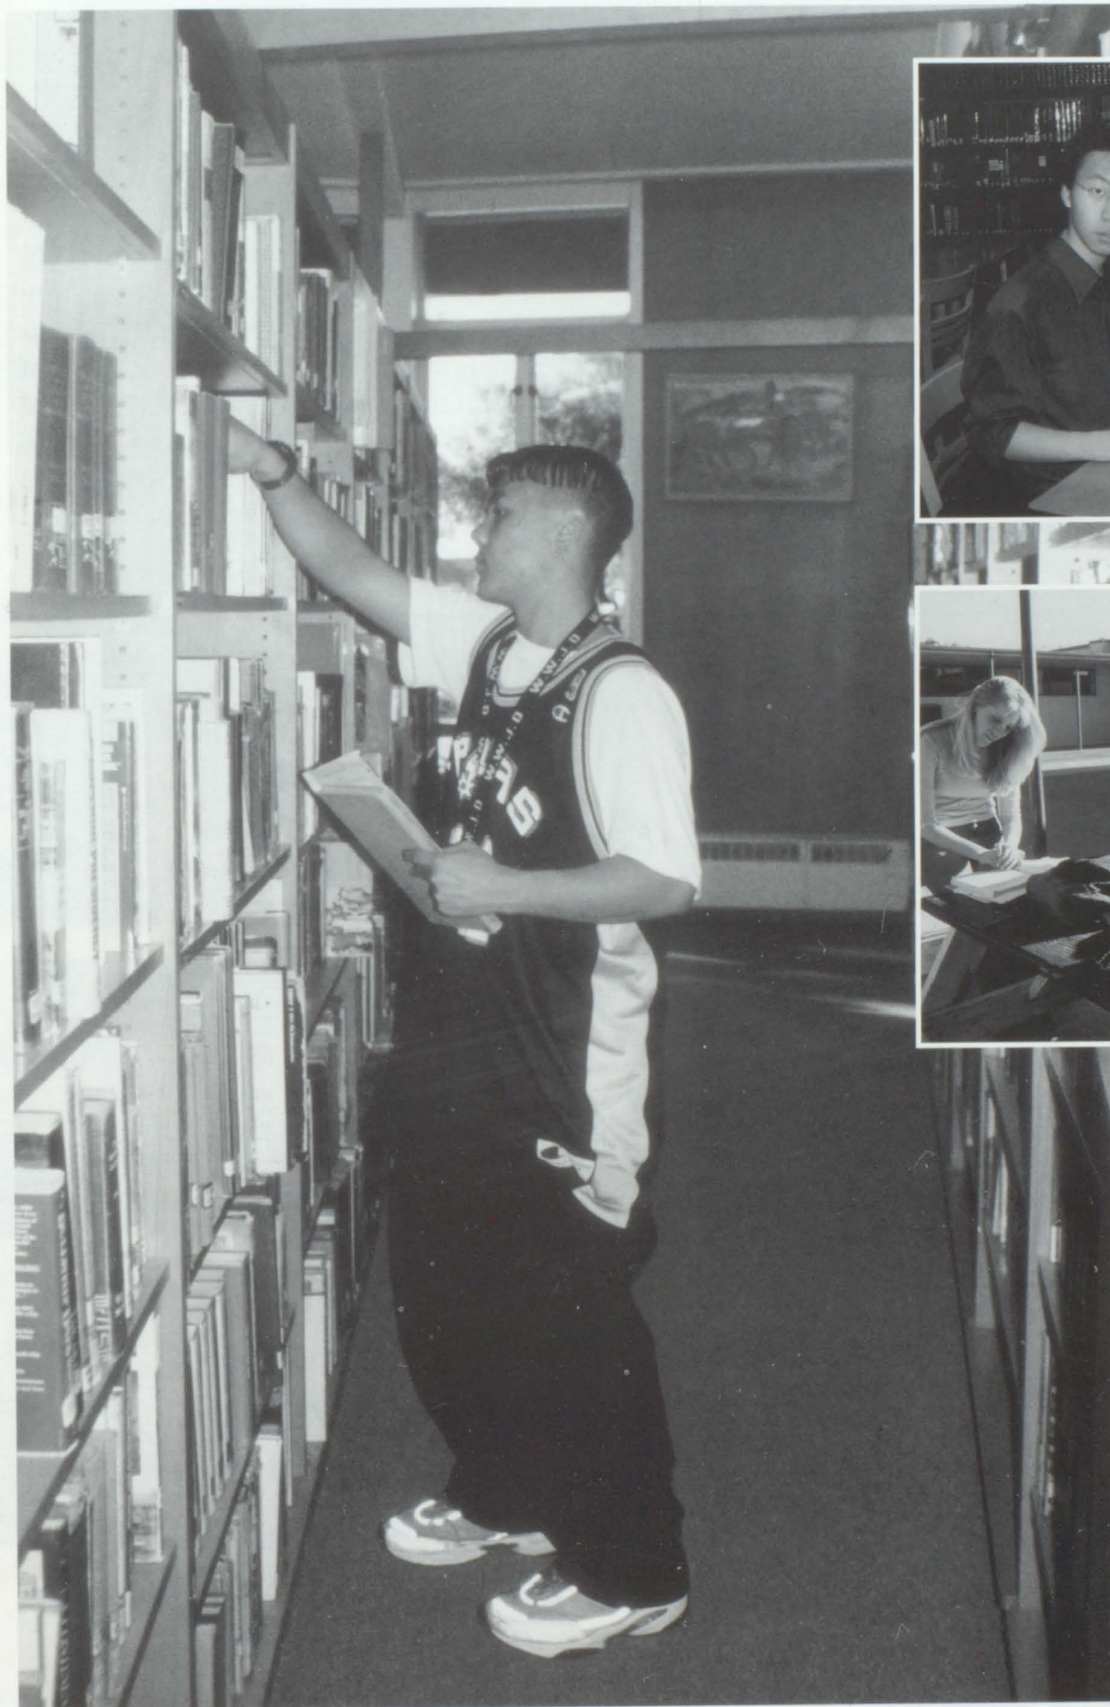

For Matt Gebhardt, the ground was as good a place as any to catch up on some ethics. Music helped Matt relax as he lets his mind take over.

Two minds work better than one! Gina Amoroso and Trisha Farquhar helped each other out as they used the main library to check out books on reptiles.

"What to read, what to read....." Tony Vincent scanned the school library's collection of great American novels. He was looking forward to going home and cuddling up with a good book while taking a bubble bath.

Alan Wong was a bit surprised to be caught red-handed at studying!

J-Mar Bowman, Dorothy Tsang, and Marina Meyerzon worked on drawings for art while D-Mar Duge studied complex details of anatomy.

Bank of America Awards are presented to seniors for their academic excellence. Plaque winners are eligible for regional competition. Applications are based on academics, activities, honors, awards, and work experience. The competition goes throughout the state and there are eight finalists in each of the four areas of ten regional competitions. The two phases of competition consist of a written statement that answers a question and an interview in front of a panel.

Interact

Do you like to help people in need? If so, Interact is the club for you. After attending two meetings and participating in one Interact project, you are a member. After those initial steps you are a bonafide member of a club that truly makes a difference. Interact is a Rotary-Sponsored service club for teens. It consists of four divisions: community, environmental, international, and school. One well-known project run by Interact is the Trick-or-Treat canned food drive. In coalition with other high schools, Interact collects thousands of cans to be donated to the needy in the Tri-City area. Other activities include keeping local beaches clean, providing Toys for Tots and feeding the hungry. If you would like to make a difference in your community, check us out!

Jim Suh and Rachel Martinez are joyously contemplating what the next agenda is for the Interact club. As president, Rachel Martinez sees to it that all club members gain as much from the club as they give to the community.

CSF

Do you want to become more involved in the WHS intellectual world? Look no further because CSF is your answer. The California Scholarship Federation is an organization that allows students to become involved with activities such as an after school tutorial run by the members. The club also goes on field trips to college campuses. In the fall semester the club traveled to UC Berkeley. Periodically, the club will host other fun activities such as barbecues and picnics for members only. CSF is one of the largest clubs at WHS with 100 plus members. In order to be a member you must have a strong GPA. Come get involved!

Do you love math? Do you struggle during math tests and quizzes? If this is you, then the Math Club is the place for you! The Math Club is a place where students who struggle in the subject get help. Students get tutored as well as supported by other students who are more intellectual in this field. It brings me up to my next point. Students not only attend the club to get help, but to share their intellectual insights. Students enjoy sharing mathematical problems as well as solving them. So if you are struggling in your math class and don't seem to quite understand the subject, don't worry. The Math Club is here for you. If you just love talking about math, then this club is definitely for you!

Indian Club

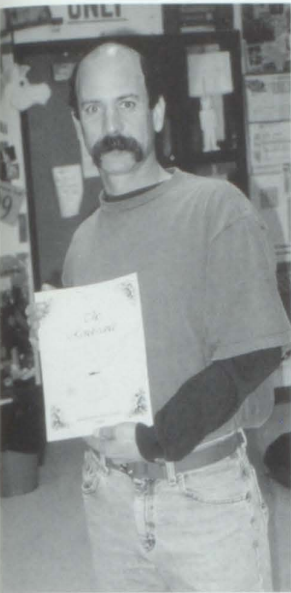

We're keeping the Indian culture alive on campus! Despite the fact that the club was established in mid-year, the members were determined and dedicated. The multicultural week dance was one of the best yet, along with the variety of Indian outfits worn for the fashion show. The members volunteered at the Fremont Indian temples to do community service and also raised money to help the less fortunate back in India. Considering that this year was their first, they really pulled it together. Keep up the good work!

Mr. Perlman holds up the The Renaissance packet from last year which is filled with interesting stories and poems.

The main goal this year in the Writers Club is to put together a literary magazine for both the semesters in this school year. Students are to gather poems and short stories that they find interesting. They then are in charge of editing them and putting them into a magazine that will be available to the students at W.H.S. The club hopes to take a field trip with the money they have saved up. One idea was to go to the beach early in the morning and to write stories or poems about how they feel at that moment.

Vicki Birbeck, the president of Writer's Club, starts the meeting by discussing the future events to take place. Everyone listened intently as she also gave ideas about field trips they could take during the year.

Melissa Speer taps her foot impatiently for the meeting to begin, while Steve drinks his delicious clear water.

THE
Write Stuff

The Afghan Club offers a great opportunity to have fun and preserve cultural awareness at the same time. The club is involved with multicultural week, showcasing dancers and food. They also participate in Saturday sports competitions with other local high schools, boasting their husky pride. Club meetings provide a time when members are able to talk about school life, academics, and cultural issues in a friendly environment. The club goals are to undergo a variety of activities that are fun, to develop a relationship with the community, and to provide learning experiences.

Believe it or not, there is more to French than kisses, fries, toast, and the Revolution. This is a club that seeks to explore all of the other wonders of France and the French language. The members of this club strive to learn more about the culture, the people of France, and the French lifestyle. Everytime they have a club meeting or a field trip, they bring themselves closer to this exquisite land in Europe. Potlucks are held once a month, giving members a chance to enjoy some wonderful French food. To join the club you aren't required to speak French, you just need an interest in the culture.

Experienced Corrine Vairora and Johnny Bergloff make it look easy as they demonstrate an "octopus." As the club president this year, Johnny hopes to share his background in swinging with some of the more inexperienced dancers.

"This isn't so bad," thinks Miles Madlock as Corrine Vairora shows him some of her skills. This is a common swing move that can be frequently seen on dance floors across the United States.

All mixed up! Arnold Stovall and Valerie Miller happily demonstrate how to do a "basic East Coast," while avoiding entanglement. Arnold has taken a few professional classes while Valerie is an enthusiastic first-timer.

Catch me Johnny! Mr. Bergloff makes the catch and still has time to smile as he whisks Corrine through the air. Johnny has been swinging for a year and a half, and his partner Corrine has been taking professional classes for about a month and a half.

"It don't mean a thing if it ain't got that swing"

C L U B

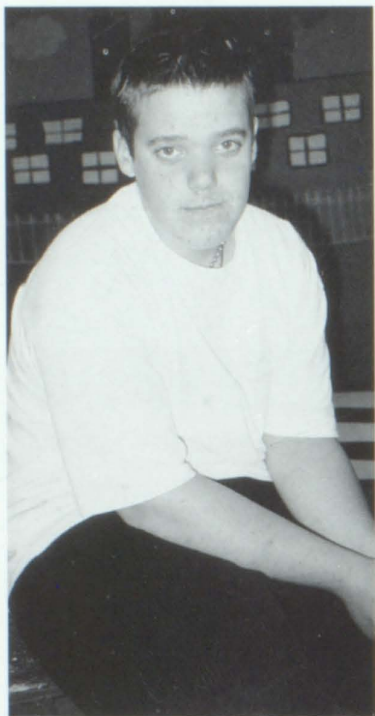

Wanna dance? Debuting in its first year, the Swing Club combines its uplifting form of dance with a historical insight of Swing's first origins. Swing dancing began in the 1930's, serving as an escape for many from rough war times. It developed into a major art form in many countries, becoming diverse through its original expression in different cultures. Now in the twentieth century we have revived Swing dancing, bringing it back for many to catch "Swing fever." The Swing Club is composed of both experienced and first-time dancers who will work together to become better at Swing dancing. Their goal is to combine Swing's history along with its dancing to acquire a complete knowledge of what started the 1930's craze.

The Drama Club is open to anyone who has an interest in helping out the drama department extend their possibilities. Fund-raising and advertising for the club itself as well as the Ohlone Festival are discussed within the club meetings. A trip to New York was scheduled for March 11th through the 15th. In New York, they planned to attend a few Broadway shows as well as tour all of the typical sights. Drama Club also raises money for its plays, textbooks for classes, and props. It also sponsors all activities inside and outside the Drama classes.

Have you ever imagined what life would be like when you get older? Most people never think they'll spend their later years in a home for the elderly. Certainly students in high school don't usually think that far ahead. Well, members of Crossing the Bridge are taking a peek at the lifestyle of some of Fremont's elderly residents by volunteering at Carlton Plaza, a retirement home for folks who have reached their later years. Spending quality time with the elderly involves simple and fun things like sharing food and drinks. Sometimes, members even exchange dance steps with the elderly!

The Gay Straight Alliance was founded only last year. It is a club for all sexual orientations which anyone can join. GSA is not a "gay" club, according to their Website. It provides an open forum for willing people to discuss "real" issues in a safe environment. Club members address homophobia, homosexuality, bisexuality and related issues. It is a place for people to express their views and have them kept confidential.

The Tradition Continues

Asian Cultural Association

For about 5 years now the Asian Cultural Association has been discussing the popular Asian Cultures. They have not only learned valuable information at school, they also have gone on field trips to other schools sharing their information with one another. This year, the club consisted of 30 members. The club officers, as well as the members, made it a point to encourage all students to join.

The club fundraised to earn money so that they could keep the club pointed in a positive direction.

This year the club carried on their positive reputation by achieving their goals.

"Although the club was recently introduced, I feel that we have a very strong and motivational group." - Tina Lieu

Speaking Out

Junior Statesmen of America

The Junior Statesmen of America, or JSA Club, met once every two weeks to discuss topics like politics. The discussions gave them a chance to question the morality of the topic. The debates helped them to see and understand both points of view. The students of JSA eagerly attended many state and regional conventions each year. The participants were taught about the system of our government. Along the way they picked up on some basic leadership skills. This club was open to everyone and it provided an enjoyable way of learning.

JSA officers struck their poses to show off their creativity. They were proud to represent their club.

John Maurer Woodcock

March 19, 1954-August 23, 1998

John Maurer Woodcock was a man who accomplished a lot, but still had a lot ahead of him. "He still had a lot to prove."

In 1968 when he first attended Washington High School, he made many friends. He was a man who put in so much hard work. He wanted to prove a lot of people wrong that said he would never make it into the NFL. That had been his goal ever since he was a little boy.

With a lot of hard work, John fulfilled his dreams. He got a college scholarship to the University of New Mexico. After two years there, he transferred to the University of Hawaii. In 1976, he was drafted to the Detroit Lions. After five years, he was traded to the San Diego Chargers.

After retiring in 1982 to be with his wife and new baby girl, he went into the printing business. But never forgetting his "roots," he came back to Washington to help start the Alumni Foundation in 1990. John helped raise $65,000 over the years to help pay for the replica arch in front of the new building.

John Woodcock was a very charismatic person. "Everyone knew him," says niece Jennifer Kennedy. John was full of jokes all the time. He could cheer anyone up.

On August 23, 1998, a legend died. Along with all of his friends, the past, present, and future classes of Washington High School will never forget him.

"You will be remembered as a husband, brother, father, son, uncle, but most importantly... a friend."

"Thank you for all that you have given to make the people around you better people. We love you."

Counseling

Although the history of the Peer Counseling Club stretches all the way back to 1989, the Age of Renaissance (rebirth) has finally dawned upon us. With about 150 eager Peer Counselors, Washington High School is bound to be the best in Fremont.

The trip to Anaheim, California was a truly rewarding experience. Besides being educated along the way, we also got a chance to kick back in Disneyland. Wearing our black and orange t-shirts, we spread Husky Pride over Southern California.

In addition to fooling around with Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck, we got the honor to host the National AIDS quilt. Watching 1,800 Huskies wearing AIDS ribbons made us feel as though we succeeded in showing students the humanistic side of AIDS instead of just numbers and statistics.

Although Peer Counseling has accomplished more than we could ever have imagined, nothing could have been possible without the constant encouragement and moral support from our advisor Mrs. Nelson.

Community Assistance Program

I know what you are thinking. C.A.P.? What's that? I have never heard of this club before. Well, maybe you have not heard of C.A.P. because it is a newly founded club on campus. C.A.P., standing for Community Assistance Program, is a club that focuses their time on serving the community in any way possible.

Now, I still know what is going through your mind. Community service? Do we need more of that stuff? Well there can never be enough of helping people. Our goal has been to complete three different types of services a month. It may have been a service that seemed easy, like making cards for an elderly home, or it may have been something bigger like collecting supplies to send to a shelter in Mexico. In any case, we have always opened our events to club members as well as non-club members because we want those required five hours to be filled, and we were glad to help you do it.

Remember! "Your Brain and your Heart = Community Service!" - Christine Lemmon

Mr. Mangini's cynical smile appeared suddenly on a gloomy, early December day as he plotted his "Santa Claus Maneuver" on the ASB council.

Washington, over the course of the year, you've seen us in your face. We have put up the posters, played music on Fridays, ran the elections, held rallies, and we have probably given you a warm fuzzy or two. Yes that's ASB. We are that clan in the bright, stylish orange shirts!

We have sacrificed our lunches, Friday nights, and precious class time for you! Our job as Student Council is much like a "ship's rope to an anchor... it holds the ship steady and secure just as Student Council holds a school steady and secure." The people on ASB were always willing to work in order to make a difference here at Washington. The stress-filled days and nights, phone calls here and there, and the endless amount of time that was put in was undoubtedly worth it. We would even go back to September and do it again if we could! Crazy, huh?

The work we have put in and the risks that we took made the year go by faster, but fun-filled memories were made along the way: a night at the corral... a hoe-down on the first day of school... 'gavel' time... sassy orange shirts... precision back-packing... quiet council meetings...ten commandments... amphitheater???... reserving couches... the list is endless and we thank the student body. We had an unbelievable time rockin' da house! We have definitely learned that "when the going gets tough, the tough suck it up..."

Major props and thanks to Mr. Mangini and Mrs. Jung. We don't know what we would have done without you guys!

THIRD PERIOD REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY

"What's your opinion?"

Do you like to voice your opinion? If so, the third period representative assembly may be right for you. Third period representative assembly is an organization that allows students to voice their own opinion on school issues. The third period representative is elected by their third period class and attends meetings the third Thursday of every month. Meetings are run by the vice president, Brian Duke. Issues such as where money for our school should be spent and how students feel about the dress code are discussed.

Third period representatives also gain information not included in the Daily Bulletin and report the information to their third period classes. If you have strong opinions about school issues, the third period representative assembly may be for you.

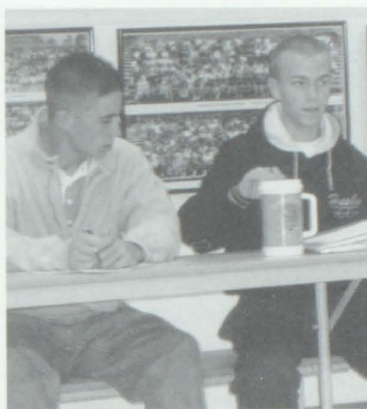

Taking a moment from the important discussion about funds for the science program during the October meeting, Senior Alexia Donges smiles for the camera.

Senior Stacy Mah makes room for herself during the October third period representative meeting, as she takes notes on the use of new funds for the school's science program.

Assistant principal, Mr. Cain dropped in during the November third period representative meeting to propose a new Multicultural Awareness Association. Heidi Gentry and Michele Celino take diligent notes.

Senior Brian Duke, the President of the Third Period Representative Assembly, runs the meetings. Here he explains the importance of Jamba Juice to our school's vitality; Johnny Seoane seems to be very interested.

Third period representatives Tonya Glanz, Nicole Pagan, Reag Wood, Heidi Gentry and Lara Kellogg contemplate issues after the November meeting concerning the Fall Sports Rally.

Senior Laura Snow shows Chad Watson how the money for the science program will be divided up during the October third period representative meeting.

BRINGING OUT THE BEST

"Brainbowl is a competition just like a sport. We develop rivalries, play as a team, and have a lot of fun. I have played for four years with different teams, but as long as we play as friends we have a good time." -
Meredith Avery, Grade 12

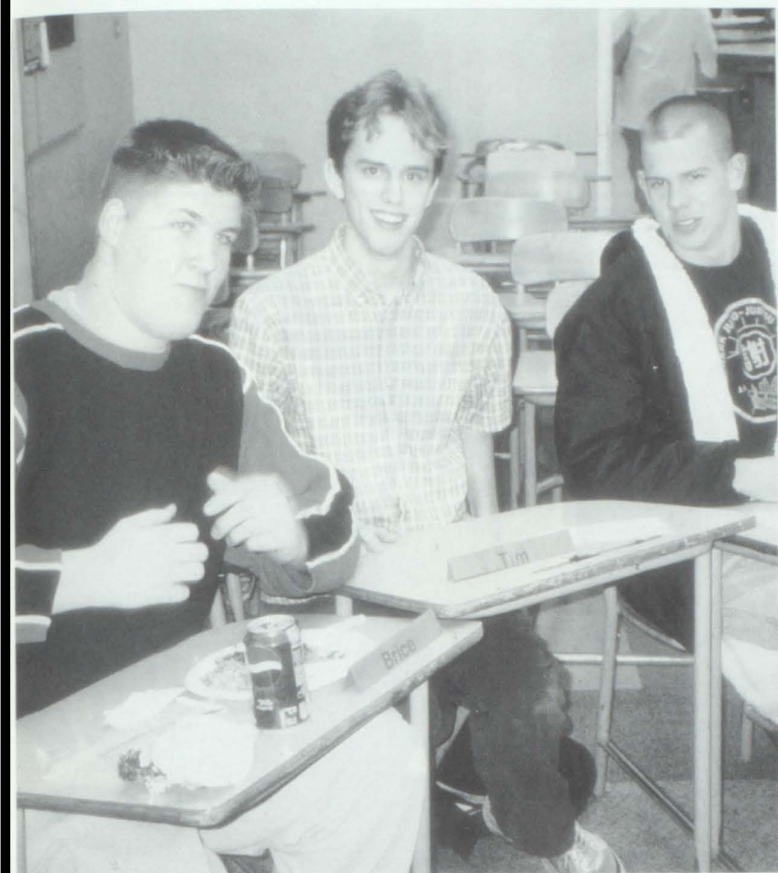

Chuck Delgado was the overall point leader for his team, The Fabulous Marxists. With the help of teammates John Miller, Joe Stearns and Erika Duscha, Chuck Delgado helped lead his team to win the Brainbowl competition this year.

Brain Bowl 1999

The 1999 Brainbowl competition was as challenging as ever. The competition included participants from all grades, all with high levels of intelligence. Each team included four students from the same grade level. The teams were allowed to choose their own names, which allowed them to show some of their creativity. The names of the teams varied from: The Fabulous Marxists, Look Sir Droids, The Frontal Lobes, and Mental Floss. The dedicated teams gave up most of their lunches throughout the Brainbowl competition to compete in the challenging twenty-minute long matches. Teams were not competing for prizes, but valued bragging rights over their fellow competitors. At the end of the tournament, a team of Brainbowl All-Stars was chosen to compete in matches against other schools.

Brett Cates, Tim Sandoe and Jimmy Hughes of the "Look Sir Droids" took a break from the intense competition to express satisfaction with their performance.

Carol Freire, Morgan Kanninen, Nancy Wu, and Amrinder Singh made up a team of intellectual sophomores who put up tough competition to their elder teams.

Sunil Kaki of "The Frontal Lobes" contemplated the answer to the first question of the round, "What is your name?"

A Winning Season

FROSH - The frosh team really practiced well and played hard this year. Everyday, rain or shine, they practiced to perfection. They made sure every play was intact and every sign that the coach made was understood. They played with all their might and strength, which paid off in the long run.

JV- Junior Varsity was outstanding this season. The coach stayed on their backs and made them practice morning, noon, and night. Their hard work showed in the game. As a whole we are really proud of them and hope they continue to keep up the good work year after year. Great season guys!!

GO! GO! Frosh player Kenny Davis is lookin' great as he runs for the touchdown against Hayward High School. He was on fire that night and he really played hard.

TOUCHDOWN? Frosh player Kimo Roberts bolts past American's defense as he runs for the touchdown, soaring to football stardom as he helps the Huskies arrive at their well-earned victory.

Junior runningback Todd Beck plays the role of a 'cutback' runner while trying to outrun the Mission defender during the big Homecoming game. Todd was the go-to guy with the running game this year.

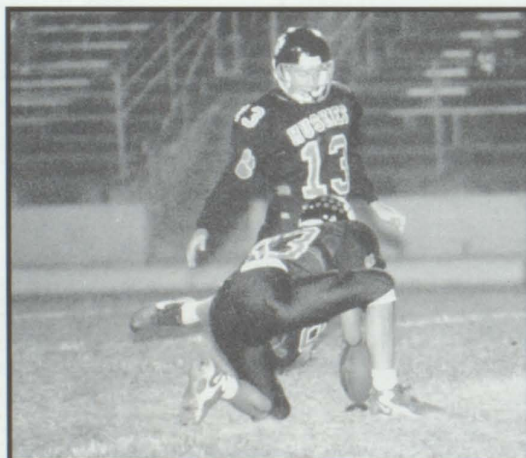

QB Danny Brown scrambles to avoid the sack while the line holds the Warriors' defenders back. Danny was this year's starting QB and performed very well.

The lone sophomore on the varsity team this year, Taylor Bodily, tries to get the ball loose and make the tackle during the spectacular Homecoming win, 42-6, against Mission.

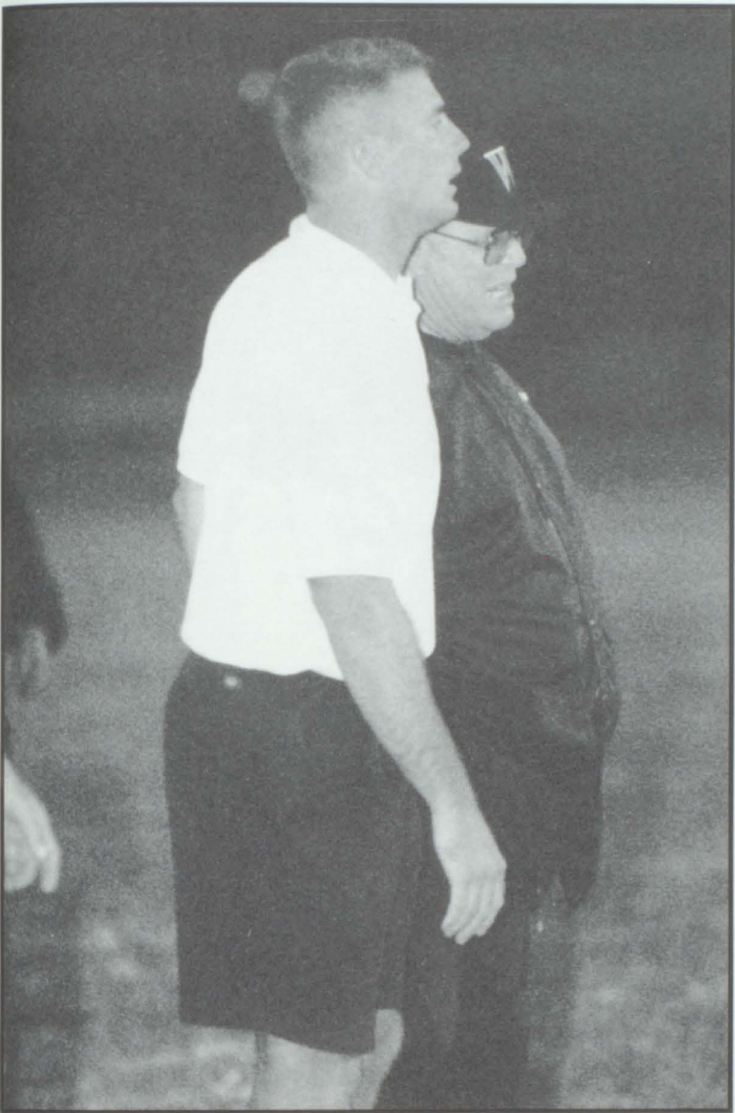

Ryan Wittmer (left) became the Huskies' kicker this year and came through, as shown here, in some clutch situations.

Halfback John Seoane (right) played a major part in all the Huskies' victories with many "multiple touchdown games."

Coach Adams alongside Coach J.Ingram discuss what play to run next. The whole staff did an excellent job this year to drive the team to victory.

Remarkable:This year was another excellent year for the Huskies football team. The year started when head coach Jim Ingram captured another milestone with his 200th win as a football coach.

This accomplishment played a major role in the motivation of the players.

Some of the players that followed the model of MAGIC (Make a Greater Individual Commitment) were seniors John Seoane, Danny Brown, Joel Ledgewood, and Nick Maurer. They also had some help from dedicated juniors like Todd Beck and Jesse Saito. The Huskies kept the winning tradition alive with another remarkable season.

Hopeful Youths

It's never too serious when it comes to the JV team because they are so relaxed and ready to do anything to get a good picture, even if it means climbing a tree and acting like monkeys.

Often overshadowed by the varsity team, the JV team would come to be known for their heart and determination. This statuesque group of skilled players would prove to be a handful for their opponents.

The girls had truly worked hard all season long. Every once and a while they were seen taking a jog around school or down Country Drive. "Not everybody knows how much we actually have to run for volleyball," says Heidi Tegner # 24.

Along with everyday practices that last until about 5-5:30pm, tournaments can last hours. This year Washington high school hosted the JV tournament on September 19th. Fremont, Union City, Newark, and Hayward schools all participated in the day of never-ending games. Even though the tournaments take a lot of time and effort, they can be a lot of fun.

When asked what was the most fun thing they've done, Lisa Fuellenbach-35-replied, "Tournaments. Although they start at the crack of dawn, I like just getting to hang out with the team. We are all friends, on and off the court."

Earning their rights of passage through hard work, these young but talented players were known as a force to be reckoned with. As a team, these lady Huskies had a secret weapon that worked in almost every game, team work.

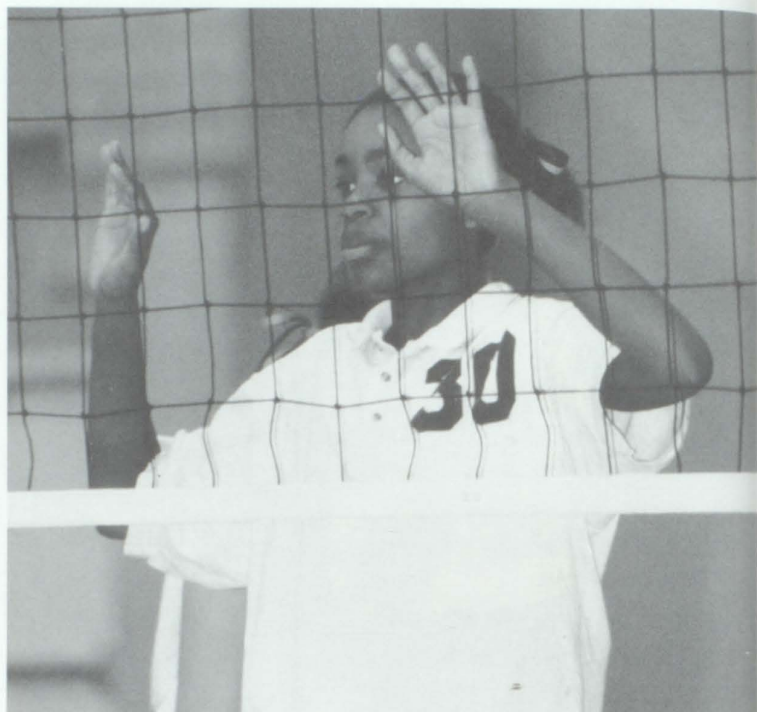

Next year will be a promising one with several players being promoted to varsity.

"It's been a lot of fun playing on JV, but I hope I'll be able to get my varsity letter next year," admitted Vernetra Young.

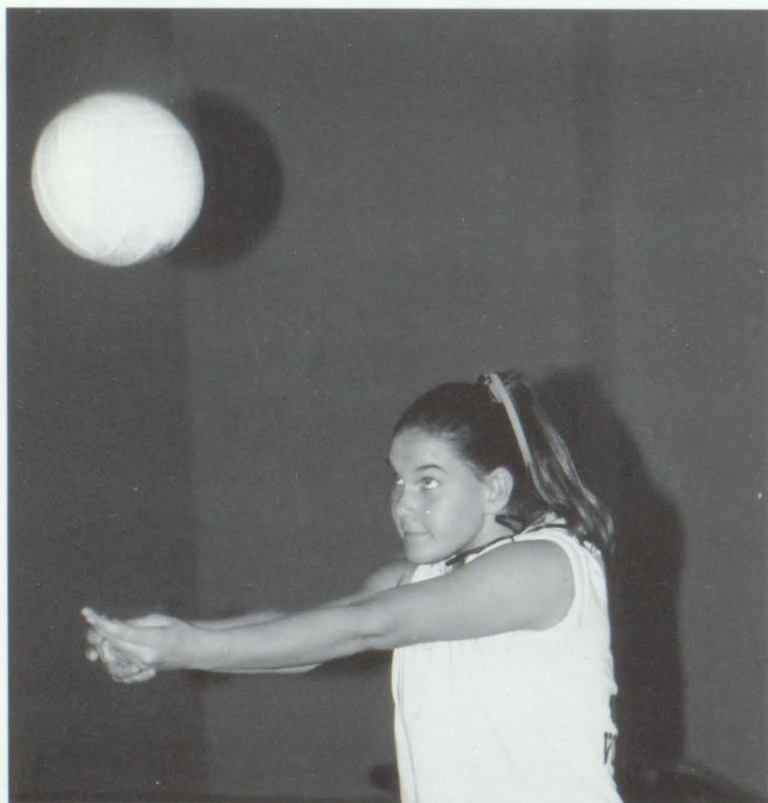

DON'T EVEN THINK ABOUT IT

Freshman Desiree Cleveland-30- looked ready and willing to teach the Logan Colts a thing or two about volleyball. Over the months of practices and games she had proven herself to be a real asset to the team.

ALTITUDE, ATTITUDE, AND AIM

The Huskies banded together to support Lindsay Payne as she leaped through the air to make a game-winning spike. The Newark Cougars were simply amazed at her hang time.

SWEATIN' IT OUT

(bottom) Samantha Lawrence and Sara Bohanan focus intently as Coach Relova goes over the game plan. These girls mean business when it comes to the Huskies' pride.

It had been a real adjusting year for the entire varsity team. With only four returning players, (Sara Bohanan, Jennifer Kennedy, Julie Fuellenbach, and Lindsay Payne), the team had to reorganize, but it seemed to have had worked. With much of the same reputation as in previous years, the team had won the respect from many other schools in Fremont. "They get tougher every year," said the American High School Varsity Volleyball coach after suffering a loss from the Huskies October 8th.

Julie Fuellenbach and Jennifer Kennedy stood alone as seniors among the seven other players on the team, who were juniors. In previous years, the seniors have dominated the varsity team, but there's a first time for everything.

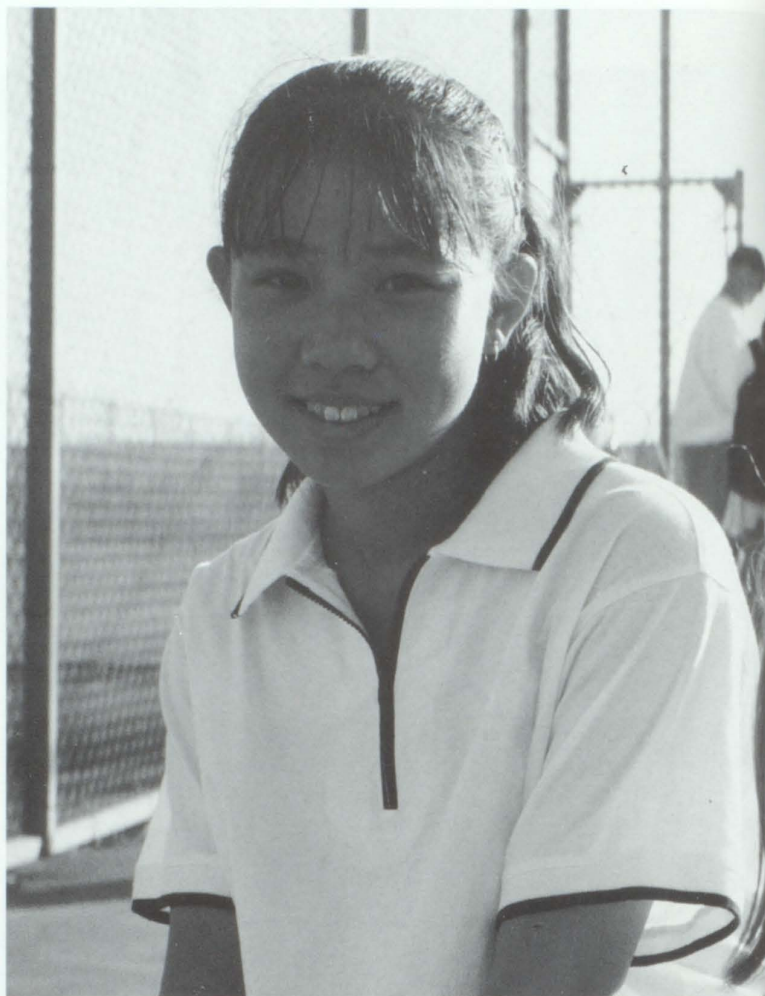

DON'T FALL!

After recovering from her fabulous serve during the Washington-Livermore game September 17th, Heidi Gentry got right back into the game and bumped the ball to score another point.

No Room For Faults

The sky's the limit for Allison Rost who always feels at home on Washington's home courts. On Friday afternoon, October 16th, Allison was found practicing her powerhouse serve as she prepared for her next match.

Luckily Frances Tsui had her sunglasses on that sunny afternoon. Otherwise she would not have been as successful as she was.

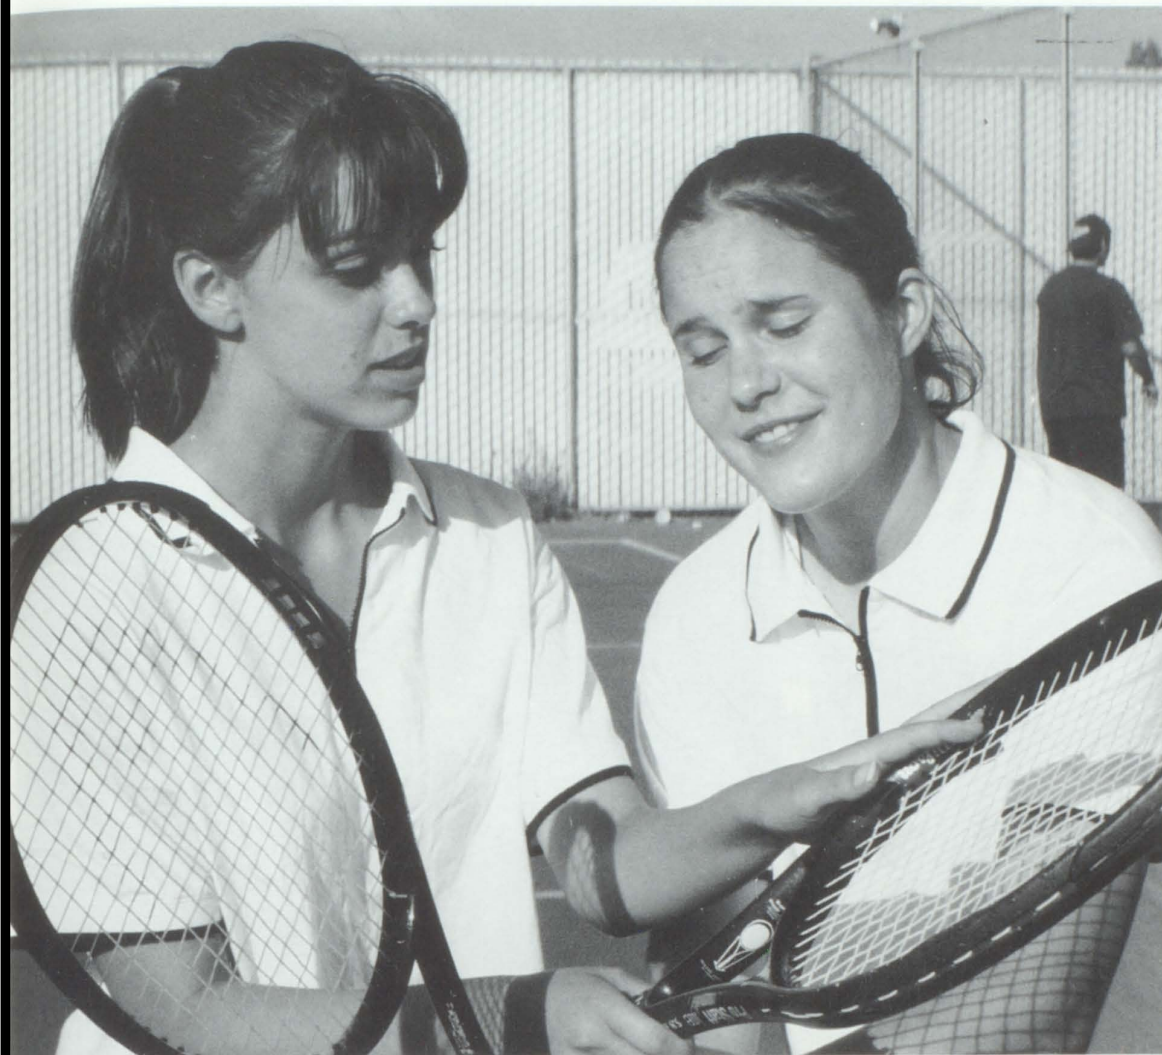

Anna Hui, a senior, practices her forehand during a ten minute warm up before her game against Mission.

Katharine Allen concludes that flying for the ball will help her succeed over the competition.

One of the team captains, Jewelyn Almazan, leads the tennis team in their traditional clap up and pep talk before going out to slaughter their opponents.

Number one doubles team, Megan Pratt and Alicia Sweeney (team captain), are pondering about their next move against their opponent, Newark Memorial.

Girls Varsity Tennis

The girls' varsity tennis had a great season due to the fact that many of the returning players have had three years of useful knowledge and experience. The girls' varsity team is comprised of eight returning seniors, one junior, and one sophomore. They have had determination and a strong support from Coach M. Hankin, returning coach, and Coach W. Collo, assistant coach.

Cross Country

Run, Huskies, Run! The cross country team had a great amount of effort and moral support for another season. Their coach, George Pelke, gave them two thumbs up and excellent reviews. They worked hard and got their scores down. Leading the team, seniors Brian Duke, Aaron Hoskins, Bryan Hoskins, Clarrise Mesa, and Sarood Tanveer encouraged their teammates and pushed them to try their best. Although their invitational meet didn't go as expected, they still strived to be in the front of the pack, considering they competed against high schools across the nation. Many freshmen decided to come out for the team this year. They were prepared for the hard work and were ready to make a difference and try their hardest.

Late comer, Fernando Espinoza (top), runs at top speed trying to catch up with the rest of his team while fighting against the wind.

Scott Chromy (right) dreams about coming in first place at their pre-season match in October, while skipping during practice.

Seniors Sarood Tanveer, Brian Duke, Aaron and Bryan Hoskins try to catch Clarisse Mesa during their practice.

Christina Buchner glares defiantly at the Logan defender as she attempts to throw the ball to a teammate.

Zooming past the opponents, Kathy Loughram thrusts the ball nose first towards the goal.

During a break, the girls varsity team listens intently to head coach B. Accurso who shares serious tips. The girls agree he did an excellent job this year.

After their 7-3 win against Logan, Kristi Sinnott and teammates shake hands with their opponents.

During the big Logan game goalkeeper Jenni McLain blocks the glaring sun from her eyes, which is always a problem for her eyes. Jenny made several crucial saves in their win.

During a practice, co-captains Christina Buchner and Kristie Audiat smile knowing that their teamwork pays off.

H2O Polo

The girls' water polo team had another undefeated season. The streak has lasted the past two years for the girls. With dominating strength from the captains Kristie Audiat and Christina Buchner, the Huskies would come out with upsetting wins over the favorites. This year there were a lot more girls that came out and showed thier stuff. Way to go on a great season girls!

This year's boys' Varsity and Junior Varsity team played better than ever. With captain Tony Cimino and other players like goalkeeper Justin Swift, senior Steven Stacy, and junior Paul Severson, the boys took over other teams with their force and power.

The team would always do a chant before going to play which would make their opponents feel less powerful. Great season guys!

Below: Mike Haywood showed his skills when he blocked the Titans' center from making a jump shot. Mike had been in the newspaper numerous times for his ability to play some ball! He was an excellent center and forward when needed. Being a senior this year he will be missed. Bye, Mike!

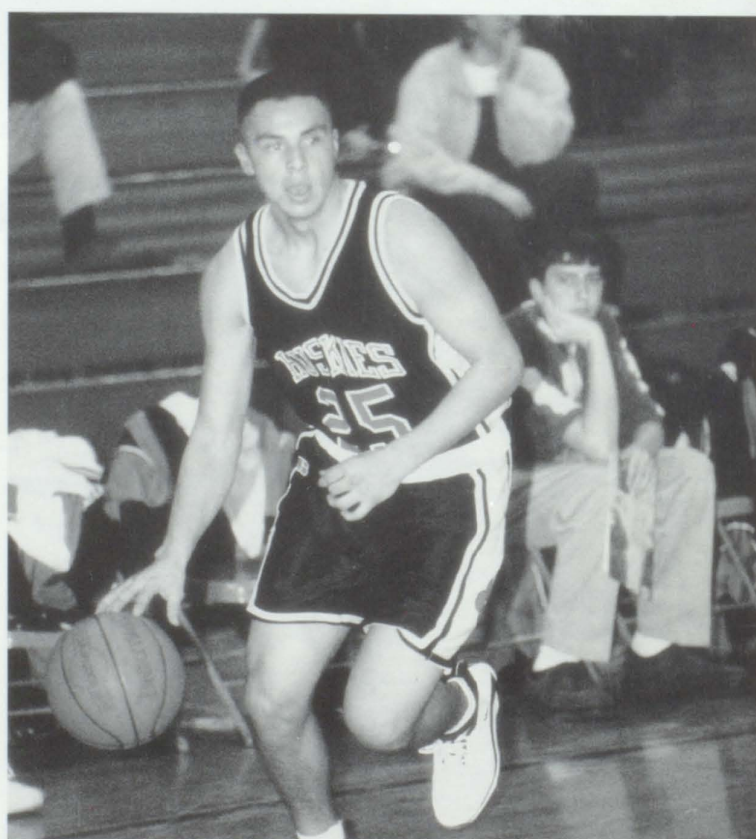

Coach Boggs educated his team on what play they should run next during a brief time-out against Newark Memorial. The Huskies ran the plays, which showed that they had really been practicing.

Ray Epps was anticipating whether or not he should pass or take the shot. He was a junior playing on Varsity which is a big privilege. Ray had a great game this year and we hope he decides to return next year.

Chad Watson was really concentrating on making this layup. He has had a great season and we'll miss him considering he's a senior and he's graduating this year. Bye, Chad!

A real asset to the team, Keith Bohanan has helped bring us to victory. We wish him the best after he graduates.

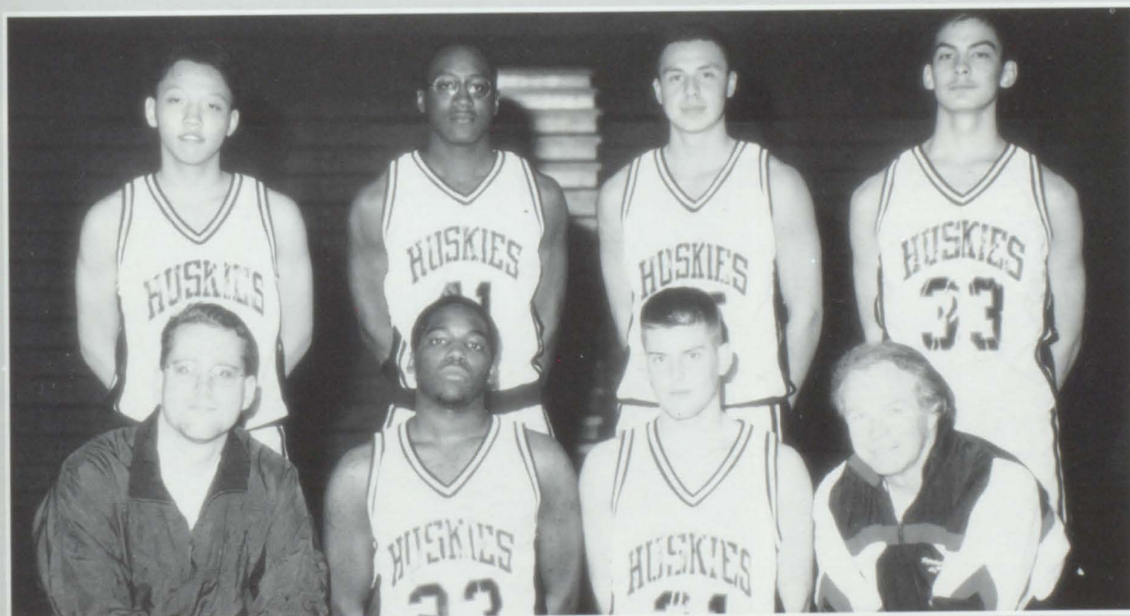

Left: Calvin Henderson used his strengths to wrestle with the Titans. Calvin showed us his true talents this year. He really dominated the boards as a center. Hopefully he will be playing again next year.

Below: Victor McGautha was an awesome point-guard this season. He was attempting to make a pass, but he took his time to make a wise decision. He will be missed very much when he graduates. Bye Vic!!!!

NOTHIN' BUT NET

We had an excellent Varsity Boys Basketball team this year. They really showed that they were "da bomb"! Their performance on the court made students realize how proud they were to be Huskies. Their many hours of dedication after school, and even during the winter vacation, led to well deserved victories. Part of what motivated them was the magnificent Coach Boggs!!!! He has been coaching for many years and he does a great job. For two hours after school the guys belong to him and it was obvious that he used his time wisely.

"Building a strong program" was the Junior Varsity's motto. "We strive to be the best," said Michele Celino, the sophomore captain. Well, the best is yet to come!

The 1998-1999 Huskies played a very tough pre-season schedule hoping for a later payoff during league play. The girls were coached by third year expert Ken Bohanan. With both a son and daughter on the varsity teams, Coach Bohanan knows the game...inside and out. Coach Bohanan's goal for the team was to push the girls to a competitive level, while teaching the jump from Junior Varsity to the Varsity level. The team consisted of seven freshmen and eight sophomores.

Some promising Husky All-Stars consist of sophomores Michele Celino, Aadika Singh and Lauren Ogata. All had a little varsity experience last year. They were brought up for N.C.S.

The girls lost a few close games with some really great teams, but definitely picked up the slack during league. Keep the tradition going strong. We know our Huskies will make us proud!

Gloria Toledo, a star freshman point guard brought the ball down the court. Both the referee and the Castlemont defender tried to steal the ball, but neither got it because of her quickness.

Right: Susan Finnegan (23) and Vernetra Young (42) both listened to "Coach Bo's" words of wisdom during a timeout. In his third year of coaching, Coach Bohanan finally realized how to hang onto the ball.

Sophomore Desiree Cleveland showed her "perfect form" shot as the ball sailed the hoop. Meanwhile, fellow sophomore Karlee Bachelder (34) worked to get good position for the offensive rebound.

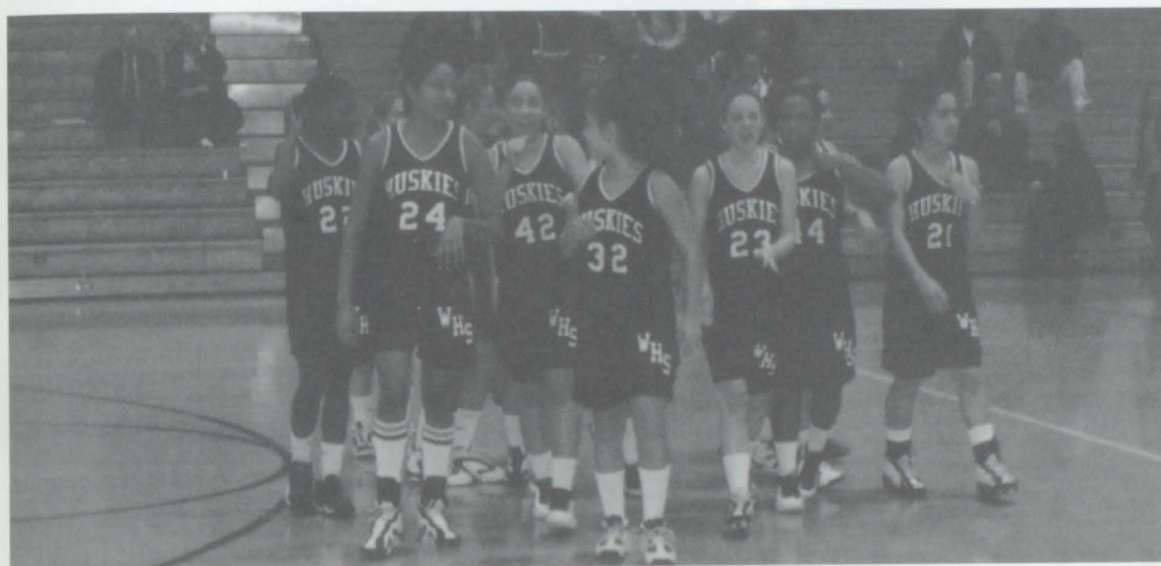

During a close game with Kennedy, the girls sat anxiously waiting to be substituted in. Here, Marissa Vigil, Cory Audiat, and Susan Finnegan stared at the scoreboard to see how much longer until they got to play while Pomaikai Kupau and Allison Whaley watched the action.

Below: Sophomore Michele Celino sets herself, and concentrated very hard on making a free throw. Michele led the team, averaging 12.4 points per game during the pre-season.

Left: In front of a packed house at James Logan, the girls got set to go out and play an intense game. But first, Vernetra Young decided to unwind by singing the Huskies a song!

Anisha Seals first faked to the right before she drove into the center of the court.

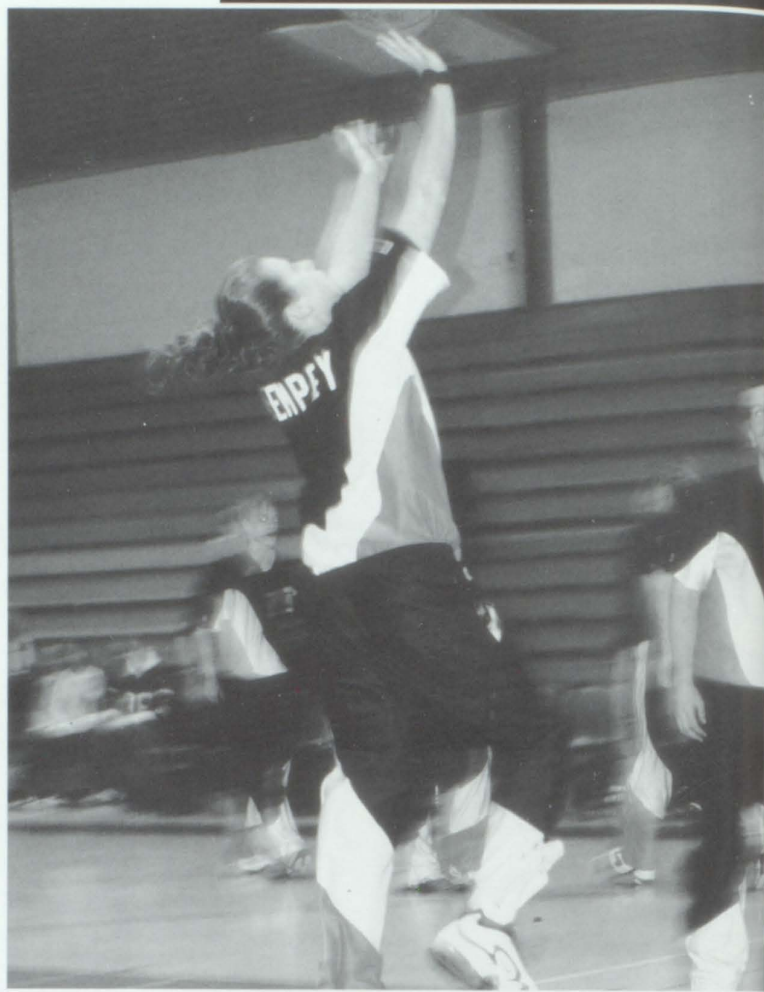

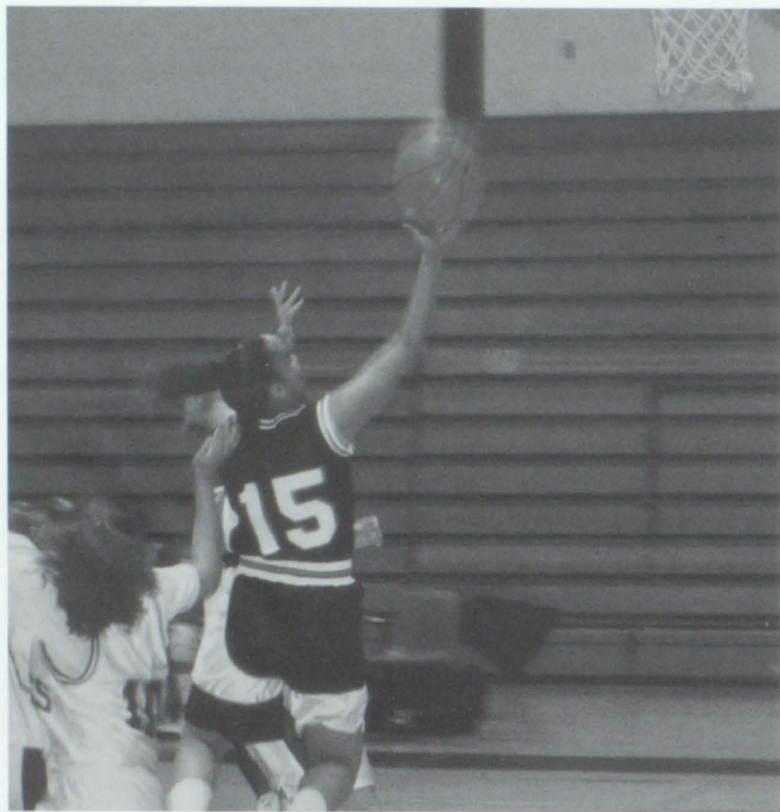

The girls watched the starting lineups of the opposing team during the announcements. By mid-season, the girls were undefeated, hoping to keep the record perfect!

Up The Lane

Point guard Sofia Miller drove through the lane and jumped right through the American defenders to the hoop. Her quickness and fast breaks helped the team a lot during the year.

Just Like Mike

Even with the retirement of Michael Jordon, sophomore Laura Empey tried to be like the great one in warm-ups.

Girls Varsity Basketball

It's Game Time!

Coming off last year's first place finish in league, the girls' team carried it into 1999. The team had five returning players including last year's all league players Jen Kennedy and Sarah Bohanan. Improvements this year came from sophomores Jackie Booth and Sofia Miller who promise to give an intense attitude the next few seasons. Tiffany Haywood also had a great year.

There were some doubts about how the team would compare against some of the top teams with only one returning senior, but they showed talent in games against Logan, Newark, Foothill and Monte Vista. The team also got tons of help from their experienced coaches. In his fifth year at WHS, head coach Iijima stressed strategies such as getting ahead in the beginning. Intensity should be on their full court press and defense.

With all this and much more the girls had an awesome season and promise to have more to come in the next few years.

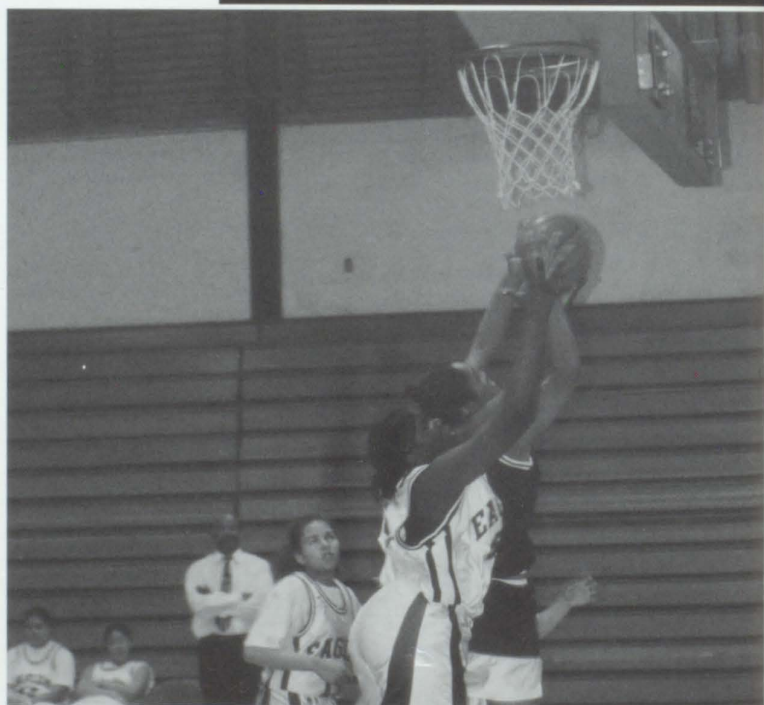

Did You Know?

-This is Coach Iijima's 5th year at WHS

-The Varsity team has finished in the top 2 the last four years

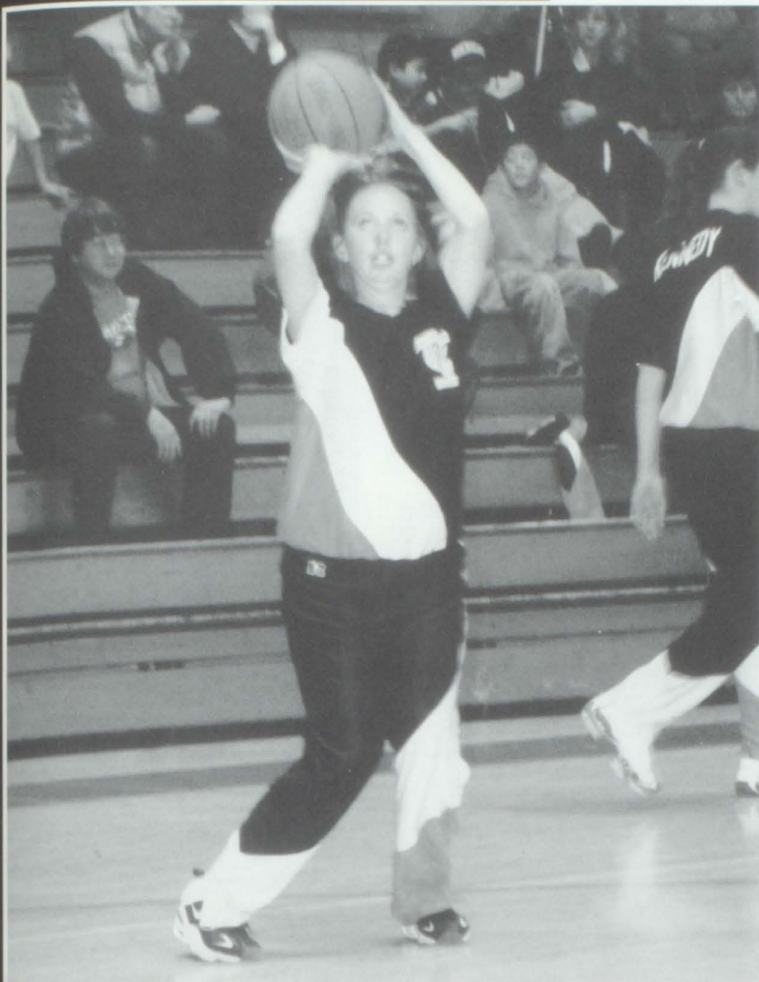

-They play 12 league games in a season

-Admission w/ASB is only $2

Attack The Ball

The Eagles coach didn't know what to do to try and stop the powerful Tiffany Haywood during this game. Even with three on one coverage, she managed to grab and keep control of the ball.

From Downtown.... Bang!

Before the game against the Eagles at American, Sarah Greene focused on her warming up. She helped the Huskies come out with a whopping 55-24 victory.

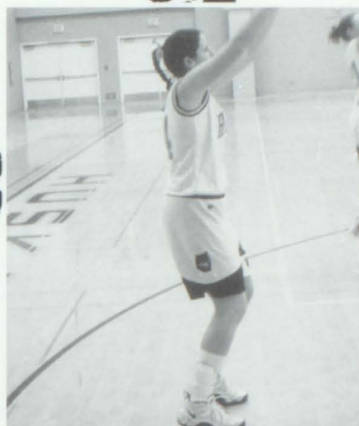

Nice Form

The lone senior and team captain Jen Kennedy practiced her outside shot before the game. Even with her injured ankle earlier on in the season, Jen came back with more power and became the star.

Listen Up

During the home game versus North Monterey, the squad listened to coach Iijima tell them to take their game to the next level.

Just Kickin' It

Boys J.V. and Varsity Soccer

Sporting only four seniors, the Husky boys Varsity soccer team had plenty of extra talent. Led by coaches Terry Frazier, Ricardo Pena, and Tony Santos the fairly young team came on strong in the tough league in which they were competing. By mid-season the varsity team had a record of 6-1. Sophomore goalkeeper, Luke Albertalli, recorded eight shutouts including pre-season. Over Winter vacation the team participated in the Cougar Cleat Classic. They placed fifth out of sixteen tough teams. Good job Huskies!

The Junior Varsity soccer team was just as successful as the varsity squad. Former Washington Husky soccer player Cameron Price returned to his alma mater to lead the Junior Varsity squad to success. With a new coach and loads of confidence, the Junior Varsity team had a record of 7-0 by mid-season. With a team consisting of nine freshmen, not only did the Huskies have a great season this year but look to have a promising future.

Aaron Higgins used his fantastic ball skills to leave the Kennedy defender in his dust.

Nick Data controlled the unpredictable ball while trying to lead the Huskies J.V. team to another victory. Nick was one of the many freshmen on the Huskies team.

confessed Aaron Higgins.

Senior Tim Snelson prepared to clear the ball out of the Huskies' backfield. Tim was part of the strong defense that held the team together.

Senior Matt Rogers used his speed to leave the Kennedy player in the dust, then prepared to cross the ball.

Cassandra Mesa dribbled the ball with great concentration, as she escaped from the Newark Memorial defender tracking her from behind.

Sophomore Goalie Amanda Ortmann made a critical save for the Huskies against the tough Newark Memorial offense. This was one of the many prevented goals that brought the Huskies to their victory.

Our lovely Varsity Girls Soccer Team definitely knows what "Girl Power" is all about. They showed their enthusiasm after a terrific win over the James Logan Varsity Soccer Team.

Sophomore defender Tamara Zuffi beat two American defenders to the ball and fired a superb shot at the American Goalie. Our Huskies dominated the Eagles throughout the entire game.

Sophomore defender Emily Jonutz made a great move and confused the American defender. Emily Jonutz was another terrific defender of our Varsity Girls Soccer Team.

Megan Terry showed us how to juggle a ball while an American defender admired her skills. Megan Terry was one of the sophomores in the Girls Varsity Squad.

The Junior Varsity Girls Soccer Team once again had a terrific season this year. Half way through their season our lovely ladies were undefeated. They were led by team captains Lindsey Florence and Jessica Moore. Our Junior Varsity Girls Soccer Team was a mixture of talent, attitude, class, and sportsmanship. These girls were led by two wonderful coaches, Bob Newray and Bill Skwott. Keep up the good work ladies. Way to go Huskies!

Our Varsity Girls Soccer Team began the season with a BANG! Once again our Varsity Girls Soccer Team had a winning record half way through the season. The team was led by seven seniors with a lot of experience. The rest of the team was a combination of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. Their sense of sisterhood was not only shown in the game, but out of bounds as well. They were led by terrific coach Rob Hernandez and assistant coach Katrina Ghuddousi. Good job ladies, on another awesome season!

Down For The Count

The season looked good for Husky Wrestling, led by coaches Bill Manella, Don French, and Kimo Rodrigues, and captains Tim McGinnis and Brandon Shelton. The team seemed to show more heart and dedication this year as opposed to three years back. Many new faces had entered the ring this season and looked promising for next year. Their endless practices definitely paid off since they were invited to a countless number of tournaments and were recognized on many occasions. The Huskies received the respect they deserved this season from all the other schools who had doubted them in the past. They were surely surprised to see the new and improved squad.....and we showed them that these dawgs were unstoppable!

Above: We caught Tim McGinnis coming close to tearing Fernando Espinosas' head off at their match with Irvington, while Roger Moppin, Nima Sharif, and Raymond Balli simply observed.

Right: At their meet against Irvington, Cody Ortman threatened his opponent: "You have no idea what I'm going to do to you."

"Say Uncle!!!" demanded Arthur Soroken. After his opponent had lost all feeling in his body and looked as if his head was about to explode, Arthur eventually let go. What a nice guy!

Due to grades, junior Becky Ellinson was forced to watch from the sidelines, but that didn't keep her from cheering her team on.

Below right: Meredith Avery practiced her snaps to the quarterback before the game. These girls were focused the whole game and it showed by not dropping one snap.

Below left: A wide open and well-guarded Veronica Zebratski dropped back and pumped the ball to get ready to launch it down the field.

Before the game each player was introduced and then marched down the field where their teammates gave them high-fives. Irina Polyak, seen above, moved down the line of pumped up Seniors.

"We all felt it was a good game. Our girls played hard the whole time. But in the end an unknown coach by the name of Dan Garza came on the field and tried a new strategy by putting 12 girls in at once. The refs didn't agree with the call of 12 people, so the Juniors started from the 5 yard line. And on 4th and goal, they scored."

"The girls had a lot of heart and really wanted to win. They came that night ready to play. They opened up a little slow but the defense came through with good blocks by defensive star Kendra and captain Heather Wilson against the powerful senior offensive line. The pass defense held strong by controlling the great arm of Veronica Zebratski. Heidi Gentry and Tyisha Collins shut the senior receivers down. Offense was slow almost the whole game, except on one drive which failed inside the ten yard line, after a spectacular catch by Gentry. It wasn't until overtime that we scored the first, and last points of the game. Quarterback, and "hero" of the game Alisha Galvin took a quarterback sneak up the middle and dove over the line to win the game. Some credit should go to Kristin Hiller and Stephanie O'Neil for their great blocking on the last effort."

A Winning Drive

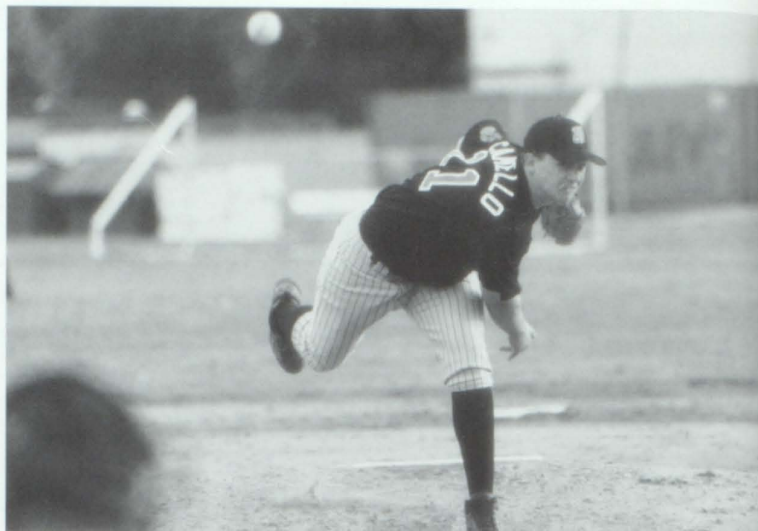

...and it's outta here!

New coaches brought an invigorated attitude to the baseball program this year. The Varsity squad was powered with 14 Seniors and 8 of 9 returning starters. In non-league play, boys went 6-2 with the help of pitchers Keith Bohanan, Jared Videtich and Mike Estrada. Other strong players were catcher Nick Barba and outfielder Nick Maurer. This group of ball players promised to be one of the top contenders in the league and showed it in many exciting wins. Way to go BBC!

Our JV team was one of the best in the past years. They had one of the largest groups trying out and those picked were some of the best we had to offer. JV's worked hard, and fierce plays paid off in many games.

Top Right: Junior David Camello pitched with lightning speed. It is no wonder that this year's team was as strong as it was. The opposing team had good reason to be afraid.

Above: Never willing to lose a winning opportunity, Shaun Hea stole a base at the last moment. Quick thinking was just one of the many qualities that this year's varsity team possessed.

Right: One deep breath and a little concentration was all Jared Videtich needed to hit one over the fence. The swish of the bat silenced the crowds as they watched the ball sail through the air.

Steeerrike three! Nick Barba (pictured above) hurled the baseball back at the pitcher and prepared to intimidate the next batter.

Right: Jenny McLain showed off her throwing arm as she thrustured the ball to the second baseman. Jenny was also one of the juniors playing this year on the team. She was truly one of the main factors on this varsity squad.

Right: Patty Boyce demonstrated the proper way of stopping a wild pitch as she got in front of the ball. Patty had been with the varsity softball squad for all four years of her high school career. Way to go, Patty!

Amy Kerns showed us her swift and cunning pitch. As the varsity softball starting pitcher, Amy was one of the role players for this young varsity squad. She had followed in the footsteps and had filled in the shoes of elite pitchers such as Jennifer Spediacci and Kirsten Voak.

Below: Sophomore Chantelle Frank swung the bat with the expectation of hitting a line drive. This was Chantelle's first year with the Huskies and she has shown us true passion.

Softball

A League of Their Own

The Varsity Softball team had another terrific season this year. Composed of sophomores, juniors, as well as seniors, the softball squad had a lot of youthful energy and experience. They were undefeated during their pre-season games and had a fantastic regular season. Seniors such as Jessica Guererro, Erin Harrison, Veronica Zebratski, and Kelly Morgan brought the team leadership and great understanding of the game. Youthful stars such as Chantelle Frank, Breana Telles, and Chantal Bennett created a powerful and exciting team this year. Congratulations Varsity Softball Squad of 1999 for a great and thrilling season.

Short stopper Erin Harrison and left fielder Jessica Guerrero demonstrated the concentration and anticipation needed in a competitive sport such as softball. As seniors, Erin and Jessica brought experience as well as their drive to keep on winning. They truly represented our school with pride and integrity. Thank you, ladies!

"Always Run It Out"

(Michelle Spediacci)

This team meant business when they arrived on the field. "They show real potential," claimed coach Michelle Spediacci. This season was all about organization. With only three returning players, a new pitcher, and a new catcher, the team was forced to prioritize their players. With cooperation from both the coaches and players, these Huskies proved their worth by the end of the season.

"Are You Ready?"

Standing in the "ready position" gives a defense player an early start on the next play. Sophomore Melissa Hankins showed a good example of determination and concentration.

"Strike A Pose"

Sophomore, Allison Rawlings, was one of the team's newest players, but softball is anything but new to her. She was the team's main pitcher this season and showed off her skills by throwing numerous strike-outs at every game.

"Huddle!"

The in-field crowds around Buck Lorence, the team's assistant coach, who explained their main objective for the Washington vs. Logan game, "Big D. no E."

"I'll Get It!"

Team captain and center fielder, Kelly King squinted to see the ball and hoped that it wasn't a foul ball.

Who Let Those Little Dogs Out?

"Let Your Hair Down!"

Sophomores Amanda Ortmann and Allison Rawlings took time out for a laugh during a long, tiresome day of practice.

"SSTTRRIIKKEE!!!"

Team pitcher, Allison Rawlings, wound up for another strike. The one thing that made the team successful was the way everyone participated in every play. Positive comments such as "Good job," were heard regularly on the field.

"You betta run for it run for it run!"

TRACK AND FIELD

Can you imagine running thirty fifteen dashes with only a thirty second rest? Can you see yourself doing a 4x4 in the wind and / or rain and breathing all the dust and fumes of the dust? If you don't do track, you probably wouldn't understand the beauty of all that workout. If you are curious, ask our excellent track team. They practiced hard, rain or shine. They showed their time and dedication which led to well-deserved victories.

At the track meets the team showed their talents and we saw the results of all the hours of practice. They made an effort and it paid off. Maybe one of our track stars will be the next Jessie Owens! It was heartwarming to see members of the track team running throughout the neighborhood after school to perfect their running times and to increase their endurance. It's goal-driven athletes like these that make the Huskies reign supreme!

Above: Johnny Bergloff was hustling in from a quick yet well-done sprint at practice. John was a senior this year and will be missed when he graduates. He was an asset to the team.

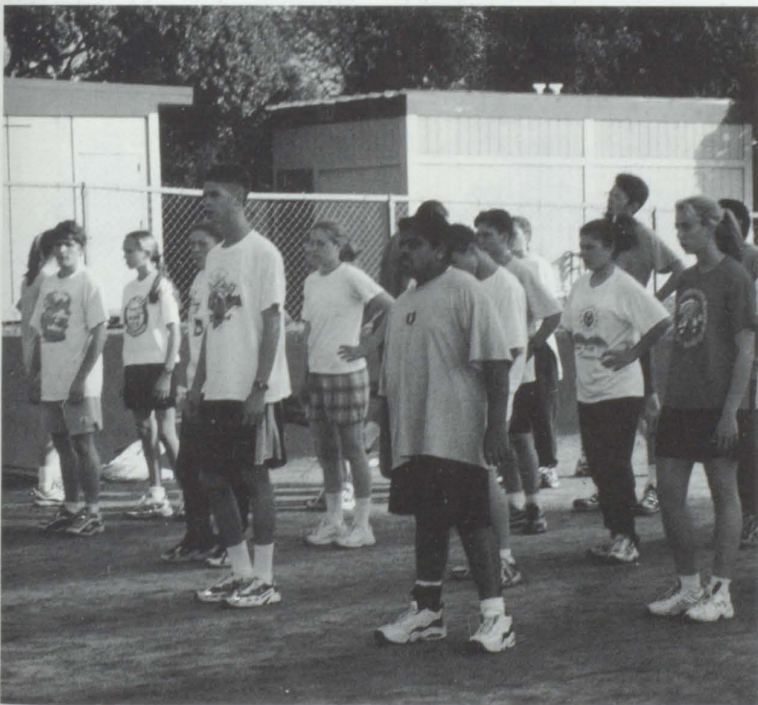

Left: Jahan Lan took a second look as he sprinted during a practice, from starting to ending point. As he flew around the track, two of his teammates ran up the hill.

Left: Coach Rahmen was explaining what drill he wanted them to do next. He did a really great job with the track team this year. Along with a couple assistants, he made our track team worth being excited about.

Below: Mia Scafani and Clarisse Mesa took a breather after a hard workout to put their best face forward. Even though they had been sweating it up, they seem to have enjoyed the effort.

Above: Breathing exercises or listening to instructions? Members of the track team had their feet firmly planted on the ground as they took a moment to stand in one place rather than their usual mode of fleet-footed travel.

GO GO TENNIS RANGERS!

Below: Khoa Nguyen (on the right) and Sunil Kaki practiced some of their mad racket skills during one of their preseason games against Amador Valley. Khoa filled in for Sanjay Jeyakumar as the other Varsity #1 doubles player.

Right: Ben Patton smashed a ball across the net to his nemesis. Ben was the Captain of the Boys Tennis Team, and was also one of the best players in Fremont. Coach MacLeod continually praised Ben's skill and determination.

Varsity Boys Tennis

The Varsity Boys Tennis team had an impressive year. They started out their season with a few preseason games in which they played competitively. In one of their preseason games they played Castro Valley and won 6-1. They also played Amador Valley. The Boys Tennis Team had five Seniors this year: Ben Patton, Ashley George, Sanjay Jeyakumar, Sunil Kaki, and Jim Suh. Mr. MacLeod, the boys' coach, gave the guys their own free time to practice skills they needed to improve. His coaching skills have obviously been beneficial, because the boys placed third last year and placed as one of the top teams in the district this year as well. Coach MacLeod said that Ben Patton was one of the best players in the league and had a chance to win the league championships. Alex Huang will most likely play #1 next year. He is going to be a vital leader for next year. Ken Deng is a rare player. He was already on Varsity and was only a Freshman. Sanjay Jeyakumar and Sunil Kaki led the boys Varsity doubles players with their powerful playing. Khoa Nguyen and Jim Suh were strong and steady team players. Abe Park and Chris Gonzales are both extremely athletic. The boys are improving each year, and Mr. MacLeod was very proud of them. The boys Varsity Tennis team credited some of their success to their daily running during practice, and to the leadership of their captain, Ben Patton.

Left: Alex Huang recovered after hitting another one of his powerful strokes against Amador Valley in a preseason game. He was the Varsity Boys #2 player, and is going to be one of the leaders next year.

Left: Ashley George got ready to smash down his opponents lob. Ashley was a Senior who played as an alternate Varsity player.

Below: Abe Park and Samir Pathak played together as #3 Varsity doubles during one of their preseason games. They both were an important part of the team.

GO HUSKIES

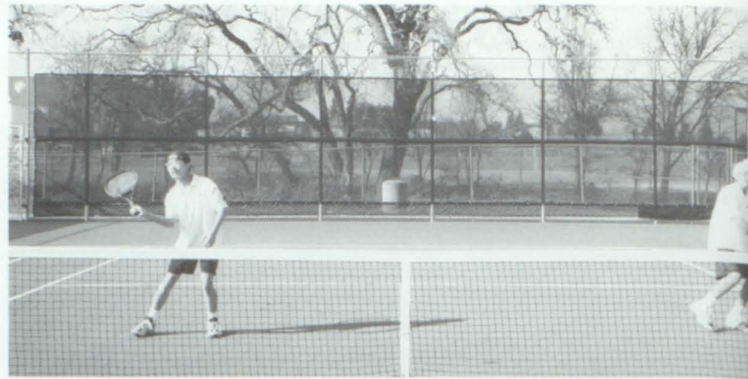

Right:

Doubles partners, Thomas Tsai and Supreet Singh, covered the court with agility and quickness, and showed that nothing would get by them. That skill contributed to their many wins and their #2 ranking in Doubles.

Below:

Some people have a hard time doing two things at once. Amrinder Singh showed us he can be courteous while making a lethal swing at the ball.

Below:

Danny Chang's expression showed that he hadn't realized how fast the ball can travel. Luckily, he pulled back just in time to return the serve. Good job, Danny!

Above:

Thomas Tsai anticipated the ball as he prepared his backhand swing in an attempt to slide it by his opponent.

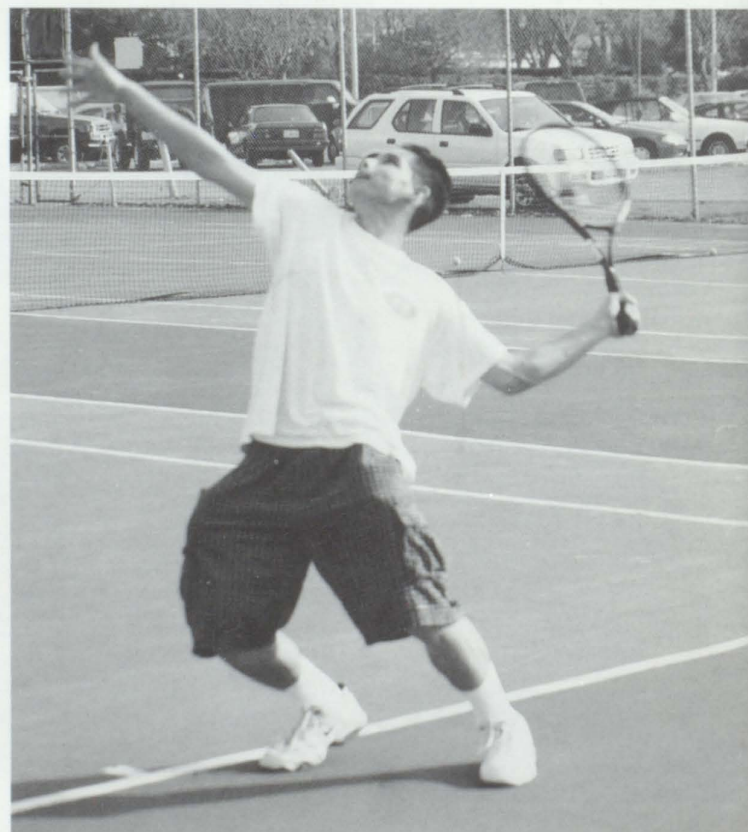

Right:

Number one doubles player, Jeff Fisher, was caught seconds before finishing a beautiful serve during one of their many practices. Jeff was one of the elite players on the J.V. squad.

Right:

With strength and determination, Derek Ynzunza demonstrated, in his form, the perfect serve. For his first year playing tennis, Derek ranked #3 in singles, and has definitely shown us that hard work pays off.

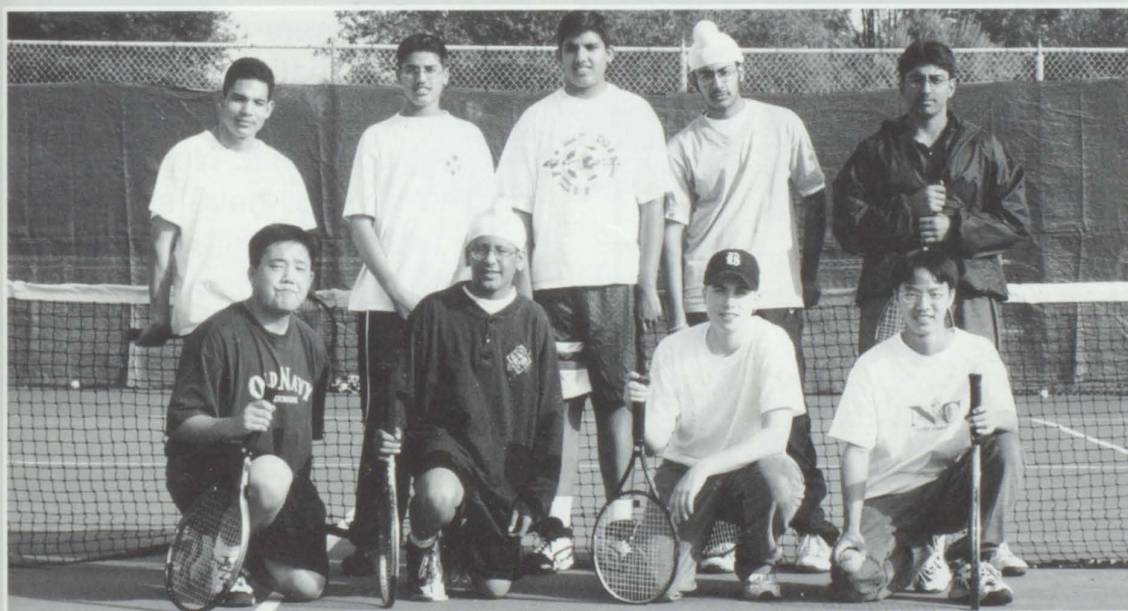

Don't be intimidated by the LOVE

Boys Tennis sprung alive this year with a new group of very talented players. Under the leadership of head coach MacLeod, the J.V. team managed to dominate the league in yet another season. The endless practices and motivation from Coach MacLeod added to their streak of wins. The team improved a lot this year with the return of many J.V. players such as: Amrinder Singh, Mike Martin, Chery George, Ryan Lam, Jeff Fisher, Samir Pathak, and Rishi Singh. The boys showed a lot of dedication and heart in the sport this season, which definitely contributed to their wins.

Left:

With a strong player like Mike Martin on the J.V. squad, you're guaranteed to spark wins left and right. That may explain his amazing record of no losses in the past three years.

"Yes, master Kristy, how may I be of service?"
Tony Cimino happily followed orders from senior Kristy Audiat.

Varsity Team: Evan Pohl, Brett Cates, Gus Palma, James Yauch, Cody Ortman, Brandon Sabado, Tony Cimino, Crosby Keiper

"Tony, don't make me hurt you . . . now do as I say!!" Kristy willingly commanded the lower classmen.

Fun and games? Not quite.

Improving your times isn't easy. It takes hard work, persistence, and determination. Spectators as well as most swimmers don't take the time to realize all of the little details that go into improving your race. Not only do you need to have speed and technique, but a well-balanced diet has a lot to do with your mental and physical ability. Swimmers use up and require lots of calories daily. An ample amount of potassium and carbohydrates are needed to stay healthy and energetic. All of these aspects combined with 5 practices a week provide us with the agile, victory-seeking Varsity and J.V. Washington boys swimmers.

Andrew Squires was happy to take a break from his warmup. So, what is it this time, Andrew? Did your goggles come loose?

Coach Brian was busy at work writing down times. Don't bother him or in the future you might find yourself swimming a 500m backstroke.

Justin Swift came up for air and was shocked by Steve Stacey's ever-changing hair style.

One of these swimmers just didn't appear to belong. But outside the waters there was no gender segregation. Everybody just kicked back and had a good time.

Hey, baby. . .how's about you and me do a couple quick laps after practice? suggested Crosby Keiper.

"Next item up for bids," exclaimed Steve Stacey. So. . . this is what you boys did when you weren't tearing it up in the water.

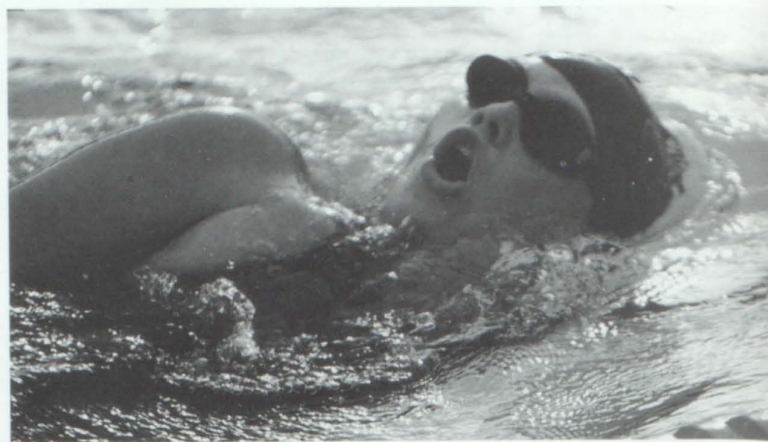

Seniors Brett Cates and Cody Ortmann gave a quick example of the companionship among teammates.

Right: Maybe if I fly fast enough, I'll be able to get out of the pool. Second year swimmer, Michele Celino helped the team with her expertise in the fly stroke.

Below: Kristie Audiart reflected on the swim meet against Mission before starting the monotonous lap back and forth in the pool.

Right: Kathleen Loughran's determination aided her competitiveness as she swam to victory. Being a red head didn't hurt her, either.

Beware of Sharks!

J.V. and Varsity Girls Swimming

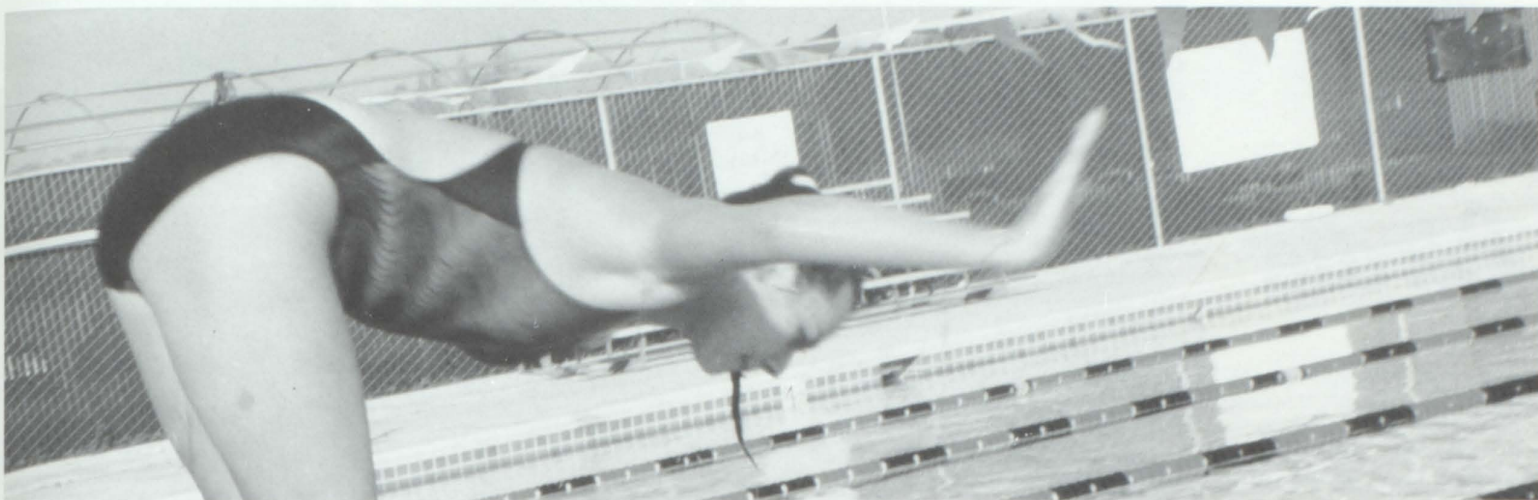

The hardships faced by the girls swimming team have often gone unnoticed. These devoted swimmers spent hours each day practicing and perfecting each and every stroke. Regardless of the harsh weather conditions experienced earlier this year, the team was determined to maintain their rigorous practice schedule. The tiresome and draining practices pushed the team to maintain their rigorous practice schedule.

Their tiresome and draining practices pushed the team to strive for their best as they made their way up the ladder. Beating their competitors, they realized that all their hard work and practice paid off. Even though they practiced diligently to get their position, they had fun in the process. The night before each meet consisted of a spaghetti feed at someone's house to get the team filled with a lot of carbohydrates. Way to go Huskies!

Varsity Coach Keiper looked on anxiously while his team was competing in a season match.

Below: Lauren Zimmerman determined her fate as she posed on the diving board ready to plunge into the depth of the water.

Below: Slicing through the water Stephanie O'Neil managed to gasp for a breath of air before reaching her ultimate victory.

"Bye Bye Birdie"

Right: "How low can you go?" #1 Boys Doubles player David Myers tested that question as he set up for the serve during a heated match against Newark Memorial. He stood concentrated and ready.

Below: These Junior Varsity players didn't hesitate to group together before a big match against American for a friendly snapshot. (Top Lft-Rt: Bindi Patel, Ping Chen, Emma Lin, Wendy Wang, Edgar Amabula, Cindy Le, Lawrence We, Howard Wu, Billy Hu) (Bottom Lft-Rt: Wajma Hamsafar, Angela Kim, Jennifer Wang, Priti Patel)

Presiding over the game against Newark Memorial, Coach Ryan Goddu took down important stat notes as his right hand man, Omar Saaed, kept watch. These two leaders knew what it took to win victories. Fierce competition didn't appear to rattle them.

Right: Freshman Haseena Mohabbat never took her eyes off the birdie as it sailed down towards her. Even during practice, this #3 Varsity Doubles player performed with grace and agility. She's definitely on her way to the top. (Right)

Right: The birdie was chop-sui after the team's star player, Omar Saeed, was finished with it. This #1 Varsity Singles player enjoyed slamming the birdie down against his opponent and did it well.

BADMINTON

Now who said Badminton doesn't take talent? Junior Henry Tsai showed off his new skill of balancing a birdie on his head while standing on one leg as he entertained the crowd. This future entertainer played #2 Boys Doubles. It's not as easy as it looks, though!

Sophomore Cindy Le proved she was ready to make the transition from an amateur to a professional player as she casually hit the approaching birdie with a perfected form. (Left)

"Look up in the sky. It's a bird, it's a plane, no it's a birdie!" Ping Chen pointed to the flying birdie while her helpful partner, Howard Wu, looked on in amazement. (Bottom)

MORE Than You'd Expect

Huskies on the rise! These players have come together once again, with some new members in the crew, for yet another promising season. They all realized that Badminton is a sport that doesn't just take a couple rackets and a birdie but dedicated and skilled individuals. Badminton involves agility, quick reflexes, and power. Often mistaken to be a lot like tennis, birdies don't get a chance to bounce on the ground. This year the team has attracted students from every grade level. It is a complete co-ed sport in which boys and girls can play together, even on the doubles teams. Students join because of the friendly environment but mostly because it's fun. With the help of Coach Goddu, this year's team worked their way to the top.

The camera was able to capture the smiles of all the Varsity players, not to mention their friendly faces. The things that the camera was unable to capture were their talent, skill, and dedication to the sport. These Huskies include: (Lft-Rt Top: Omar Saeed, Raman Naraya, David Myers, Desmond Cheung, Ernest Lin, Johnny Gu, Edgar Arambula, Deepa Rayadurg, Karmen Li, Aman Brar, Lakshmi Narayan, Preet Singh, Alex Citkiwicz, Louis Fan, Cecille Torres, May Wu, Haseena Mohabbat, Sapna Nangrani, Jennifer Lee, Michael Tsai, Henry Tsai, Simi Grewal, Bhavika Vinayak, Jasmeet Kaur, Mary Wu)

What a swing! With a smile breaking through Christopher Corcoran watched how far his ball traveled. Forget Happy Gilmore, Christopher had the longest drive on the golf team.

As Peter Bosko waited until his turn, he practiced his swing on the green. He knew he had to warm up before it was his turn because he wanted to make that hole in one.

On the far left, Raymond Balli stood next to a player from the opposing team. Jacob Saito, on the right, laughed as Raymond told him how easily they were going to beat these boys.

"AirBall"
The ball really got air when Jacob Strong took aim. He needed peace and quiet in order to make the shot.

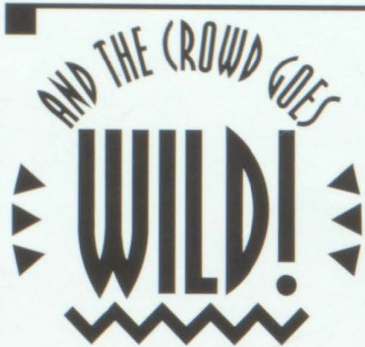

With full concentration on the ball, sophomore Raymond Balli mathematically figured out how he could get a hole in one at his golf match in Sunol.

Jacob Saito swung his club mercilessly, whacking his ball to its destination. His precise swing drove the ball down the course.

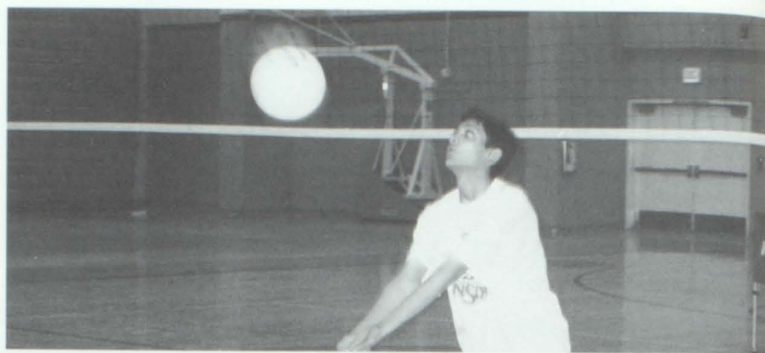

Bump, Set, Spike!

With such enthusiastic volleyball players, Boys Volleyball had an amazing season. Both the JV and Varsity came together as a team, and Washington's Boys Volleyball were magnificent. Coach Duncan, Coach Choy, and Coach Glock stressed the importance of teamwork and Captain Wali Mojaddidi gave the team inspiration and experience from previous years. Overall the team has grown over the season with the new and the experienced learning to work together as a team. With WHS's determination, winning streaks were inevitable.

Right: "Here comes the ball. Ready or not!" Nimit Patel put out his arm and got in position. He was ready to bump that ball right back to Coach Glock.

Above: Knees bent and arms out, Justin Choy was ready to bump that ball no matter what. He was determined to bump up that ball, even if it meant digging for it.

Right: As Andy Smyth was pumping up for the game, Ali Mojaddidi and Brandon Edwards were practicing to see if they could jump up pass the net.

"Wow! Have you ever seen anyone jump so high since Michael Jordan?" Captain of the Boys Varsity team, Wali Mojaddidi really showed some powerful moves out there on the court. He also showed a lot of encouragement and teamwork.

These adorable cheerleaders took a break to pose for a quick picture at halftime during the Homecoming game against Mission. This is the first time in years that our school has had a Freshmen Spirit Squad.

The Spirit Squad showed their unity throughout the whole season. They treated each other with respect and with a sense of sisterhood. Eventhough they are divided into squads, they perform as a team. The Varsity Squad consists of twelve girls. The Junior Varsity Squad consists of ten girls, while the Freshmen Squad consists of seven girls.

Funny as they can be these Junior Varsity and Freshmen cheerleaders are full of Husky Spirit at halftime during the Homecoming game against Mission. Their exuberance is infectious!

Show me your Spirit!!

As Jessica Trevino, Angela Bingle, and Eunji Cho pose for their Varsity picture at halftime during the Homecoming game, Shannon Mattingly, Jennie DeForest, and Mrs. Motta are trying desperately to get in the mix. Mrs. Motta was in her second year as the Spirit Squad advisor, but later resigned. Mrs. Freitas then took over as the advisor until the role can be replaced by a new coach.

These lovely ladies kick back after a strenuous evaluation at cheerleading camp over the summer at the University of Santa Cruz. They spent four days and three nights at camp to perfect their routines and become Washington's Spirit Squad.

During the Homecoming game against Mission, Ashley Sanchez, Erin Jones, Heather Wilson, and Stephanie Brown show us how pearly white their teeth were for the camera. They represent four out of eight Juniors in the Varsity Spirit Squad.

The 98-99 Varsity Spirit Squad performed with great enthusiasm this year as they led our school in cheering for our Huskies. Their undying spirit gave our team motivation and a lot of heart during each and every game. Our varsity squad, with the junior varsity and freshmen squad attended a cheer camp at the University of Santa Cruz. It was there where the girls learned to improve their skills in cheers, stunts, and dances. All the hard work paid off in camp as the girls became a unified team. As team captains, Amber Freitas and Angela Bingle had the responsibility to lead the the entire squad in organization and in discipline. They attended the captain meetings at cheer camp and learned the qualities of being a leader. This was their first year as team captains, and they seemed to enjoy every minute of it. As the Spirit Squad advisor, Mrs. Motta entered her second year working with the Husky cheerleaders. She resigned due to her devotion to her baby. Mrs. Freitas then took over the role as the advisor for the remainder of the season. It was another electrifying season for our school due to our lovely cheerleaders!!

The explosion of water is just what every surfer hopes to find as they journey to the ocean. This is just what Roger Mihalko was fortunate enough to experience. The torrent of waves was what gave this surfer the thrill of the ride.

Garen Becker demonstrated just one of his many stunts for a crowd at the Presidio. Having competed in the November '98 Observed Bicycle Trials, his goal was not to look cool, do tricks, or to go fast, but to overcome any obstacle. Courtesy of Observed Trials Magazine

Christina Estrada seems to be kicking up a lot of dust. Christina has always known her way around horses. Along with her Appaloosa horse named Thunder, Christina has won countless ribbons and medals for her riding ability.

Christina's love for horses was very apparent. Crazy Miss Daisy, a quarter horse, knows she will always be well taken care of by her owner. Though horse racing is a vigorous and thrilling sport, it can also be very soothing. Christina has found solace in this sport. Despite the dangers involved, Christina still strives toward perfection in her riding abilities.

This extremely talented individual doesn't like walking down the steps. He prefers doing a "soul grind" down them. This awesome move can be accomplished by grinding down a rail. He enjoys taking the faster route at his "hot spots": Newark Memorial, Mission High School, and the Embarcadero in San Francisco.

Abe Park tried to keep his balance while waving at the camera. Hi Mom! Dangerous? Yes. Fun? Definitely! His talent and risk-taking has drawn him many compliments. When asked if he would take it to the next level and perhaps go professional, he replied, "I'm just going to go with the flow."

Whoa! That was tight! The advanced move Abe was perfecting in this photo is his trademark. It's titled the "alley-oop pornstar" and was one of Abe's favorite tricks. His favorite skater is a local named Jon Julio.

Abe Park was again photographed doing what he does best. Even though it took Abe almost three years to master his talent, he continued to push himself to the limit. He enjoys skating with his friends, and meeting and learning from fellow thrill seekers.

Summer, Fall, Winter, Spring... No matter the season, Extreme Sports fanatics take the field, or terrain for that matter, by storm.

Whether in the frigid temperatures of snow, the rock-hard surface of concrete, or the grim reality of dirt, Washington High's very own students show off their extreme skills! It may seem that these individuals are fearless; but in reality, they stare death in the face, each and every time they perform their dangerous stunts. WOW!!

Daredevil Jared Sheldon (above) was seen from below climbing the towering rocks of Yosemite, one of his favorite places to go to. This extreme sport requires much endurance and agility. Despite his fear of heights and of rocks falling on his head, Jared has managed to climb a 400 ft. boulder. He felt a natural high every time he reached the peak of the rock and looked down. What a rush!

The freshmen stomped into this year with an amazing skit. It was proclaimed by some as one of the best freshmen skits in the past few years. They showed a tremendous amount of Washington spirit through the whole school year, but especially during spirit week. They gathered together and created a skit in less time than freshmen usually get. They pulled together "James Bond." Even though they came in fourth place, they had lots of fun and showed their spirit. From yee-hawing hill-billies to punk rockers, the freshmen really knew how to strut their stuff. They still have many memorable years to come at Washington, but their freshmen year will be one they will remember time and time again. Great job this year freshmen!

WHAT FRESHMEN WERE AFRAID OF!

Before we were Freshmen there were things that terrified us about going to high school. Some of the fears the Freshmen this year had were...

1. Getting stuffed in a locker
2. Getting swirlies
3. Getting thrown in the garbage
4. Getting beat-up
5. Getting made fun of
6. Getting Stepped on

How do you get around curfews?

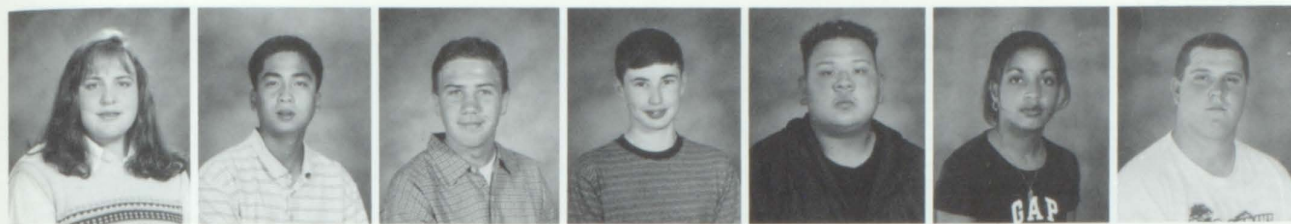

1. Sleep over a friend's house without a curfew
2. Set the clocks back
3. Negotiate
4. "The car broke down."
5. Sneak in late
6. Become invisible
7. Act sweet and innocent
8. "There was traffic."
9. "I lost track of time..."
10. "By not having one."

What's your statement?

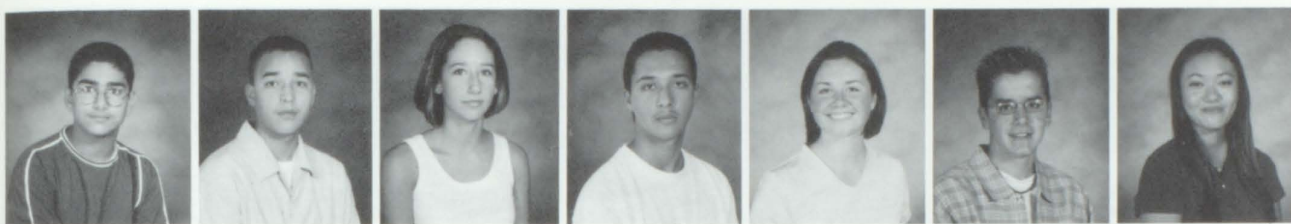

1. "Who's your Daddy?"
2. "Take risks...you can't fall off the bed if you sleep on the floor."
3. "I came, I saw, I conquered."
4. "Don't stress the small stuff."
5. "Imagination is greater than knowledge."
6. "This is my world, you're just living in it."
7. "You only live once....."
8. "A high 'F' is something to be proud of."
9. "Is this a joke?"
10. "Vatos Locos Forever!"

Seniors

As good as it gets

What's your excuse for getting to 5th period late?

"Umm... the bells are off!" -Jewelyn Almazan

"MY CLUTCH WENT OUT." -CHRISTY BURKHALTER

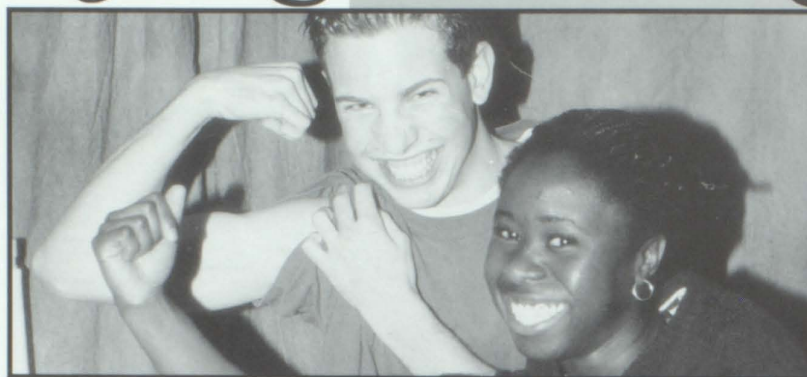

"Long lunches-hot guys from other school." -Monique Ybarra

"Sorry, I was at El Patio." -Jennifer Kennedy

"A girl gotta eat, ya know!" -Sunny Park

"I was eating a hamburger as big as a frisbee." -Brian Duke

"I was eating the leftover hamburger that Brian didn't finish." -Johnny Bergloff

Best Smile:

Well, the days of head gear and rubber bands paid off for our best smile winners, Garin Pohl and Ida Friar.

Best Dressed:

Check the magazine racks! Lauren Danielson and Romualdo Arayata are headed for the cover of Vogue and GQ!

Best All-Around:

Jesse Ventura can wrestle in the WWF and be governor of Minnesota. Just like him, our best all-around, are Tim Snelson and Clarisse Mesa.

Most Athletic:

On January 14, the greatest basketball player of all time decided to leave the courts. The NBA will be never be the same until Keith Bohanan and Jennifer Kennedy are drafted.

Joined at the hip:

Remember Six and Blossom? Washington's best friends are Frances Tsui & Meredith Avery, and Aaron & Brian Hoskins.

"In 1995 we set sail to conquer the unknown territory of high school. Throughout our journey, we've matured, laughed, and even cried together. Although there were occasional storms that came our way, we managed to pull through it. In 1999, the sails will be taken down and we would set foot on to a land of our dreams. Let us not forget the journey we have traveled together and the memories we've created."

-Diana Cangco

"It's hard to believe that we're graduating. 'Finally!' you're likely to say, but you have to admit that we've shared some great memories. We are a class of participation and achievers. Our legacy will live on at WHS long after we leave the halls. No matter what distance may separate us throughout life, we'll always have one tying bond. We are members of the class of '99. It was tough at times but the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing. It's been a pleasure."

-Clarisse Mesa

"Class of '99 is incredible. We have unforgettable memories of Homecoming victories, dress-up days, skits, and dances. From Freshmen orientation to Senior Picnic, we've made new friends and have shared fun times. No other class can compare to the last class of the millennium. We've worked hard from day one, using fantastic ideas to make our skits and activities the best beyond comparison."

-Alicia Sweeney

"Where do I begin? I don't think I've ever seen such a group of dedicated people. After our amazing first three years, I didn't think it would get any better, but it did! You guys worked your butts off to make this year the best ever! From Sr. Picnic to "floating underneath the stars" at Sr. Ball, we've had lots of good times. I'm proud to say that I'm a member of the last & best class of the century-Class of '99!"

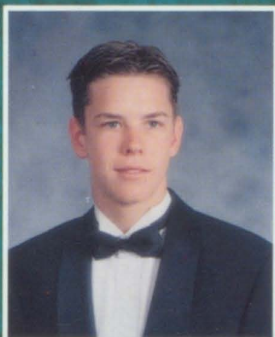

-Christina Chandler

Here to present an unforgettable Senior year are: (top to bottom) Treasurer Christina Chandler, Vice President Clarisse Mesa, Secretary Alicia Sweeney, and President Diana Cangco.

Waves of Fun...

The Senior Class venture to Water World USA

Fun, sun, and thrilling water rides weren't enough for these girls. They made sure that they got their money's worth and enjoyed the free food. Left side (top - bottom): Allison Rost, Katharine Allen, Megan Pratt, Jewelyn Almazan, Ebony Koger. Right side (top - bottom): Clarisse Mesa, Diana Cangco, Sruthi Naidu, Mili Shah, Alicia Sweeney.

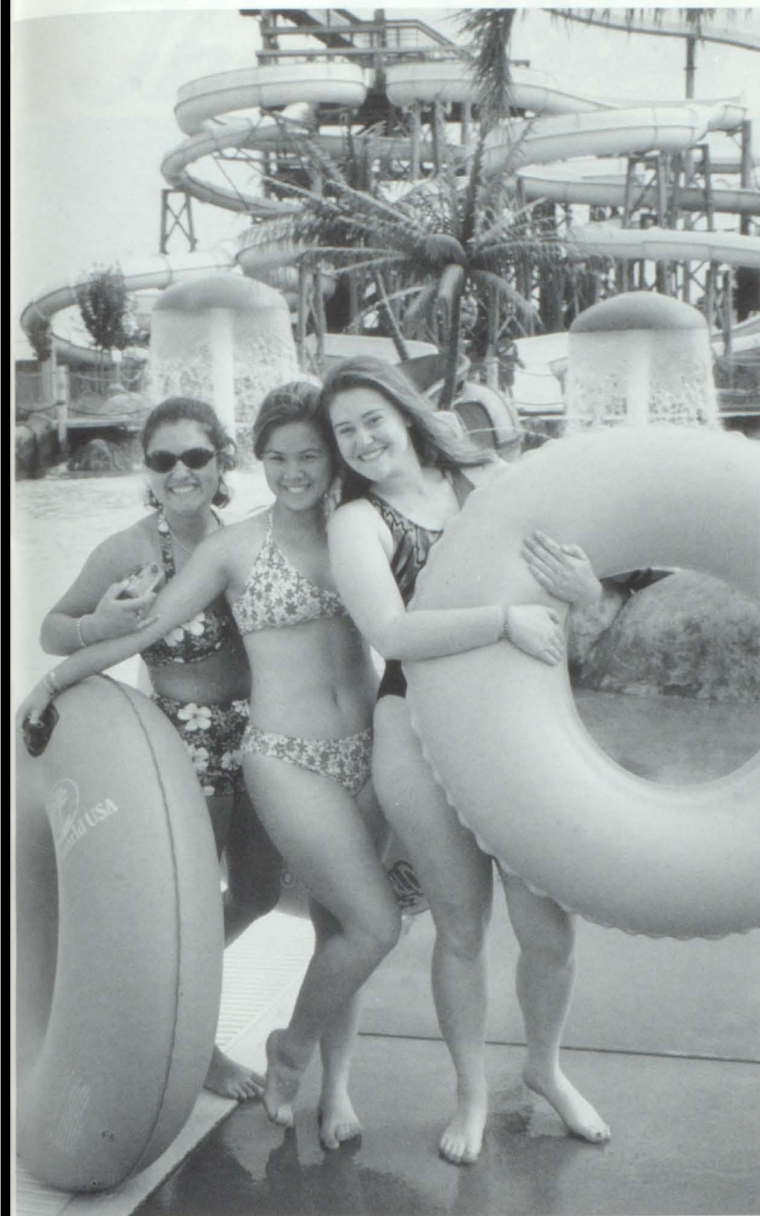

Lina Rasul could care less about the deadly chlorine content...just as long as she gets her tan!

What's that rule about not going in the water right after eating? Derek Johnson and Halimah Brown decide to take a break before they head back for the water rides.

Not all the fun took place in the water at this year's senior picnic. Amy Hesser headed for the sand to play some volleyball. As you can see, she is no amateur to the sport!

Armed with the giant blue rubber tubes, Heather Toth, Monique Ybarra, and Meghan Krauss were ready to face the much feared Tidal Wave Pool.

Drummer Frank Salvatore provided Water World with some live entertainment. Looks like we are amongst an up-and-coming musician folks! Quick...the line for his autograph is already starting to form!

WATER WORLD USA

September 22, 1998 was a much awaited day for the Senior Class. Students arrived at school bright and early, only to find that the day was hardly "bright." The overcast sky didn't affect these seniors. They were convinced that it would clear up by the time they arrived at the park. In four school buses, the Class of '99 set off on their hour long bus ride to Water World USA. Upon reaching the park, students underwent a security check given by park officials to ensure the safety of all those attending the picnic.

Some students headed straight for the water despite the cold. Sure enough, the sun came out just as many had predicted. Now it was time to truly enjoy themselves. Although many students swore they would never go on any of the water rides, or be seen in their swim suits,...they soon changed their minds. Within minutes everyone found themselves waiting in line to slide down from gargantuan slides into the pools of water which lay far, far below. Their fun was only interrupted by the news that lunch was being served. The smell of hot dogs and hamburgers pervaded the air. After a hearty lunch, the senior class headed back out for rides so that they could get a few more rounds in before it was time to leave the park and end their long awaited day of relaxation.

Wait a minute...isn't that Ms. Pavlecic, Mr. Witter, Mr. Mangini, and Mr. Ancona on that water slide? Hmmm....I thought the only reason they came on this trip was to supervise the seniors. Isn't there some kind of rule against having fun while doing so? This must be a violation of some sort...I'm sure of it!

Senior Breakfast...

A satisfied smile crossed Jodi Curtis's face as she discovered the large selection of food available at this year's Senior Breakfast. This definitely beats what the cafeteria has to offer. This is just another perk to being a Senior.

Alexia Donges (pictured below) showed off her class spirit with her senior class T-shirt. Senior Breakfast is one of the last activities that the class of '99 has the opportunity to take part in together. Hopefully everyone made the most of it.

Christina Chandler's witty commentary pleased the crowd. As a class officer, she co-hosted the Golden Paw awards that took place at this year's Senior Breakfast. She also caused a lot of laughter through her participation in comedy sports. (right.)

Jason Kruschke (right) seems to be quite pleased with what his $7.00 got him. Not only was it good food, but it also bought him bragging rights against all the under classmen!

The Golden Paw Awards

Stephanie Pinto (shown on right) was delighted. Who knew bagels could bring such pleasure! I guess anything would be enjoyable if it meant being away from school, even if it is only for two periods. Nonetheless, good food and good friends always makes for a good time.

With the help of volunteer Mary Walton, comedy sports experts Brian Heater, Brett Cates, and Garin Pohl had the audience laughing hysterically with their improvisational skills. (picture below)

The Entertainment:

Performances by Washingtonian Talents Thrilled the Crowd

Tim Lee (pictured) and Elijah No touched the crowd with a song of friendship entitled "Soldier." This duo brought back fond memories of the past. These two sure know how to impress an audience!

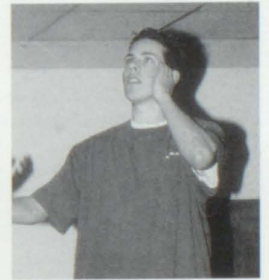

We have all seen her amazing skills at choreographing dances for the senior class spirit week skits, but at this year's senior breakfast we got to see Nicole Pagan at her best.

Between the announcements of this year's Senior favorites, the talented students of Washington High kept the crowds entertained through out Senior Breakfast.

"Next Time" was beautifully sung by the talented Tina Lieu. It will be no surprise to one day see her name at the top of the pop charts.

Shedding Light

Seeing past through the stereotypes of other schools

Since the beginning of Fremont and its high schools, there have been rivalries, and with those rivalries come stereotypes. Mission is considered the snob school. Washington supposedly has a nice gym, but does it really? Students from these schools never really know what other schools are like; they just take the stereotypes as the truth. So one day, the editors from these two schools' yearbook staffs got together for lunch, and brainstormed for a way to break some of those stereotypes. We finally decided on having a shadow day. On October twenty-seventh, one editor from each school switched schools, while the other stayed to show their guest around. Throughout the day, they watched classes and students, and were amazed by how little of the stereotypes were actually true. This page appears in both of the schools' yearbooks. This is where they'll share their experiences with you, and maybe you, too, will realize how much stereotypes shape our view of the world today.

I hopped in the car and started my way to Mission San Jose High School on a warm and beautiful Friday. Through the rolling green hills and the rising sun blinding my eyes, I caught glimpses of houses bigger than the ones with which we, as Washingtonians, are familiar. These gigantic dwellings might be the ones that give the impression of Mission San Jose High School being the "rich kids' school" along with our preconceived images of a parking lot filled with Mercedes Benzes and Beemers.

At 7:35 AM, I found myself speeding through Mission San Jose and Ohlone College in hopes that my shadow and I would make it to first period by 7:40. With about 2300 students coming to school at the same time into one parking lot entrance, it can be a serious game of push and shove. Even with their large student body, the morning traffic was the same as the one any Washington student would experience at 7:28 AM.

Mission is regarded as the top school in the district with its high prestigious reputation of students being admitted to top college institutions. But their students are no different from any of us. Talking to some of them, they are like any of the people I talk to around our campus. They are not "snobby or stuck up" like everyone makes them out to be. Truthfully though, a majority of the students are rich. However, this shouldn't lead people to think that they are unapproachable.

As for the big houses that dot the hills surrounding MSJ, they seem to give the allusion that the school is the richest in our district. If this was true, Mission San Jose would actually have a pool, tennis courts and other facilities that they desperately need. Beth Goncalves from Mission mentioned that she hated it when other students would stereotype their school as being the "rich school." "I don't think our school is rich; just look at our facilities," she added.

So before you digest any stereotype about Mission San Jose, realize that most of them might not be true. They have truly worked hard to earn the highly respected reputation that they hold.

As I entered Washington High School's parking lot, I saw no difference from what I see at Mission each morning: some classy cars, some hoopies, some family vans, and some modified cars- all fighting for less parking places than there are cars. Despite the morning rush, the schools are quite different, though.

At Mission, Washington is known as "the spoiled school." "I don't believe it's fair how Washington has a facility for every sport and Mission doesn't even have tennis courts or a pool. I feel that having a football stadium is a huge part of high school." Daniel Morrar (MSJ)

The school received a new gymnasium in 1992 and this year debuted a new building. However, we need to look past what we see on the surface and see why they received such generous facilities.

Before modern additions, Washington was known as "the portable school"; it was said that, if needed, you could pick up the school and move it. This became their nickname because they had so many ancient portables on campus. They still use science classrooms where they can only fit four desks across the classroom and their lab tables are in a separate room. The rooms are approximately a fourth of the new science rooms at Mission.

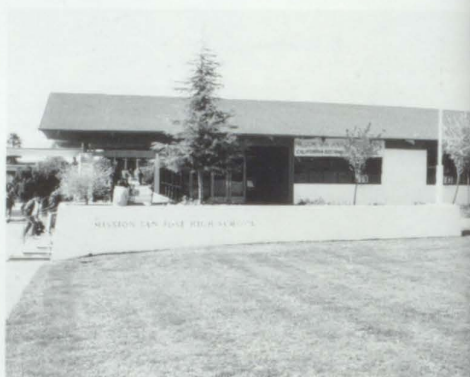

Washington's old building didn't meet the safety standards, so they received the new indoor campus that they have now. However, the new building is not exclusively used; they still use the portables and some of the old buildings. With the addition of the new facilities, each staff member has their own classroom so that no teacher has to share their room.

The gymnasium is another source of complaints from Mission students. Washington students say that other schools make fun of their gym because the color is pink. But the gym is not something that can be judged using the eyes. When students pile into the gym for an activity, they can easily tell the flaws that the gym has. Even when using a microphone it is hard to hear a speaker; and when crowds cheer as loud as they can, their screams are downplayed by the bad acoustics in the facility.

So before you complain about the abundance of facilities that Washington has received in the last few years, take a closer look at the rooms that they had before the changes and you will see why the school needed some much awaited additions.

Although Washington High School has been fortunate enough to have received a new building, finishing touches still need to be made. The incomplete amphitheatre awaits what will be flourishing dramatics.

Mission San Jose High School may be stereotyped as the "rich school," but they are actually in much need of a renovation.

You can see the great change at WHS between the old science wing on the left and the new Eggers building in the background.

What it's all about...

Becoming a yearbook adviser has something to do with fate. In the spring of 1997, the district hired me to teach English at Washington. When I met with Principal Mike Martin, he asked me to recall the activities in which I had been involved when I attended high school. I told him I had been a newspaper editor and a writer for my high school literary magazine. "That's perfect!" he exclaimed, "Fred Brower, our yearbook adviser will be retiring this year and we need someone to replace him. How would you like to be the new yearbook adviser?" "I suppose I could do that," I offered. "I worked in book publishing before I became a teacher. I used to work for Charles Scribner's Sons and E.P. Dutton in New York." Little did I know what I had accepted, but the die was cast.

Fast forward to August 1998. After selecting twenty-five top-rated students to join our new yearbook staff, five staffers and I attended Josten's Bay Area Yearbook Seminar on the campus of Stanford University. We were about to learn the essentials of running a new and improved yearbook program in four sweltering summer days. This exhilarating and exhausting experience drove us into serious information overload. After returning from camp I constructed a NINE-page class syllabus that had my students rolling their eyes for weeks. I know they thought I had lost my mind.

As we arrived at camp, the Jostens' staff handed each school's team a workbook in which to create our yearbook plan for the year. We needed to develop our basic yearbook ladder (our page layout) and our theme for the year by the third night of camp. After finishing our workbooks, we entered them into a contest for the best layout and design to be judged by Jostens' staff. Two top schools would be chosen, with each receiving a prize of eight free color yearbook pages worth $1000!

I knew that our first major objective at camp involved developing a yearbook theme. During the week before we left for camp, I mulled over various ideas. The 1998 theme, "Breaking Ground," referred to the construction that had taken place over the past several years at Washington. With the construction completed, I wanted to springboard off that theme into our new one. The night before we left for camp, I had a dream about a tree that had sprouted in the location of the new building. I awoke with the phrase "new growth." Immediately I wrote it down in the new notebook I had purchased to bring to camp and then stuck it in my travel bag. Later that evening after our first day at camp, my five students and I met to brainstorm tentative themes. I revealed to them the idea that had come from my dream. We bounced it around and wrote down several variations: new beginning, rainbow idea, beginning of a new horizon. That was it! New Horizon. We thought about it and agreed. We proceeded to design key pages and the cover around this theme. Each divider page carried an image of the sun moving across the horizon, from sunrise to sunset. And that is how we selected the theme of the 1999 yearbook. Then those five students sweated it out each night at camp to design the best possible yearbook. Their work paid off because Jostens chose Washington as one of the top two schools to win the eight free color pages worth $1000. You should all be proud! We could not have done it without the dedication of Diana Cangco, Nirmal Bassi, Sunny Park, Tina Lieu, and Duyen Nguyen. I could not have survived this year without them. Thank you all for making this a wonderful year! I will never forget you.

In Loving Memory of Randy Scott

I'm Free

*Don't grieve for me, for now I'm free
I'm following the path that God laid for me.
I took his hand when I heard him call.*

*I turned my back and left it all.
I could not stay another day,
To laugh, to love, to work nor play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way
I found this place at the close of day.*

*If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joy.
A friendship shared, a laugh, a kiss.
Ah yes, these things, I too will miss.
Be not burdened with times of sorrow
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.*

*My life's been full, I savored much.
Good friends, good times, a loved one's touch.
Perhaps my time seemed all too brief,
Don't lengthen now with undue grief.
Lift up your heart and share with me,
God wanted me . . . now he set me free.*

"I will never forget the time when Randy came to Niles School wearing some gold chains that his dad got from a drug bust. Then he went behind the dumpster at school and whipped out some cardboard. The best part, though, was when he bust out in some break dancing moves. Too bad he didn't have any rhythm.

- George Pons

"Randy always put our friendship first. He always would cover me when I got in trouble and I would cover him, but he usually would be the one to take full responsibility and end up grounded. He always kept me on my toes and definitely made my childhood exciting. I knew a side of Randy not too many people knew. Believe me, he had a heart of gold. He changed so many lives of the foster kids he loved, and I'm going to miss him so much.

- Johnny Seoane

"Many people would think of Randy as funny and serious, but not me. I think of him more like a brother because he was always there for me."

- Bradley "Tex" Schexnider

"The memory that I will always hold close to my heart is that of the time when I was at Rancho Arroyo Park playing with my new boomerang. Randy, being Mr. Showoff, came over claiming to know everything about the boomerang, and Australia too. He took it from my hand, threw it about two million feet in the air, and watched it crash to the ground. It only shattered into three pieces. He saw my dad and ran home. The next day at school, he was totally apologetic and offered to buy me a chocolate milk. I loved him so much."

- Nicole Pagan

"The way I remember Randy Scott is that he was always a joker. Whenever I was feeling down he would make me laugh by saying something totally stupid. He told me he thought of me as a sister and that he never wanted to see me hurt, even though he wasn't really good at showing it. The most important thing I'll remember him by is the one thing he left me before he died. It just shows me that Randy really did want me to be happy. I just wish I had a chance to thank him before he passed away.

- Shasta Emerick

"When a group of friends and I went to Hot August Nights, Randy was the guy that livened up the trip. We hitched a ride with some people on the back of their truck and rode up and down the trip. Then we built the Tower of Power!"

- Zach Anderson

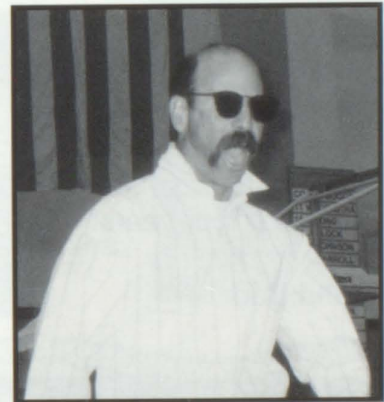

"My fondest memories of Randy are when I would come home and I would see Randy's smiling face talking to my mom or teasing my dad. Randy was always there for me, that's why I loved him."

- Stephanie Pinto

Dear Jackie,

Dad, Shannon and I want you to know how proud and happy we are that you are graduating. We know that there were times you wanted to give up but you stuck with it and did well. Now you will start another phase of your life. It's an exciting time for you and we hope a productive and happy time. Remember to cherish all the wonderful high school memories of your friends and school activities. But be ready for the world that is opening up to you now.
Go get 'em.
Love, Mom, Dad & Shannon

Well c/o 99 we're outta here! It's gone by in a flash, but it's been fun. Kel U R the best. U have been there 4 me through everything. Thank You! don't ever forget P.E. Got Milk? Sean, U R a pretty neat guy, thanks for listening to me & giving me advice. Softball has been exciting, that's 4 sure! Jess & Erin, thanks 4 all the memories (limp it!). U 2 are awesome, always making me laugh. Jess, Powderpuff was gr8. Thanks 4 all your advice. Good luck in marriage. Stephanie, Jr. yr. was a blast. Don't forget Punjabi, Mr. Ulrich or Billy! (He's lost that lovin' feeling!) Thanks 4 being a gr8 friend. Annie & Christy, what can I say? U 2 r hilarious! Danny, Nick, Brad, Pat & "Catfish" u r gr8 Powderpuff coaches. Good luck c/o 99 u r the best!

4 years of drama and only 150 words! Okay here I go: Pappi-stear clear of pine lotion and falling down stairs in 6 in. heals. Have you been arrested yet? Okay, Who's wearing my clothes? Hey how's chip? Rocko's fine. Walk down any mountains lately? I can feel the flames of hell. Steve Harwell, will you marry me? Sam Smith's keepin' it tight! Party at the Pappas! Go Lakers! Masta File / P / Lock 4eva. Lloyd Ardvard-What artwork! Can you see me through the invisible wall? Dumb & Dumber Rules! Knock Knock Who's there? Shh! Tai-stay away from psycho Mission girls and carrots! Ben-Nyquil / cuddling / breaking wind all in your sleep. Jo-Jo snuggles is watching. Tan-ya there REALLY was a wheelchair convention. Thanx Mom and Jon for everything. Got 2 go Springers on!!! Katie (aka: Katt, Harry, Kaka)

Well where do I begin? These past years have been great. Katt stay away from Rock boys, lotion massages, flying sweaters and books. You're a pro snow / skateboarder. Take some time off to watch TGIF and The Wedding Story (cramps & CROWNS) Up for Mission nights or wheelchair conventions. Hey maybe even a Race with Billy Bob Joe or Santa Cruz at 4 a.m. Coaches or Spetti House? (UTBSG's) Is it legal to go to Carl's Jr. 3x a day? MOVING ON! Hey Jock Hoe - watch out 4 flying wheelchairs & people "tripping" into your walls. Ernif - practice your peroets 4 the icecapades. A sweet from a sweetie! Ursallian Girls! Hey Ben have you found the elevator at Denny's yet? Tai - I will always be your PRINCESS (but you still can't have me) Thanx Woody & Butch for everything. Bye everyone. I'll miss you! Love always, Alicia (aka: Pappi, Snapcase)

It's over, time to get this ball rollin. Exept for you Matty, we're going to be roomies. Brad always remember Shehe. Fruit warriors and PPG 4 Life. D is that you. We'll keep LN going no matter where we end up. The sommerest will always be in our hearts. A-Dogg you make the best sandwichies. Remember who your favorite is. Calvin & Ray, tell Doniella I said 'hi' next year in Anderson. Empey, you're still a canadian. Alexia, once you and the one man wrecking crew finish, give me a call. CYO Cougars were the best. Hey, where did Happy go? Lets do Hot August Nights again. Now were 18 and don't have to worry about being arrested. Hootie Mac & Hoot Tang. Krunlc is the best band ever made. Stephanie, country sucks. Less Than Jake is the best. Thanks for all my fans support during the basketball games. BBC! We miss you Randy. Rest In Peace. I'm out. 24 point man. Sport, Idea man. See you guys in Santa Barbara or Chico. I know where the parties will be.

WOW, we're finally done it seems like forever ago that we were freshmen - things are so different! God, where do I start? Jen, remember the train to Sacramento years ago - that was drama! All of our camping trips in the rain! Hey Jodi, remember Mexico with Robin & Brian? And all those lost days in English. Julie you've been such a good friend! Remember German and Colia, scared nights at Super Saver! Want to go to Lyons? Yummy! How about all those football games! Thanks for always being there. I Love You! Heather, where do I start? Safeway boys, where's Waldo? Want some "water" wink-wink, online boys - drama! All those wild concerts, "sky-diving" with 94.9, Junior prom dates. To everyone else, have fun in college! I'll never forget you all. It's been fun, I love you all, you know we'll KIT Love ya, Meg

Kinjal-

Where to start? How 'bout when we first met? Oh my gosh...u were da rudest snob I eva knew. But look at us now; we're attatched at da hip. Over da last 5 years, our frienship has grown greatly. We've had our shares of: laughsartwork 3, making fun of Raj, and crank calls. Remember La Bouche? Hehe! I'll miss u, but I'll always be there 4 u. I LUV U!!!! Good Luck.

-Tejel

Tej, it's over, we're off our separate ways. We thought it would never pass! Time flies. But memories will last 4ever. Rewinding back: carpooling to school, walking home for lunch, dressing alike, annoying people, crank calling, Badminton, above all, being best friends, I'd relive it again in a second. As we depart to see the world in our own unique ways, never forget that you'll always have me as your forever friend anytime. GoodLuck, ILOVEYOU! Kinjal

High school is like a good wave. The swell approaches you from the horizon, you know it's coming and you look forward to it. The wave reaches it's peak and then crumbles and washes up on shore. You are left with all the great memories of that ride. You remember the difficult sections and the outraged ones, the highs and the lows. Full of odd encounters like being attacked by a deranged seal. Life can also be a bumpy and scary ride and without a relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ it will continue to be. Seek him out and that will all change (Matt 6 : 33). Time's up on our four years at Washington and it has been a blast. Now it's time to get our hair wet in the real world. To all my friends and teachers thank you ! See you at the beach, Alex Rohrig (oooooooooooo!!!!!!)

The year is finally over! YES! Well, what now ? Hmm. It's all about Ohlone y'all! I'd like to thank the following. Mom & Dad for their support. Missi and Heather for encouragement. I can not believe how time flies by so fast. I can still see myself walking the unfamiliar halls of Washington High School, seeing unfamiliar faces as I helplessly look for my classroom. That was three years ago. Now, I'm trying to hang onto a life that is slipping by so fast. Everything seems to be happening all at once- deadline for college applications, scholarships. At least we all have our friends to thank for; they cheer us up whenever we're sad, and they make things easier and fun. I want to thank all my friends for everything. Thank you Nessyl, Duyen, Kitty, Realou. You guys are the best; I would not ask for anyone else. Thanks to Caroline, Ever, Elena, Shanel, Georgia, Angela, Romualdo, Ryan Li, Ate, Sharon, Christine, Mama, Papa, Joshua, Ate Josie, Tito Ramon, Tita Pina, my teachers, and everyone who helped me out.

Love,
Bernadette

Hopes, dreams, true friends, and true love could only be fulfilled if you're true to yourself and to others.

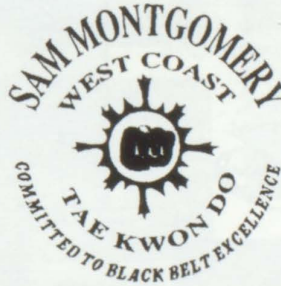

Thank you to all my friends who've been there for me through thick and thin, y'all know who you are. Duyen, Dette, Rea, Kits-let's make this friendship last forever and stick together til the end of the world, like my obsession to J.S. that will never last...heehee :). Thanks for all your help and support with my love life, school, and family. Elijah, Alex, Romualdo, Ryan Li, Rommel, John L., Jim Suh and all of you STUDS whom I didn't mention, thanks for the fun times. Angel, Fatema, Tejel-thanks for the advice. A special thanks to Mrs. Abra Motta and to Mrs. Joanne Robison for their gift of knowledge. Last but not the least thanks to my papa and my mama for their love, trust, patience, and understanding.

Love lots,
Nessyl

You guys are the best! Sunshine and Kelli- thanks for being so wonderful! Debby- you're too funny! Stacey- you're a great buddy! Cindy- it's been a fun 10 years. Courtney, Sara and Susan- Platanos! What can I say to such great people? Katherine, Ida, Anna, Jim- thanks for everything! Pamela and Emily, you're the best little sisters anyone could have! I'll never forget my fellow WHS swimmers! Well, all I can say is that I'll miss you all very much, thanks for everything!

Love, Kristina

To my bestest buds: make new friends, but keep the old. How true! Kristina, Debby, Sunshine, Susan, and Kelli- my newest pals who I'll never forget. Dawn- you're the best, but where are the cakes you owe me? Stacey and Courtney- it has always been and always will us 3. No one can take us apart! Thank you Niles for making my school career the best it could be! Allison, give me that big Christine smile. What will I do without you next year? It is time to move on to bigger and better things. Love, Sara

I had a great time in high school and found many memories and met many people. I've learned and experienced all I can and how it has come to an end. I am so grateful to all my friends for going along with my plans and ideas that sometimes came true and sometimes did not. Thanks for everything and goodluck and goodbye to everyone at Washington High School. Love and Kisses to all my wonderful friends throughout the years. Love, Sunshine...see ya!

HEY HOOPTIE, TURN UP THAT GHETTO MUSIC! IT IS TIME A CHANGE OF SCENE! WATCH OUT FOR THOSE OBSESSIVE CURE FANS AND REMEMBER TO KEEP LISTENING FOR THAT NEW BAND PEAS! PEACE AND LOVE OUT TO ALL THE DROWNED ELEPHANTS OUT THERE WHO LOVE TO SIT IN "BUCKET SEATS!" AND REMEMBER, PALO ALTO, SHORTNEY, AND BLINK ARE ALL GOOD NAMES! GIGGLES AND SQUEAKS ARE GOOD CLEAN FUN! THIS GOES OUT TO MY CURLY-HAIRED BUDDY, NEVER CHANGE AND I LOVE YA! LOVE YUZ AND MISS YOU ALREADY!

Senior year is over but our friendships continue. Courtney, Kristina, and Sara we pulled through Spanish together. You are Forever Friends. Debby we fortunately continued our friendship. Stacey and Sunshine continue to shine with happiness and humor. Kelli never change your wonderful ways. Mariam you're a great friend and I'll always be there for you. Jim always stay in touch. Ryan from kindergarten and beyond. To all of you my friendships will carry you through. Love always, Susan K.

Debby, I'll never forget our talks at the coffee shop. Sara, Kristina, Susan you'll always be my spanish pals, i platanos! Stacey, you're the funniest. Thanks for being there for me, buddy! Blink- Blink. Jean, Junior Prom rocked! Kelli, you are the sweetest don't ever change. Sunshine, we survived those horrible rhyming couplets so I guess we can survive anything. See ya at Hayward, you to Sara! Cindy you are the coolest! Dawn you believed in me when no one else did, thanks! Christopher, I love you.

Mom and Dad you are always there for me, thank you for everything! Lawrence and Jonathon-I love you! Teeny Sweeney, long live Mr. Alligator! I.S.A.B.C.B. It's all about #3! Zelda rules! Megs, lets go swinging! Do you have the TIME? Sorry about your finger on top gun. I'm glad we didn't get nailed with that rake.

Dr.Mario much? What about Cecil the Seasick Sea Serpent? Me56Smiley you are the greatest...smart, talented, beautiful, and happy! Whose puppet show rules? Katharine, Rice Krispies rock! People should hire us! Great job breakin' in my house - you're a first class catburglar. Intergalactic always. Adam Sandler anyone? Watchout for JSA guys in college chica - they love you! Allison, you make a great referee, I can't believe you never got hit. Diana-soar you do absolutely everything! Know that we always appreciate you and will always need you! Clarisse, we've got some serious fervor. It's all about Kindergarten! Glad we found each other again. Go easy on your pimp power. Miss Chandler - my shorts - wearing buddy! And a pair of shoes for every day of the week. Who's the bomb? Ida! The dancin' machine. With those guns you can take anyone, nobody messes with #88! Gotta say howdy to Anna Banana! Always look forward to Vic-Tim in Calculus - you hear what she just called you-dang! To the slippery landscapers thanks for the ecosystem and congratulations on that "drafting" award. Heater you're rad and Garin you're pretty fly for a white guy. Sruthi and our peppermint gang and muffin too. We have changed a lot and then some-some, know that we will always be down. If I ever didn't thank you-you then just let me do it now. To all my family and friends, I love you! You've made high school and my entire life totally wonderful. I will hold memories of all you guys forever in my heart. Never forget me. I'll remember you all always. Sniff...Sniff! Love Ya all! Love, Alicia

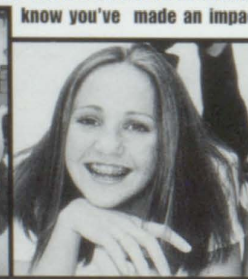

Megan Susanne Pratt

Four years have passed so quickly, but when I take the time to think back through the years memories of thousands of events flood back to me. Our little lunch gang...throwing apples into the street. Our German class... "Diene Mutter hast eine problem!" How could I forget Bentleyland. All of you honors kids... I love you all. I'm always comfortable when I'm around you guys. Keyboarding was great Garin and Jay... "What are you on? Happy pills!" Tennis was the best... I was surrounded by my buds. Swimming freshmen year...and track sophomore year. My little group of Staff Rec. You guys are...dedicated and always help me to the end with my crazy projects. Sruthi-you made my classes

Ida-my roomie. We're gonna have a blast. You always make me smile more. Brian-you're tons of fun-with tennis games, meetings in the stud. cen., and seminary. Tim- I had a blast at Winter Ball- You're so kind and funny. We'll both be Pediatricians someday. Stephanie- You cheer me up, and make church act. funner. Christina-you're my sis. you always have something interesting to inform me about.. Jackie- how can I forget that beach party we went to. I'm so glad I met you. You amaze me. Allison- Thanks for always snaggin' me a piece of pizza. Patty- rem. the singing times of Junior year. Kristy we're the grass warmers. Kristina- my silent but brilliant friend. Vicki- you're the tennis star and the wiz of Cal. Johnny- You're awesome! You better come to BYU. Brian H- you're the science guy- the drinking bird. Bryan S- my ASL bud. I'm so glad you suffered through that w/ me. My Thornton bud. Jared, Jodi, Ryan, Inge, and Kennie you guys are my German buds. Diana-you work so hard to make things perfect. I love ya for teaching us Cal. You're an awesome Y.B. editor and class pres. Sunny-rem. the gummy octapy in Mrs. Nelson's class and you forcing me to pluck my eyebrows! Tim and Victor-VICTIM! Christina you're an awesome friend. Thanks for being who you are- kind and considerate. Clarisse- You're my cheering up girl. You take the time out to make me feel better. You're the best athlete and you've taught me that I can accomplish anything. I love Ya! Chrissy- I've had so much fun driving with ya. You start my day out right with a laugh, you always listen to me and make me feel better. Katharine- You are such a dork! We made the best of our Friday and Saturday nights. "Shiny Happy people," Rice Krispies, your crazy driving, and everything else. I love ya! You are a wiz kid, and a crazy Nerd! Alicia- I know I put you last again, but I had to save the best for last. You cheer me up when I am down. You go with me places you don't want to. You are a true friend. You have taught me so much and I will never have another friend like you. Remember all those crazy times we've had. I love you so much. I can always count on you to be there. I EXPECT TO BE RECEIVING LETTERS FROM ALL OF YOU AT COLLEGE! and if I forgot anyone know you've made an impact on my life in one way or another. I LOVE YOU ALL! Megs

In the fourth grade, we came into each other's lives. From four square on the play ground to college applications, it's been one wild ride. Remember Shakespeare in the back yard, ribbon fights and the Jibber Jabber? Lunches on the front lawn, "Do the British swim on the left side of the lane?", warning: Tennis Rackets may cause injury, "I second that motion, the FLOI fan club, Fimex watches, and "Osmosis on the prow!" what about MIB, tie-dyed taffy and the pevert group? SAT's, blah. Northwestern by e-mail and Allison Hall. Taco Bell runs, brunch outside E221, makin' posters, "music for the rest of us"? It's over with! Jewels, Leash mega Megs, Francesca Delicatessen, Crease and the newspaper, Diana (RELAX!!!), Megadeth(remember?), Ida! Anna my hero, Vicki in space, Susie, Ebs, Kristina(Yah) and Cindy ("Oh, shut-up!"), Tim Brian and the Mojo, I'll sorta miss you.(Shaft!) Girls tennis rocks! (Miss you, coaches Hankin and Collo.) We've finally made it! So many years, so many memories. First I wanna thank the Lord for the many blessings. Wassup Ron, Mike & Tim...brothers 'til eternity, my lil sister Chelsea...your big brother's always here for you, Nick, Eli, Noel, Isaiah, Mark and y'all! I can't forget Trina in RWC, 50, 115, Yoori...thanks for teaching me Korean, them Mission girls, Jennie Bear...when are we gonna sing?, Wendy, Angela, and all my BASICS. I gotta send my love to those that I've known since them Parkmont days. Thanks to my family for always being there and taking my shulbit. I love you all! Last but not least...Valene. Thank you for all you've done for me and my life. You came like a dream and just made everything so right. "My love just goes on and on and on..." I LOVE YOU!

-John (Puffie)

Class of 99, we finally did it!! Our quest to college has arrived! Gotta thank my heavenly father from above! I owe everything to you! To my peers on campus that I shared so many smiles & laughs with, I will remember them all! Mike Khristo: Sup my German brother till I die. We finally did it! Now we look to M&R Inc!! John Lough: Can't forget you man! The many brotherly talks we had at our famens spot!! Tim Lee: I owe all my pool skills, the little I have left, to you man!! Diana, Jewel, & Clarisse: You girls have always been there, doing everything for me! I love you gals!! Nicolo, Eli, Noele, Mark, Isaiah, & all the rest of you I am forgetting, we gotta keep in touch! To my one love, I love you honey! And to the rest of the fellow Class of '99, Good luck to you all! To WHS, I'm outta here!!

-Ronald Yee

Class of ... 99

Sup 99? We made it!

First & most important I wanna give thanks to my Lord for everything. To my Boys, Ron, Mike & John, much Tru love to all of you. We started out acquaintances now we're brothers for eternity. To my '99 sistas Clara, Jewelz and Dynaburger, thank you for being such good friends & for all the memories. To my hip-hop patna's, Nic, Eli, Noel, Isaiah, Mark and the rest of the Azian crew, much love. To L.O. Snickers and I.S. crew, science is good. To my B.A.S.I.C.S. much luv in Christ (PCC!) To my brother Kevin, thanks for always keeping me in check, making me tough. To my parents, you've put up with me for 18 years, I'm thankful you cared, I love you. To my bunny, Yumi, I'll be lovin' you forever, thank you for your warmth and support. Go NINE NINE!

-Tim Lee

We made it! Finally! Now we're off to college. Before we go, I need to say a few things: Ron- we've been through so much and we're as close as can be...even if we don't talk for awhile, when we reunite it's like nothing happened. Timmy- you've been there for me whenever I needed someone...we've had our share of problems, but but we've managed to overcome. John aka Puffy- you've been my "Confucius," always there to give me wise advice that has helped me so much. You guys are my brothers for life, and nothing will change that. I also need to say "wassup" to the Lafayette crew. Joyce and Tiffany (aka Tipper)- you have been there for me and are my sister for life. And to Leilani, my sweetheart, I love you from now til eternity. To my parents, thanks for putting up with me. Much love 2 The C/O 99.

-Mike Khristo

To all my friends, it's finally over! Sherra, where's the puppies? Maybe they know what time it is. Amber, you didn't do a good job staying out of trouble this year. But that's o.k. I love you anyways. Erin, don't eat worms, they're not good for you. hey One Arm, why don't you cheat? It might get the funky colors out of your hair. Jena, how did we end up with wine? You wasted too much time on that. Jenny, there will always be New Brighton. BOOGA-4-LIFE! Alex your garage has been a crazy place especially with your heaters. Cale, I love you, Disneyland was great, thank you! You better not leave me and go to Texas. Happy, our kids will grow up together. Gabe thanks for being there for me when I needed you. Peace out. 143 ~Kelly

I'm not going to say it was long and hard because I had construction classes. But I must say it's 9:00 time to go see the Leaning Tower of Power. Oh No! I lost my leg, who cares? I'm a P.P.G. The HOOT-TANG lost Happy. Where is he? G.E.D., that's where. But really, where's Kennedy, what time is it? Exactly where's squirt at the gym, no Mary's, who knows? It's time for a S.J.C. or should we go latenight? The count down continues. 5-4-3-2 who's next now that it's college? It's going to be Dee. Is that you? One thing I'll never know is "What is love, baby don't hurt me no more." From the wonderful SUMERSET days to F.A.F. days to PURE LADIES from Reno's cells to PINECREST from Gatos to Belmont watching the bald eagles flock. Let's Bump, sconch, substantiate this.

I'm Out- 41- 143

Well class of '99, it's been long and it's been fun, and I can honestly say I'm ready to bust this joint! I will take with me some great memories from good ole' WHS, but I am ready to make some new ones. Hey Christy, Annie let's sneak out and leave a note. was that my idea?? or maybe we could just burn a bear at the lake. Yeah that works well!! Let's just go to AMC except DON'T LET ME DRIVE- -or listen to Love Shack (moral of the story-leave dancing to anywhere but the car). Christy maybe w could drive to Swedal so you can see the bushes- -gotta love those Swedes! Amy Bendix I luv you- -are you Larry's daughter??? Steph, snowboarding, L.A., D.C.we've done it all. I'll miss you. Mel, thanks for letting me cry. Mom, Dad thanks for putting up with me. I'm finally out! Laura, Jen "ripped off the deli" was a blast- -I am in debt to Erik's forever. To all my waterpolo girls, what's it like to lose? Oh yeah we wouldn't know! J/K Julie, Heather, Jen, Meghan, Christy, Monique I will always hold a special place in my heart for you. Annie, I have faith that whatever you do with your life, you will be great at. And hey, remember never to let a guy or someone who can't meet your expectations ruin your day (haha). To everyone: Good Luck, we have so much ahead of us.- -Jodi

Hey guys!! We're finally here! Can you believe it?!! I sure can't. It just feels like yesterday that we were just sophomores! heehee... This year is going by so fast, next thing you'll know we're in college! Oh well, KIT alright. II: Maryrose, Jessica, Kiesha, Pamela, and Madonna, I'll miss you guys. We've had many laughs that we had shared and fun times! Remember I will always be here for you guys! And to the rest! "Be all you can be" Babye, much love!

FOR THE 5 YEARS THAT I'VE LIVED IN FREMONT I'VE MET ALOT OF PEOPLE. SOME I WISH I NEVER HAD MET AND OTHERS I WISH I HAD MET SOONER. WITH SCHOOL AT AN END I'M SURE I WON'T SEE ALOT OF YOU AGAIN. SO TO ALL OF THOSE WHO KNOW ME, I'D LIKE TO SAY GOODBYE NOW, JUST IN CASE I DON'T GET A CHANCE IN JUNE. I WISH YOU ALL THE BEST WITH WHATEVER YOUR PLANS MAYBE. AS FOR ME, I'M SURE I'LL BE KICKING IT WITH BRICE AND SUCH.. WE'LL PROBABLY BE DOING THE SAME THING AS ALWAYS. THERE'S REALLY NO NEED FOR ME TO MENTION WHAT THAT IS, YOU GET THE CONNOTATIONS. THIS YEAR WAS PRETTY MUCH A CONTINUANCE OF LAST YEAR AND THE YEARS BEFORE THAT. THE ONLY BIG DIFFERENCE IS THAT I'M A SENIOR. ACTUALLY, I'M KINDA SURPRIZED THAT I'M A SENIOR THIS YEAR AND NOT A DEMO. I GUESS I OWE THAT TO A COUPLE OF TEACHERS, LIKE MR. PICKEN, MS. PORTER, MR. MACLEOD, MR. WALLACH, MRS. B. & EVEN THAT NEW GUY MR. WITTER. THANKX, ALL OF YOUR CLASSES WERE FUN, WHICH MADE THIS WHOLE CONCEPT OF COMING TO SCHOOL TO LEARN SOMEWHAT WORTH WHILE. THERE'S ALOT MORE I WANT TO SAY BUT THIS D* PAGE IS COSTING ME $30. SO I'LL GIVE SHOTS OUT TO MY FRIENDS... BRICE, ISI A.K.A. R.D., FRANK S., ALEX G., JHON D., BRETT C., JARED S., THAT SILLY MONKEY SAROOD, AND ALL THE REST OF YOU. SO I HOPE YOU ALL SUCCEED IN EVERYTHING THAT YOU DO. BUT REMEMBER, IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED, TRY, TRY AGAIN. THEN QUIT. THERE'S NO POINT IN MAKING A D* FOOL OUT OF YOURSELF. BEST WISHES AND ALL THAT JUNK. ANTHONY ESPARZA. "I CAN RESIST EVERYTHING EXCEPT TEMPTATION." EVERYONE'S A HOLIDAY.

Congrats 2 the C/O '99!! Good Luck 2 all. It's been a gr8 4 yrs. Gina- I will never 4get R 7 o'clock talk. U and Kris be careful... don't do N-E-thing I wouldn't do babe!! U R a gr8 friend i'll never 4get U!! Hey Meghan- where's waldo and his keg pushing friends ?? Where's the gum isle?? How's Adam A.?? Pleaz no throwing dumbells and is that Sharon Stone?? Annie- I'll remember all the laughs during cheer!!... pushing me in the shopping cart!!143!! Julie U R a doll... don't ever change ... Il'll never forget your smile!!John U R a gr8 guy.. don't change... thanx for the great scares. Mel-- thanx 4 the laughs... maybe i'll make it to a dance sometime...yeah right!! Henery- I'll never 4get you... God must of spent a little more time on U!! 143 lots!! Good bye WHS and watch out Chico.

What a betta class 2 end da Millennium year than us. We're da turn of da century!!! Mom (Gugi) and Dad, thanks for everything. You've been at my side the whole way through. I love you. Rags; I guess i love u too, dork!Eternal luv to my "Boob Group"! We've seen each other through everything: laughs, tears, sugar rushes, jungle talks, and bra exchanges=) Buchee & Jadi...we did it! Daisy, it's finally over, but no matter where we go or what we do:you'll always be my babe. Rupa & Aman:thanks for standin' by my side and always being there for me. Much luv to EeYoRe. Hey Raj... "What pole!" To my bro Neel, thanks 4 all your great advice. You'll always have a special spot in my heart 4eva, Ankit n' Nips. I LOVE YOU ALL!!! Goodluck C/O '99! Luv always:Tejel a.k.a.
